New York Sees Great Patriotic Demonstration of Toilers in Four-Hour March.

EFFORTS TOLD ON BANNERS

Greeted by Throngs as "Soldiers Over Here Behind the Soldiers Over There."

SOME IN WORKING GARB

Secretary Wilson Reviews Line as President's Representative—Celebration of Day Elsewhere.

Labor's tribute to the nation and the nation's tribute to labor proclaimed themselves as never before in the demonstrations yesterday when workingmen, breathing the iron energy of the shipyard, the factory, the foundry, and many other industries marched through various parts of the city in the greatest Labor Day parades New York has ever witnessed.

The laboring man marched, not as a toiler, but as a mighty soldier in the army of democracy and it was as a soldier that thousands upon thousands cheered him. Labor seemed to have laid aside material interests, and petty antagonisms and clasped the hand of capital and all other forces of national life, in a joint effort to lift themselves and the children of their future generations free from the German menace.

Conscious of their task in a deeper and more noble way than any "class conscious" doctrine had ever made them, they showed by their bearing that they realized that it was up to them, by all the help and the backing they could give to the men over there, to make the world just what they wanted it to be—a world which could be made only by joining every ounce of their effort in the factory to every ounce of the soldier's effort on the battlefield.

Reviewed by Secretary Wilson.

Of all the demonstrations, that in Fifth Avenue was by far the largest and most impressive. Under the eye of Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, the President's representative, and many city officials, the army of labor there, close to 60,000 strong, marched for about four hours.

Carpenters, joiners, and riggers fresh from the gigantic achievements of the shipyards, machinists, boilermakers, plate makers, and munition workers who propelled that never-ending current of material to the front—workers of lesser but just as essential fields—truckmen, longshoremen, painters, electricians, plumbers, printers, and all the rest that make up the industrial life of a nation bent upon victory, filled the ranks of this procession.

To those who witnessed the parade from the grand stand at the Public Library, the very approach of this army as it swung into view, with national banners flying and national anthems playing, was a thrilling experience. The phrases unfurled from the banners had to do not with wages and hours, but with "liberty," "humanity," "democracy."

Leaving Washington Square shortly after 10 o'clock, the procession moved up Fifth Avenue, with a group of labor leaders at the head of the column mounted on horseback. Behind them marched several hundred infantrymen from Governors Island and a squad of sailors from the Navy Yard. Next came representatives of the various building trades, with the banner of the Building Trades' Union announcing proudly that they had 17,000 men in service and they were also doing their bit.

Cheers for Men in Blouses.

The members of most of the unions appeared in holiday dress instead of wearing the garb of their trade. Hence it was no wonder when the boiler makers passed by, several hundred strong, wearing blue blouses and black caps, that the crowds gave them the loudest cheers of all.

The pile drivers passed in several divisions, full of war spirit, as was evident from placards which read: "Our boys are doing their bit over there, so are we over here," and "Labor is loyal with Wilson to victory." The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, accompanied by a float fashioned after a big ship, had many hundreds of men in line carrying small American flags. Upon their banner appeared this legend:

We Build the Ways,
And Build the Ships,
That Make the Bridge to France.

Again followed another division of Dock Carpenters and Pile Drivers, flauntly boldly the placard: "No White Collar Jobs for Us! We Work for a

RECORD TAX BILL READY FOR HOUSE

Committee Adopts Draft, Overruling McAdoo on Profits and Corporation Schedules.

UNANIMOUS REPORT TODAY

Some Committeemen Will Seek Changes on Floor—Revised Provisions of Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The Ways and Means Committee today ratified the final draft of the $8,000,000,000 revenue bill and authorized Chairman Kitchin to report the measure to the House tomorrow. No changes were made from the tentative agreements reached last Friday, the committee declining to accede to the request of Secretary McAdoo and make the corporation income tax 18 per cent straight.

The committee adopted its tentative agreement on corporation income taxes, which provides for 18 per cent. on undivided and 12 on divided profits. Secretary McAdoo informed the committee no later than last Saturday that he was averse to the war profits section and to a differential in the corporation income taxes.

In both cases the committee elected to abide by the judgment of its chairman, although some members, among them Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, will speak against the war profits and corporation schedules. In the opinion of some members these taxes will be changed on the floor of the House or by the Senate Finance Committee. Rather than longer delay reporting the bill dissatisfied members agreed to the measure as drafted, with the hope that the corrections they deemed necessary would be made in conference.

The surtaxes on incomes finally agreed to follow:

	P.C.		P.C.
$5,000 to $7,500	2	$70,000 to $80,000	42
7,500 to 10,000	3	80,000 to 90,000	46
10,000 to 15,000	7	90,000 ot 100,000	48
15,000 to 20,000	10	100,000 to 200,000	50
20,000 to 30,000	15	200,000 to 300,000	52
30,000 to 40,000	20	300,000 to 500,000	54
40,000 to 50,000	25	500,000 to 1,000,000	58
50,000 to 60,000	32	1,000,000 to 5,000,000	60
60,000 to 70,000	38	Over $500,000..........	65

The normal tax remains, as agreed to recently, 12 per cent. on all over $4,000 and 6 per cent. on amounts below $4,000 to the exemption figures. The surtaxes begin at $5,000.

Mr. Kitchin said the committee would make a unanimous report, although certain members had reserved the right to oppose particular sections on the floor. The Chairman, Mr. Kitchin, will try to get the bill through the House by Sept. 14. Debate will open next Friday, and consideration will be continued until the measure, the largest revenue-raiser in the history of the world, is disposed of.

The Senate Finance Committee will begin hearings on the bill this week. It is probable that the Senate will receive the bill from the committee within ten days after it passes the House.

Every effort will be made by the majority to get the bill on the statute books not later than Oct. 20.

Bill to Yield $8,012,792,000.

ALLIES MUST POOL EVERYTHING NOW, LORD CECIL SAYS

Co-ordination of Their Needs and Resources with Shipping Essential to Win War.

SACRIFICES ARE UNEQUAL

Sufferings of France, Belgium, and Italy Greater Than Those of Britain and America.

SHIPPING CONTROL THE KEY

National Prejudices, Sentiment, and Even Interests Will Have to be Scrapped, If Necessary,

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Lord Robert Cecil, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, at a dinner tonight celebrating the conclusion of the deliberations of the Allied Maritime Transport Council in London, made an important announcement respecting the pooling of allied shipping. He also alluded to the pooling of allied food supplies and of allied munitions. Incidentally Lord Robert paid a warm tribute to Walter Hines Page, the retiring American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, who, he said, had done so much to assist the allied cause.

The following are salient passages from the speech of Lord Robert:

"The Allied Maritime and Transport Council was established last December at a meeting of all the Allies. It has grown and its organization has been completed, but its central principle remains what it always was, the necessity of allied control for allies supplies.

"We have seen lately much to cheer us. That, however, is no reason for diminished effort, but rather for increased effort. Now is the time to strike a definite and final blow at our enemies. As far as the actual fighting is concerned, that is in other hands, and in hands which give us no anxiety. We have profound confidence in our armies and our commanders.

"In order to feed our armies, apart from our civil population, we have got to pool all our resources, we must bring together the whole economic strength of our allies. The accomplishment of that task is not so easy.

Fighting Under Disadvantage.

"In this and many other matters we are fighting under a certain disadvantage. Our enemies have been content to enslave themselves to the German General Staff. That gives them a certain unity of control, a certain perfection of machinery, which it is difficult for us to imitate. For, after all, the essential part of our struggle is that we are free nations, that we claim the right to decide each for ourselves what is necessary in the interests of the general cause in which we are engaged.

"That is true. I do not myself wish it otherwise. I am satisfied that with all its inconveniences it gives us a spiritual strength which ultimately will secure victory for us over the enemy. But if we are to succeed despite our freedom we must be prepared to scrap national prejudice, national sentiment, and even, I would say, national interests. That is essential, if we really propose to make the best use of the strength which we have.

"Now, speaking as an Englishman, I am quite confident that some of our allies have suffered more than others. We have not had to undergo the ordeal of invasion. I agree most fully that in many respects the sufferings of France and Italy, not to speak of the smaller

Archie Roosevelt at Hospital in South; Brought from France for Treatment

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 2.—Captain Archibald Roosevelt, son of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who was wounded last April during the capture of Cantigny in the first offensive carried out by General Pershing's men, telephoned today to the home of his father at Sagamore Hill from a hospital in the South.

He was not feeling well after his voyage from France, he said, but declared that he hoped in a week or ten days to be at Oyster Bay. Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt, formerly Miss Mary S. Lockwood of Boston, and their 5-months-old son, whom Captain Roosevelt has never seen, are now at Oyster Bay, where they went from Boston after news had arrived that Captain Roosevelt would soon be in this country.

Captain Roosevelt's left arm is paralyzed. The wound in his left kneecap has healed, but the wound in his arm has so far failed to respond to treatment. The elbow was shattered by a machine gun bullet while the Captain was leading his men in a charge, and several nerves were injured. The wounded elbow was operated on twice in Paris, without apparent success, and the surgeons who have been treating him reported that eight months might pass before it would be possible to determine whether the paralyzed arm would be useful again. Captain Roosevelt is also suffering from what he described as a "bad case of nerves."

"Archie did not want to come back," Colonel Roosevelt said today, "but desired to remain in France, because he thought that, if invalided home, he would not get an opportunity to return to the front. He fought tooth and nail to remain there."

Colonel Roosevelt said that he hoped his son's condition would be such that he might come to Oyster Bay and receive treatment here.

128,302 Prisoners Taken by Allies Since July 15

PARIS, Sept. 2.—"In the course of their offensive from July 15 to Aug. 31," says an official statement issued today, "the armies of the Allies have taken 128,302 prisoners, including 2,674 officers, and have captured 2,069 guns, 1,734 mine-throwers, 13,783 machine guns, and a considerable quantity of munitions, supplies, and materials of all kinds."

On the French front 75,900 prisoners and 700 guns have been captured by the French since July 18, it is announced today.

IMPORTANT BOOTY TAKEN

Bolshevist-Teuton Troops Poison Wells as They Retreat—Fortify Chita Heights.

TOKIO, Aug. 27, (Associated Press.)—Entente allied troops operating in Siberia are closely pursuing the enemy forces in the Uyeraya [Ussuri?] River region, according to an allied official statement issued this afternoon by the Japanese War Office. The statement reads:

The enemy, who on Aug. 24 retreated to the right bank of the Uyeraya River, halted near Shimakofka and took up positions. The allied 12th Division occupied the left bank of the river, near Antofoka and Komalofka, and on the railroad and engaged in reconnoissances.

On Aug. 25 the enemy again retreated to the northward, being closely followed by one company of our infantry. The enemy occupied Shimakofka, and early on Aug. 26 the Entente allied troops moved forward.

In the engagements with the enemy on Aug. 23 and 24 Captain Konomi and Sergeant Major Sumamoto killed fifteen noncommissioned officers and privates and wounded 136 of the enemy, including seven officers. The casualties sustained by the enemy were twice the number of ours. The enemy left behind 300 dead. Our booty included two armored cars, three guns, four machine guns, a number of rifles, and quantities of telephone wire and ammunition.

Detachments of the forces of General Semenoff, the anti-Bolshevist commander, on Aug. 24 occupied Dauria, in Transbaikalia, where Semenoff's main forces are being concentrated. Advance guards already have occupied Halanole.

The strength of the enemy along the Siberian railway is not known. Near Soltowni enemy forces numbering 1,000 were seen retreating. They had destroyed the railway bridge and water tank and had poisoned the wells.

Welfnevjinsk, Newzeleginsk, and Zem have been stormed and occupied by Czechoslovak forces and Cossacks coming from the west. The Red Guards are reported to have retreated along the railway and southward to the Russo-Chinese border and to Kiakhta, (in the Province of Transbaikalia, 170 miles southeast of Irkutsk.)

The enemy has established defenses on the eminences near Chita, (capital of Transbaikalia.) The positions are not as strongly guarded as heretofore, but at night searchlights are being vigilantly used.

The enemy landed forces at Kamereluibalof, but, meeting with resistance, the Russian troops assumed the defensive, and finally were driven off. At midnight on Aug. 24 the Russians boarded ships on Lake Khanka and retreated to the eastward.

LENINE NOT DEAD, BOLSHEVIKI ANNOUNCE

Russian Premier Shot by Girl Revolutionist Now Reported to be Recovering.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 2.—According to a dispatch received here today from the official Russian telegraph agency, Nikolai Lenine, the Russian Premier, who was shot Friday night by a Russian female revolutionist, and who was reported to have succumbed to his wounds, is out of danger.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—A Russian official wireless dispatch received in London this evening from Moscow says:

"At 9:30 o'clock Sunday night Premier Lenine was sleeping very well. There was no inflammation in the wounds. There was a rise in temperature due to the effusion of blood in the pleura."

A Russian wireless dispatch received here this evening, timed 9 o'clock Monday morning, said that Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevist Premier, slept comparatively quietly Sunday night. He had had no coughing spells and his general condition was stronger Monday morning.

The girl who shot Lenine on Friday night was Dora Kaplan, a prominent Russian revolutionary, according to a dispatch from Petrograd received today by The Evening Star.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 2.—American Labor Day gives the United States troops north of Soissons an occasion to celebrate their success in reaching Terny-Sorny and the Soissons-St. Quentin highway after five days' fighting against four German divisions. Terny-Sorny, which lies across the road, was reached yesterday.

The foothold on the highway gives the Americans and French on either side a good position on the plateau running along north of the Aisne. To reach this position marks the accomplishment of an objective for which the Americans started last Wednesday, when they were thrown into the line in the region of Bieuxy. On their way they have taken about 1,000 prisoners.

This has been one of the most stubborn, if not the most stubborn, fights in which the Americans have been engaged so far.

French communiqués day after day have called attention to the stubbornness of the bloody fight when the Germans tried to hold the key position against the French and Americans north of Soissons. The American advance of the last days brought many thrilling incidents. Our artillery received congratulations for its work in following the infantry closely and firing point blank into pestiferous German machine gun positions. Our seventy-fives got so close yesterday that the gun crews captured fleeing Germans.

So marked was the enthusiasm of our artillerymen that on one occasion they found they had advanced even beyond our infantry and were doing skirmish fighting against enemy machine guns. A German battery yesterday found itself without infantry between it and the Americans, with both going the same way. Our machine gunners killed the horses at two guns and we captured the guns, both six-inch pieces.

Triple Barrage Used.

Our final attack, which took us to Terny-Sorny, was made after a series of three barrages. After the first barrage the Germans, not thinking there could be any other system than their own plan of one barrage before an attack, rushed from their shelters to meet the Americans. They met another barrage. They went back to shelter, to come out again after that barrage. They were then met by a third barrage.

These tactics killed so many Germans and were so demoralizing to those remaining that our infantry, advancing behind the third barrage, was easily successful, and it was this attack which won more than 500 prisoners.

Examination of German prisoners brought an interesting incident. One little Hun had a mother in America and had once lived there. When asked by an American officer why he was in the German Army he replied that he had to be. When asked what he thought of the Kaiser, he said the Kaiser could "go to hell."

It was very evident this was done for effect in an effort to captivate

Americans Cut Through Acres of Barbed Wire In Advance to the Bethune-Soissons Roadway

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 2, (Associated Press.)—The American troops reached the embankments of the Bethune-Soissons roadway late Sunday night by literally cutting their way through acre after acre of barbed wire—the work of two great armies. In gaining the road the Americans passed over great open places consisting of an immense network of wire.

The first wire entanglements had been strung by the French. Then the Germans came along and for their own protection erected an additional wire system.

Many of the wires the Americans had to overcome were new, representing recent work by the Germans, while others were rusty, having stood since the French strung them, some years ago.

In addition to the wire entanglements, the Americans were compelled to overcome a trench system which ran along the hills like canals. The trenches ran in every direction, and most of them were deep, having been dug by either the French or Germans during their respective occupations of the plateau.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Sept. 2.—A description of the battle for the Nesle-Noyon Canal has been given to your correspondent by a French airman, who dislocated his elbow in a forced landing when he was attacked by three Germans after losing his own control in the clouds. He said:

"What a pity one of you newspaper men can't fly your own self and see the show the way we do. It is a real picture of war as one used to read about it, with clouds of smoke shells bursting everywhere and infantry dodging forward in open order. I outdistanced in patrol five chasse machines with a flying mission to fly low to harass the boche infantry and do whatever reconnoissance work was possible. The German planes kept very high, and didn't interfere much, save to attack stragglers. They seem to share the loss of morale of the rest of the army, but, like the rest, fight well enough when they have got to.

"We patrolled a section of the canal from Libermont to where it bends round Chevilly. It was the latter region where the scene was most interesting—the enemy fighting hard, supported by plenty of guns. A battery of four light tanks came out in line to cross the canal cutting, which was waterless save for a patch of semi-liquid mud in the middle. Behind each was a group of infantry in skirmishing order. The tanks looked like those 'looper' caterpillars as they reared up on the western edge of the cutting. A shell landed right in front of one as it stood there.

Tanks Crawl Through Mud.

"As I flew round in a circle, I thought the tank was smashed, as it didn't move for nearly a minute. Then it resumed its progress down the bank. No boche was visible in the wood opposite, but they evidently were firing steadily, as our infantry kept cover behind the bank.

"Three tanks wallowed through the mud and successfully climbed up the further bank and moved along the edge of the wood toward the road leading to Chevilly village. Their fire permitted our infantry to get across and disappear into the wood, working northward toward the road. A moment afterward another group accomplished a similar manoeuvre higher up, and they, too, converged southward upon the road. The tank that had been injured seemed to have lost its power. It stuck in the mud with the tractors churning uselessly.

"I flew forward over the village and spotted a score of Germans running back up the hill from the wood through the cemetery on the western

FIERCE STRUGGLE FOR OISE VALLEY

Von Hutier Orders Repeated Counterattacks to Delay the French Advance.

GERMANS USE HEAVY GUNS

Desperate Efforts to Gain Time for Extrication of the Enemy Forces.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 2.—General von Hutier has had an important and difficult part to play in the German retreat, and it must be admitted that he has so far played it well. Essentially, it was to cover the valley of the Oise.

If Mangin, after the brilliant victory which carried him to the south bank of that river, had been able to force his way up the valley beyond Chauny, von Hutier's front would have been broken, and von Eben's, further south, with the St. Gobain mountain block, which is the southern buttress of the Hindenburg positions, would have been turned—a first-class disaster. The chief aim of the obstinate defense of Noyon and the hills behind it, a perilous defense, was to block the Oise and to support von Eben on the Ailette and before Laffaux.

The danger arose rather on the north than on the south of Noyon from the pressure of Debeney's and Humbert's armies, and so von Hutier was compelled to put up a particularly strong defense before and along the Somme and the Nesle-Noyon Canal until his salient on the Noyon hills could be or had to be withdrawn. Hence the hard fighting on this line and the comparatively slow progress of the French during the last few days.

When I speak of the Somme I mean not only the river, which is a small stream in this region, but the canal which follows its western bank and the marshes and osier beds which lie between the two water courses, making in all an obstacle that can be passed only by roads held by the enemy under artillery and machine-gun fire.

Still smaller than the Somme is its tributary the Ingon, but it also is bordered by swamps and prairies. From the Ingon east of Nesle the unfinished Nord Canal runs south to near Porquericourt. It has been spoken of as a dry trench, but this is a mistake. It is full of water in the northern half of its course—that is, as far as the tunnel midway between the villages of Ercheu and Campagne. This was therefore a good line of provisional arrest, and von Hutier has made the best of it.

The hills on the east of the water line have been well intrenched, and powerful artillery fire has been sent over to the French rear, as well as the foreposts, with an only too plentiful supply of boche explosives and noxious gas. Counterattacks have been launched whenever the French have made material advance, and generally the enemy has been very much alive.

It is all the more to the credit of the 1st French Army that, backed

ATTACKS ON PERONNE FAIL

Australians Beat Off Repeated Assaults—Germans Lose Ground North of City.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—English, Scottish, and Canadian troops, aided by tanks, today carried the famous Quéant-Drocourt "switch line" on a front of approximately six miles.

The enemy, who was strongly defending this powerfully fortified stretch of trenches, was forced back with great loss, including several thousand prisoners.

The Canadians, whose attack was astride the road from Arras to Cambrai, captured the villages of Dury, Cagnicourt, and Villers-les-Cagnicourt, the last named of which is four miles beyond the line from which the attack started.

The left wing of the assaulting forces, composed of English troops, pierced the German defenses northeast of Eterpigny, and the right, made up of English and Scottish, pushed forward from Riencourt in the direction of Quéant and captured many strongly fortified positions, including the village of Noreuil.

The fighting extended southward to a point beyond Péronne, the British taking many enemy positions, including several villages.

On the Lys front the British continue to gain ground, closely following the retreating enemy. They have captured Neuve Eglise and have advanced to the east of Estaires.

American troops who captured Voormezeele yesterday, in their first battle in Flanders, advanced eastward from that village today, cooperating with the British in close pursuit of the enemy's rearguards.

Today's official reports from Berlin admit the loss of Péronne and certain gains by the British in the attacks upon the Quéant-Drocourt line.

One of the War's Great Battles.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 2, (Associated Press.)—The British have pierced the Drocourt-Quéant line. In a fierce battle, which has been raging since dawn, and which will probably prove to be one of the most important of the war, Canadian and English troops, at last reports, had at one point driven in about five kilometers, or a little more than three miles, and were still going.

The fighting was as furious as any since the war began and increased in intensity as the British battled their way forward, meeting the ever-growing resistance of the enemy, who had put in every available man and was rushing up reserves at the rear.

Thousands of prisoners have been captured. The roads to the British rear are jammed with them.

There has been fierce fighting in Dury, which was taken by the British, and Mount Dury, which the Germans held in great strength, was stormed. The British went on after killing enormous numbers of the enemy. The Germans died fighting here, as elsewhere.

Cagnicourt Wood and Cagnicourt have been captured, and the Bois de Bouche, to the southeast, is reported also to have been occupied.

There has been heavy fighting in Buissy, northeast of Quéant, where large numbers of prisoners have been captured, and similar progress has been made against the northern end of the Quéant-Drocourt line for some distance.

All during the night there was very heavy fighting around the British positions, which were almost jammed up against the great German defense system. Piles of dead Germans were one of the results. In one enemy attack a Sergeant with a machine gun killed six Germans who tried to rush him.

Attack After Crash Barrage.

It was soon after 5 o'clock in the morning that the massed British cannon broke loose with a roar that was heard for miles in a crash barrage. The whole sky seemed ablaze, as thousands of British shells poured into the German wire and lines.

When the barrage raised the Canadians and English swarmed over the top. Just behind them were numerous tanks of all sizes. They had been over only a minute when the enemy opened with a counter-barrage, which is said to have been by far the strongest he has put down since the British offensive began.

The instant the British appeared the Germans in many cases jumped out of their trenches and held their hands high above their heads. In some cases, however, the advancing British met a hail of machine gun bullets, but, notwithstanding this, they pushed on. Quickly the first line was overcome.

Many Germans Panic-stricken.

From all along the line came reports that Germans in dugouts were absolutely panic-stricken and that many of them were found cowering in holes and screaming with fright.

By 7:30 o'clock the British had completely passed the German front and support lines. It was then that the motor machine guns dashed out on to the good roads at the German rear. Tanks also managed to get through, and they are working far in advance of the infantry.

Some of the fast motor machine guns are reported by the airplanes to have made their way along the Canal du Nord on the roads between Douai and Marquion, while others are reported to be holding the bridgeheads against large numbers of German reserves, who certainly are coming up in the rear.

Along the Arras-Cambrai road the British have made good progress, and Villers-lez-Cagnicourt, which was protected by special belts of wire and a powerful trench system, was the scene of desperate fighting. Both Villers-lez-Cagnicourt and Cagnicourt are in British hands, and the British have carried the battle considerably to the east of these towns.

At the crossroads northeast of Cagnicourt, where the Arras-Cambrai highway crosses the Millers-lez-Cagnicourt-Saudemont road, as well as all through this district, the Germans were in great strength. The crossroads are only nine and a half miles from Cambrai, and their defense is of the utmost importance to the enemy.

Reports from Dury show that the fighting was of a desperate nature before the Germans, who were massed there and were about to deliver a powerful assault against the British positions, were overcome.

Germans Signal for Help.

As the British made progress all along the line rocket after rocket flamingly ascended through the battle smoke from German positions as the hard pressed enemy, first here and then there, called for assistance from those in the rear. The barrage had completely unnerved the Germans. The British then smashed their way through line after line, fighting in many cases hand to hand, and bayonets were used freely.

The wood north of Quéant was found to be full of Germans with machine guns. The fighting there was of the very hardest nature until the British cleared the wood. Tanks again did heroic service. Where shells had failed to break through the wire, tanks rolled it out flat and charged down into the masses of Germans. Those who did not fall before the guns were crushed, together with their machine guns.

The streets of Dury were carpeted with German dead. Here the British captured the town Mayor, and among other prisoners taken near by were several battalion commanders. Mount Dury was stormed soon afterward, but it was taken only after a terrific struggle.

British wounded returning from the fighting here said that from the top of the hill they could see Germans coming up in the east in masses. From the same point there could be seen German artillery retiring.

Canadian's Loss Relatively Small.

It was the Canadians who took Dury and the hill. Although facing a heavy fire they had only a small fraction of the casualties they inflicted on the foe.

All sorts of troops have been captured. Elements of six German divisions, fresh and tired, have been identified by troops on a front of 2,000 yards. Good troops and the sweepings of the German Army are fighting here. One prisoner taken was a Red Cross man, until he was discharged a few months ago because of an incurable illness and a mutilated hand. He had been taken back into the army as an infantryman.

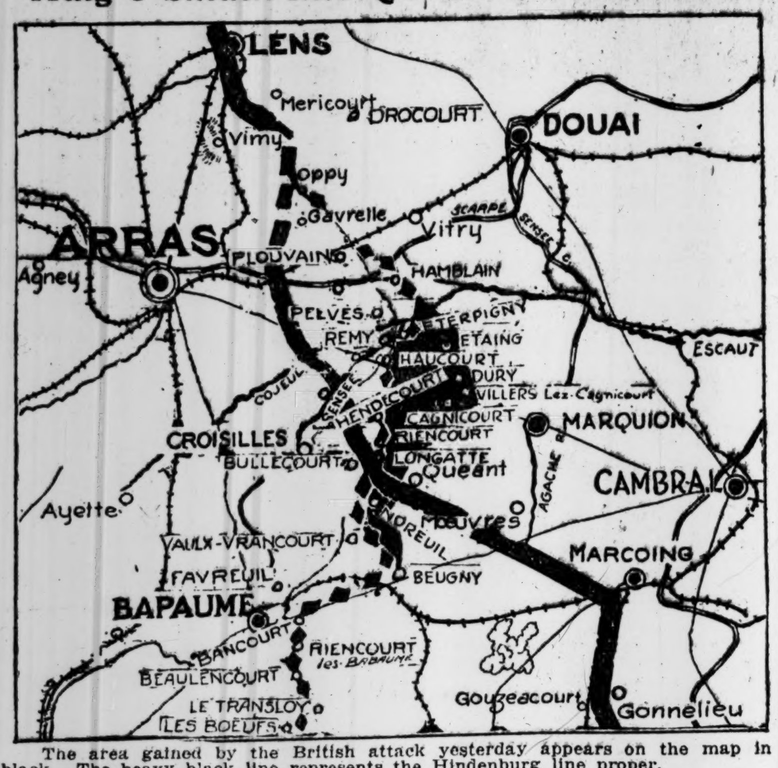
Fierce Counterattacks Expected.

At this writing counterattacks by the Germans are expected, and they probably will be of a most violent nature. The British, however, are prepared to deal with them. Everywhere the British have attacked in the woods they have met with a hail of bullets, and the resistance they met with in these localities increased the deeper they went. In the first of such positions attacked the Germans ran after offering short resistance.

However, by the time the woods southeast of Cagnicourt were reached the resistance stiffened materially. Germans were found all over the place, blazing away with machine guns from nests and holes scraped in the ground, protected by barbed wire. In all the villages there was hand-to-hand fighting from building to building and from ruin to ruin.

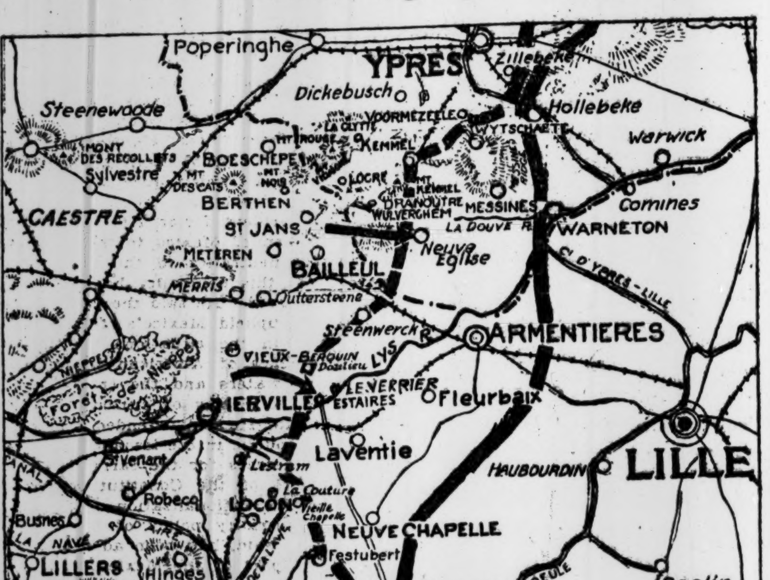
The German prisoners were for the most part a dirty, hungry, dejected lot. The officers asked for food as soon as they reached the cages. Many prisoners said they were convinced that the war would be over this year. "Does that mean that the Germans have lost?" asked an officer of one large group. The members of the group replied that they did not care whether the Allies won or not. All they and their comrades wanted was peace. They all spoke of the great numbers of their comrades killed, and those from the German rear were especially impressed by the vast piles of German dead lying on the ground where the British had passed.

Haig's Smash Into Quéant-Drocourt Line



The area gained by the British attack yesterday appears on the map in black. The heavy black line represents the Hindenburg line proper.

The Diminishing Lys Salient



Following closely on the Germans' retreat, the British have occupied Neuve Eglise and Estaires, the location of both of which is indicated by an arrow.

Both the Canadian and English troops report that the Germans in many places fought to the finish and died at their guns, firing until they were killed. They had orders to hold on until the last, for the German commanders realize the seriousness of their position with their boasted Wotan line pierced and the British still driving on behind it.

If the British maintain their gains in the face of the expected German counterattacks, the launching of which may still further increase the violence of the struggle, the Hindenburg line will be in the greatest danger.

In the southern battle area the British again continued their advance between Peronne and Bapaume, and there has been heavy fighting all along the lines. East of Péronne and Mont St. Quentin more ground has been gained. There has been hard fighting in the southern zone, but nowhere has it approached in intensity that at Drocourt.

Motor Patrols to Seize Bridgeheads.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 2, (Reuter.)—The troops of General Horne and General Byng began today's offensive southeast of Arras, and by 7:30 o'clock this morning they had completely reached the Drocourt-Quéant switch line.

Two hours later it was rumored that groups of British motor machine gunners had been seen on the bank of the Canal du Nord, nearly five miles east of the nearest point on the Drocourt line. These were only highly mobile patrols, pushing on to try to seize the bridgeheads.

By today's success the British struck the Germans one of the most smashing and strategically serious blows they have ever received in a single day's fighting. The Germans are reported to have had eight divisions in readiness to meet the blow.

Among the prisoners taken are men who had been hurriedly thrown in the fighting line from all sorts of units.

Now "Mopping Up" Peronne.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Sept. 2, (Associated Press.)—Australian troops, having crossed the Somme, capturing Péronne, are mopping it up, during the course of which there has been brisk fighting in the streets. They have captured other towns and positions in the same neighborhood, and one force is pushing northward astride the Canal du Nord. At last reports it had reached Allaines on the east side of the canal and the high ground opposite on the west bank.

The Canal du Nord constitutes another heavily defended German defense system, and the British in the fighting along this waterway have killed an enormous number of Germans, who seem to have been packed in this locality.

Another force is pushing eastward, following generally the course of the Cologne River from Péronne. More of the Péronne-Bapaume road has been taken.

There has been heavy fighting in Sailly-Saillisel, where one hundred prisoners were taken and another large group of Germans killed by the British. Other forces are pushing forward down the Hirondelle Valley and are close to Noreuil, which is also being approached from the north of Longatte. This force is engaged in overcoming heavy resistance.

Early this morning the British began operating in the area northeast of Hendecourt. After three counterattacks on the town had been smothered the British attacked the headquarters at the château, from which seventy prisoners, including a battalion commander and his complete staff, were taken.

So swiftly did the British advance that at one point in the recent fighting a complete horse ambulance, including two doctors and 350 prisoners, were taken. At one place a British officer with one man bombed an enemy trench and then advanced. Eighty Germans of the garrison surrendered to the pair.

The effects of the recent allied artillery fire are shown in an order signed by General Ludendorff, which also apparently discloses a shortage of German artillery. General Ludendorff says that in one month the allied shell fire destroyed 13 per cent. of the German guns in action. He directs that strong counterbattery measures be taken.

GERMANS MUST RETIRE TO CHEMIN DES DAMES

Franco-American Successes Will Force Retreat—Foe Is Burning His Supplies.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 2, (Associated Press.)—Huge fires which were seen in the direction of Vauxaillon, northeast of Soissons, at 3 o'clock this afternoon indicated that the enemy was burning his supplies. There is said to be nothing else inflammable in that region.

Today's successes completed the conquest of the Soissons plateau, which will compel the Germans to retire to the Chemin des Dames, which itself is menaced by the French advance toward Vauxaillon.

Allies Now Hold Plateaus.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—French troops continued their advance northeast of Soissons last night and today. They have occupied Leuilly and Terny-Sorny, on the high ground east of Crécy-au-Mont and Juvigny, and have made progress north of Crouy.

On the front north of Noyon they have crossed the Canal du Nord opposite Nesle and gained a footing on the western slopes of Hill 77.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—While the principal feats are now being performed on the British part of the battleline, General Mangin continues to forge ahead, adding every day to the enemy's losses and to his danger. General Mangin's success is due not only to the valor of his Franco-American troops, but to the skill in manoeuvring that he has shown. Not contenting himself with attacking frontally the heights between Crécy-au-Mont and Juvigny, he manoeuvred at the same time by the south and, filtering his forces through the long ravine running through Vaux-Regis, Chavigny, Juvigny, and Leury and passing by Pasly, Cuffies, and Crouy, he is forcing the Germans to retire on their left as far as Bucy-le-Long and giving completeness and solidity to the movement.

Numerous Austro-Hungarian prisoners continue to be taken by this army, which is approaching Coucy, north of Soissons.

The general situation of the front between the Oise and Aisne Rivers is very good.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—General Pershing's communiqué for yesterday received tonight at the War Department says that north of the Aisne American troops made further progress east of Juvigny. The statement reads:

> Section A—North of the Aisne our troops have made further progress east of Juvigny. There is nothing else of importance to report.

BRITISH AIRMEN ACTIVE.

They Destroy 14 German Planes and Drop Many Tons of Bombs.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The operations of the British aviators in the fighting zone are described in an official communication tonight as follows:

> After the heavy rain of Saturday night the weather improved on Sunday, and our airplanes and balloons carried on their work in a clear atmosphere and high wind.
> In spite of the opposition of enemy machines, over 1,000 photographs were taken by our aviators and many reconnoissances effected. Contact with our advancing troops was closely maintained.
> Our observation balloons were constantly pushed forward, and these, with our artillery patrols, kept our batteries informed as to numerous targets, which were successfully engaged.
> Throughout the day the area in which the Germans were entering was searched by our low-flying airmen, who everywhere attacked enemy troops and transports with bombs and machine gun fire, causing heavy casualties and much confusion. Bridges and railway connections were heavily bombed in the enemy back areas.
> In the air fighting eight enemy machines were destroyed and four driven down out of control. Six hostile balloons were brought down in flames by our airplanes. Eight of our machines are missing.
> On the following night bombing was continued both in the zone immediately behind the battleline and further east. A German airdrome beyond St. Quentin was heavily attacked and direct hits were observed. We lost one night bombing machine.
> During the twenty-four hours over thirty-four tons of bombs were launched on different targets.
> In addition to the hostile machines already reported to have been accounted for on Friday last, our anti-aircraft fire brought down a German night bombing machine on that date.

The official statement of aerial activities says:

> Six hostile machines were destroyed in air fighting on Aug. 31 and three driven down out of control. Seven of our machines are missing. In spite of low clouds the work of the British air forces along the front was carried on throughout the day in close co-operation with the troops on the ground by our airplanes and balloons. A large number of photographs were taken and enemy movements kept under observation. Twelve and one-half tons of bombs were dropped between dawn and dusk. At night flying was impossible.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—Tonight's official report on aerial operations says:

> Bad weather interfered with the aerial operations on Sept. 1. Nevertheless, four enemy airplanes were brought down and one captive balloon was set afire. Our patrol machines carried out bombardments in the region of La Fère. Convoys on the roads radiating around St. Quentin and La Fère were subjected to machine gun fire.
> During the night 9,868 kilos of bombs were dropped on the railway stations at Marle, Laon, and Ham, causing fires. Eight tons of projectiles were dropped on bivouacs in the neighborhood of Villers-Franqueux and on stations at Maison Bleue and Guignicourt. Four and a half tons of projectiles were dropped on the latter place, causing heavy damage.

RESORTING TO OLD TACTICS.

Germans Mining Evacuated Area and Flooding Country Behind Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Official advices from Paris today brought news that the Germans during their retreats have been attempting to retard the advance of the allied forces by rendering the ground treacherous, blowing up roads, planting mines in the streets of towns, and seeking to divert water from river beds to flood the country. German pioneers have been ordered to blow up flood gates, and a large flooding system has been designed back of Noyon.

"The Germans," said one of the dispatches received today, "pressed by the Allies, are attempting to check the advance of the latter by desperate counterattacks in which they engage their best divisions, but they are so well aware that in the end their efforts will be of no avail they have already given orders not only for withdrawal lines to be prepared, but also to turn into a wilderness the ground in front of the Allies' troops and to raise artificial barrages designed to check the Allies' progress.

"Their pioneers are busy breaking up all kinds of works behind the present line of battle, dealing principally with the roads. The Germans set mines to blow up the road crossings. In the same way at river crossings wells are dug on each side of the road and filled with explosives. Their object is to blow up the entire width of the causeway and flood the adjoining fields.

"In the towns the Germans accomplish the same sort of underground work. The road crossings are undermined, wells are dug beneath the pavement and filled with explosives set to detonate only when convoys are overhead. Drains are blocked up so as to flood the causeway.

"Orders have been given to German pioneers to blow up the flood gates and work gaps in the towing path so as to make the water course run into the depressions. A large flooding system is designed back of Noyon. The few remaining trees on the edge of the roads are to be thrown down and set across the roads. The railways are to be completely destroyed by the use of petards disposed from place to place beneath the rails or close to the shifting of the points. The Germans have already started to make the ground they abandoned in August treacherous. A number of their works had to be left half completed, their time being short. Elsewhere the enemy was so suddenly repelled from his positions that he had no time to explode the mines."

THE GERMAN DEFENSE LINES.

The One Now Cut and the Ones Behind It.

The breaking through of the Drocourt-Quéant line, fourteen miles long, on a six-mile front across the Arras-Cambrai highway carries the British further east than they have been in Artois since the beginning of the war. Where they are astride of the Arras-Cambrai highway they have also pierced the Hindenburg line, which, coming down from the western defenses of Douai, forms a junction with the highway near Maucourt.

The so-called "switch line" of Drocourt-Quéant, known a year ago as the Siegfried line, was created in February, 1916, with a double purpose—as an outpost of the northern part of the Hindenburg line and as a protection to the supply depots of Douai and Cambrai. To the southeast is another protective line, almost a continuation of the Siegfried, known as the Wotan line—twelve miles long—Bullecourt-La Vacquerie.

In anticipating their great retreat to the Hindenburg from the Wotan south, (March 17-19, 1917,) made necessary by the strategic positions obtained by the Allies in the battle of the Somme, (July 1-Nov. 19, 1916,) and a more or less complete knowledge of the campaign Haig and Nivelle had planned for the following Spring, the Germans wished at all hazards to protect Douai and Cambrai, as these places would feed the Hindenburg line as far as the sector in the front supplied from Laon. In their retreat they evacuated Bapaume and Péronne and turned, for the time, St. Quentin and La Fère from supply stations into strongly fortified positions.

Both before and after the German retreat the British made some progress along the Arras-Cambrai highway but did not quite reach the Siegfried line. In the battle of Cambrai last November they flanked this line on the south, but could not get in its rear on account of the Wotan line. They crossed this line almost throughout its entire length and pierced the Hindenburg line at Marcoing, five miles southwest of Cambrai. In an attempt to utilize the position thus obtained against the Siegfried line General Byng exposed his right wing to the German counterattack which was made on Nov. 30. Still the British continued all Winter to hold the horizontal at the end of the Siegfried line, and the first move in the great offensive of March 21 was to deprive them of it.

Now they have pierced the line at a point which also gives them the angle of the Hindenburg line—the vertex of the the triangle Douai-Maucourt-Cambrai. Although a position on the base Douai-Cambrai, only eight miles east of the present fracture, would make Cambrai untenable and destroy the usefulness of its communications to the south the retreat of the Germans from their present front in Picardy to the Hindenburg line would be secure so long as the new Wotan line held, which is said to be particularly fortified in the space between its northern extremity, Bullecourt, and the southern extremity of the Siegfried line, Quéant.

The actual defense of Germany's western frontier is imposed on what is known as the line of the Meuse, which ascends south through Belgium and occupies France at an average distance of ninety miles east of the Hindenburg line. It cuts the following horizontal lines: Nieuport to the German frontier, 145 miles; Ypres, 138; La Bassée, 140; Arras, 142; Cambrai, 120; Bapaume, 138; Péronne, 140; Roye, 142; Noyon, 132; Soissons, 120, and Rheims, which is 88 miles from the German frontier.

It was the line of the Meuse on which are the Belgian forts of Liége and Namur, and the French fortified camps of Mezières, Sedan, and Verdun, toward which the Germans rushed in August, 1914. It is the Rhine's historic protection on the west.

Now, however, between the Hindenburg line and the Meuse there are two other protective lines. Both have been known to aerial observers since the Summer of 1915. The one further west begins at Sesvan Gent on the Dutch frontier, follows the ship canal south as far as Ghent, and then ascends the right bank of the Scheldt as far as Condé. From Condé it proceeds along the Franco-Belgian frontier to the southeast, covers the old French forts of Maubeuge and Hirson, and links up with the Meuse at the fortified camp of Mezières. The other begins at Antwerp and links up with the Meuse at Namur, forming an arc to the southwest via Brussels, Hal, Charleroi, and the Senne and Sambre Rivers.

HERTLING ATTACKED ON REPLY TO CECIL

Failed to Show That the Pan Germans Do Not Control, Says Vorwaerts.

SILENT ON LEADING ISSUES

Frankfurter Zeitung Regrets That It Cannot Cite Proof of Berlin Moderation.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 2.—Count von Hertling's birthday speech has aroused no great enthusiasm in Germany, even the favored organ Germania hints that the Chancellor shows himself to be more of a philosopher than a statesman who has to deal with realities.

Vorwärts heads his answer to Lord Robert Cecil as "not happy," and thinks that the Chancellor was in rather bad temper, though it was his birthday. It goes on to say:

"Hertling had an excellent opportunity to smite a weapon from the hand of the enemy by declaring himself to be the Chancellor of the Reichstag majority, standing in opposition to the Pan Germans. Instead of that, however, he contented himself with a compliment to the occupant of the throne, which may be effective in Germany, but which can hardly be regarded abroad as proof positive that the Pan Germans are not the ruling factors in German politics.

Vorwärts heads his answer to Lord time, and for that reason we find the dry vacuity in his utterance doubly painful. He makes no attempt to deal with the great problems of the time, such as democracy and the league of nations. No word about Prussian franchise reform appears in his speech. No effort is made to outline that new Germany for which thousands and thousands are giving their lives. Hertling is firmly rooted in the old order of things, and every recognition of the coming new time is foreign to his nature."

Having thus presented an interesting picture of the German Chancellor as a convinced, stubborn Pan German, Vorwärts takes the Pan Germans under its accommodating wing, and in commenting on the Cecil interview declares that they are not responsible for the prolongation of the war. "Had they been so responsible," it says, "a storm of popular will would have blown them away."

That absurdity is followed up by a still more ridiculous argument. "When the enemies' communiqués report heavy German losses," says Vorwärts, "one may be certain that that Germany with which Cecil appears to sympathize has lost a large number of its supporters. No one can expect us to support Cecil's method of fighting Pan Germanism by killing its opponents."

Such stupidities are interesting evidence of the confused state of the German mind. The Frankfurter Zeitung believes that Cecil's utterance is clear proof of the Entente's intention to annihilate Germany. It regards that as very pitiful, seeing that "the belief that the war cannot be ended by arms gains ground in Germany and that Hertling no longer lives under the illusion of that peace by victory of which the Pan Germans have not yet ceased to talk."

The same journal regrets, however, that it cannot produce the Chancellor's word for it and that his latest speech still shows no sign of repentance.

The Berliner Tageblatt discovers a more moderate tone in Cecil's interview, but says that it does not inspire with hope, for "there is only one Germany when she is threatened with smashing defeat and all its consequences, and Cecil must not forget that."

Practically all other Berlin journals regard the Cecil utterance as a definite refusal to have anything to do with peace on any other basis than the complete defeat of Germany, and there are naturally the usual comments about innocent Germany which has accomplished so much for humanity and about her bloodthirsty enemies.

Maximilian Harden has again been muzzled on account of an article in Die Zukunft week before last, the issue of this weekend being prevented from appearing. It is not stated for what period the suspension holds good. The article which aroused the ire of the military authorities was a long and ponderous Egyptian parable in Harden's heaviest, dullest, and most involved style. It is difficult to see all he was driving at, but there are evident though indirect references, presumably to the Kaiser and other ruling personalities, and the military authorities apparently solved the riddle and so decided to silence the parable maker.

Official Reports of the Day's Operations

British

LONDON, Sept. 2.

Night Report—This morning Canadians and English, accompanied by tanks, attacked astride the Arras-Cambrai road and carried on a wide front that portion of the powerfully organized defensive system known as the Drocourt-Quéant line, which lies south of the River Scarpe.

The enemy was holding his trenches in strength and opposed determined resistance to our advance. On the whole front of the assault this resistance was broken, with great loss to the enemy. The Canadians have taken Dury, Villers-lez-Cagnicourt and Cagnicourt and have made progress beyond these places.

On their left, English battalions fought their way forward throughout the German defenses northeast of Eterpigny. On the right of the attack English and Scottish troops pressed forward beyond Riencourt-lez-Cagnicourt in the direction of Quéant and captured many strongly fortified positions, including the village of Noreuil.

South of this point also our troops made progress, and early in the afternoon repulsed a heavy counterattack which the enemy launched in great strength east of Vaulx-Vrancourt.

The English reached the outskirts of Beugny and have taken Villers-au-Flos. There was sharp fighting throughout the day about Le Transloy. In this locality also hostile counterattacks were repulsed, and the English captured the village.

Between Saillisel and Péronne English and Australian divisions have driven the enemy from St. Pierre-Vaast Wood and captured the villages of Allaines and Haut-Allaines.

East and southeast of Péronne repeated German counterattacks were beaten off by the Australians, with heavy loss to the enemy. Several thousand prisoners were captured during the course of the day.

Our patrols have made further progress in the western outskirts of Lens.

On the Lys front our troops continue to gain ground and are in close touch with the enemy.

Day Report—Yesterday Welsh and Eastern County troops captured Sailly-Saillisel after heavy fighting.

The English have drawn near Le Transloy and Noreuil, where they took a number of prisoners. Riencourt-lez-Cagnicourt and the German positions south of the village were captured during the night by English and Scottish troops, together with some hundreds of prisoners.

In the sector south of the Scarpe Canadian and English troops attacked at 5 o'clock this morning. They are reported to be making good progress.

In the Lys sector we have reached the Lys River east of Estaires and have captured Neuve Eglise.

French

PARIS, Sept. 2.

Night Report—During the day our troops who last evening crossed the Canal du Nord opposite Nesle advanced to the east of the canal and have gained a footing on the western slopes of Hill 77. We took prisoners.

Between the Allette and the Aisne we continued our progress on the plateaus east of Crécy-au-Mont and Juvigny, despite the enemy's stubborn resistance. We occupied Leuilly and Terny-Sorny, and have advanced north of Crouy.

Day Report—In the region of the Canal du Nord the artillery activity was violent. The French repulsed two counterattacks by the enemy upon the village of Campagne, maintaining their positions.

In the region of the Allette the French made fresh progress in the wood west of Coucy-le-Château and east of Pont St. Mard. One hundred prisoners remained in the hands of the French.

In the Champagne an enemy raid in the region of Aubérive was without result.

German

BERLIN, (via London,) Sept. 2.

Night Report—The English have attacked between the Scarpe and the Somme. To the southeast of Arras and to the north of Péronne they gained ground. Reserves met their thrust. On both sides of Bapaume the enemy was repulsed.

Between the Oise and the Aisne French attacks developed this afternoon after strong artillery fighting.

Day Report—Fronts of Crown Prince Rupprecht and General von Boehn—There have been forefield engagements on both sides of the Lys.

Between the Scarpe and the Somme the British are continuing their attacks on a front forty-five kilometers [twenty-eight miles] wide. The effect of our military fire against troops placed in readiness by the enemy southeast of Arras and on both sides of Bapaume appreciably contributed toward their repulse.

The hottest points in the fighting were at Hendecourt and Noreuil, the shell crater field east of Bapaume and between Rancourt and Bouchavesnes. The enemy north of Hendecourt won ground in the direction of Cagnicourt. He was driven back to Hendecourt by our counterattack. Fighting took place for a long time around Noreuil. It remained in our possession.

On both sides of Vaulx-Vrancourt a tank attack failed. During this period the occupants of an airplane, Lieutenant Schweiffegor and Vice Sergeant Major Guenter, shot a tank into flames with their machine gun. Another was destroyed by artillery fire.

Southeast of Bapaume we repulsed an enemy attack the main weight of which was directed against Villers-au-Flos.

North of the Somme we brought the enemy, who since the early morning had pushed forward strong forces, to a standstill on the line of Sailly-Saillisel, St. Pierre-Vaast Wood, and east of Bouchavesnes and Mont St. Quentin.

Péronne was occupied by the enemy.

On both sides of Nesle the French continued to attack. After the strongest drumfire, they once more attempted, by means of deeply echeloned infantry attacks, to break through the canal position.

North of the Nesle-Ham railway line Infantry Regiment 56, under the leadership of Major von Loedbeke, made every enemy assault fail. In renewed attacks during the evening, in co-operation with a Hessian company, it drove the enemy out of its lines where he had penetrated them. Field artillery which advanced with the first line of infantry to counterattack played an important part in this success.

South of the Nesle-Ham railway lines Brandenburg and Silesian troops completely repulsed the enemy before their lines.

French attacks during the evening south of Libermont broke down.

On both sides of Noyon enemy infantry, after the heavy fighting of Aug. 31, which was productive of heavy losses for them, remained inactive. Also between the Oise and the Aisne fighting activity was restricted mostly to artillery duels.

Powerful enemy attacks on the Allette Plain and north of Soissons were repulsed.

AMERICANS INCREASE GAINS IN FLANDERS

Pass Eastward Through Voormezeele Aiding British in Routing German Rearguards.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Sept. 2, (Associated Press.)—American troops fighting with the British on the Flanders front made further progress today in the Voormezeele region.

The Americans have passed through Voormezeele in an easterly direction, overcoming stiff enemy resistance.

The British, assisted by the American troops, continue to advance in the Lys salient on the heels of the retiring Germans, driving the enemy rearguards before them. Doulieu and Le Verrier have been occupied.

Opposition developed near Steenwerck, but it was beaten down. The advance east of Kemmel continues. The British have gained ground toward Panbroek Moulin.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FLANDERS, Sept. 1, (Associated Press.)—In their first fighting in Belgium the Americans captured Voormezeele and several strong German positions in that immediate vicinity. On their entrance into Voormezeele the invaders found that all that remained of the town were piles of débris, for the shellfire had been so intense that hardly one brick was left standing upon another.

As the Americans advanced, the German rearguards, from what little cover remained, opened up with their machine guns, but these were quickly silenced without much trouble. Elsewhere in the same locality the Americans also advanced the line, keeping in contact with the retreating enemy.

Counterattacks by the Germans resulted in their gaining a little more than a slight foothold, which in every case was quickly loosened by British and American reattacks. In most places the Germans did not even get a foothold, for the advancing formations were met with hurricanes of fire, under which they melted away.

TORONTO WELCOMES AMERICAN SOLDIERS

Enthusiastic Crowds at the Exhibition Cheer a Visiting Battalion.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 2.—The spirit of patriotism in all Toronto citizens is burning more strongly than ever today as a result of the visit to the Canadian National Exhibition of a battalion of American soldiers. For several days this battalion will mingle with Toronto's people and knit still tighter the ties which bind these adjoining nations which are now fighting for a common cause.

Toronto is not what might be termed a wildly enthusiastic city, but yesterday the sight of the Americans parading around the exhibition grounds and in front of the grand stand brought forth cheer after cheer.

The battalion was not expected until this morning, so that not more than a handful of citizens was on hand to welcome it on arrival late yesterday. Sir Robert Borden was there, however, with T. A. Russell, President of the C. N. E.; Mayor Church, the Hon. Gideon Robertson, and C. A. B. Brown, and it was not many minutes before a cheering crowd assembled.

The Major commanding, with his officers, was introduced to the Premier of Canada and the other dignitaries, and officially welcomed.

The exhibition guests, with the staff officers, then adjourned to the Rosary Hall, where tea was served, while the men made preparations to mess.

About 7:30 o'clock the battalion formed, with their rifles on their shoulders, and marched through the grounds. The garrison battalion in the model camp was visited, and a march past carried out in front of the grand stand.

It was through a crowded avenue of cheering people that the battalion marched. Everywhere the marchers evoked favorable criticism, and the Stars and Stripes was applauded. As the battalion was passing the fountain Creatore's band broke into "God Save the King" while the battalion stood at attention. When the battalion paraded in front of the packed grand stand the acclaim that greeted them could be heard from one end of the exhibition grounds to the other.

After a further parade around the grounds the battalion was dismissed, and then the men enjoyed themselves for the rest of the evening.

There were 174,000 people at the exhibition today, which is probably a record for a single day's attendance at an annual exhibition.

CAPTURED 1,500, LOST 25.

Australians' Record in Storming and Drop Many Tons of Bombs.

LONDON, Sept. 2. — The Australians who captured Mont St. Quentin with 1,500 prisoners and thereby rendered the fall of Péronne inevitable accomplished the feat within an hour and with a loss to themselves of only twenty-five men, according to The Daily Mail's correspondent at British Headquarters in France.

Continuing his narrative of the achievements of the Australians, the correspondent says that the better part of three German divisions crumbled to pieces before one Australian unit. The Germans appeared to have felt some sort of nameless terror similar to that which takes possession of troops fighting against Indians in their native haunts.

The capture of Péronne, according to the corespondent, should turn the enemy's present line and hasten his retreat. He has now in this southern quarter only one good position to hold before he reaches the Hindenburg line from St. Quentin northward.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 prisoners were taken by the Australians in the vicinity of Péronne yesterday.

BAVARIAN KING TO GO TO BULGAR CAPITAL

German Kaiser's Visit to Ferdinand at Bad Nauheim Excites Curiosity.

SEPARATE ENVOYS TO SOFIA

Frankfurther Zeitung Finds in the Move a Useless Scheme for Taxing the National Budget.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Times Hague correspondent telegraphs that the German Kaiser's visit to the King of Bulgaria at Bad Nauheim excites curiosity there, since, according to a telegram to the Vossische Zeitung from Munich, Herr Dandl, the Bavarian Premier, who goes to Berlin for the settling of the Federal Council's Foreign Affairs Committee, which takes place on Monday, will thereafter go to Chiem to accompany the King of Bavaria on his journey to Bulgaria. The King of Bavaria proposes to remain five days in Sofia.

The Berlin correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung states that the Bavarian and Saxon Governments have decided to establish their own legations at Sofia. The creation of this diplomatic representation will be announced next week by a special decree. Bavaria will accredit its Vienna representative to Sofia, and Saxony will send a representative of its own to Sofia. The Berlin correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung says:

"The German Empire, according to the Constitution, is only represented abroad through the Kaiser, and, consequently, to have representatives of the Federal States in addition to those of the Empire, is nonsense. At best, they are a plaything for uselessly taxing the national budget. Abroad, however, they can also arouse and strengthen the belief that the German Empire is in reality not the firm and unified State it represents itself to be before the world."

VON HINTZE OFF TO VIENNA.

German Foreign Ministher to Confer Witih Burian on Poland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 2.—Admiral von Hintze, having returned to Berlin from headquarters, is leaving for Vienna today in order to discuss the Polish settlement with Count Burian. There are persistent rumors of Burian's fall, owing to his tenacity in clinging to the Austro-Polish settlement.

The Lokal Anzeiger says that America spares no expense for propaganda to show Russia the force and greatness of America. The paper speaks of a gigantic American film which is being prepared and will soon be given in Petrograd before the astonished public. The paper says the film cost a tremendous amount of money, which could better be used in fighting the cholera.

MEDICAL TREATMENT FOR CAILLAUX ORDERED

But Doctors Decide Prisoner's Continued Detention Would Not Be Dangerous.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The state of health of Caillaux, who has been detained in prison for several months pending completion of the magisterial investigation of the charges against him, has now been formally brought to the attention of Captain Bouchardon, the military court prosecutor, for investigation by the Magistrate in charge of the case.

The prison doctor, having observed that Caillaux had grown much thinner and was subject to abnormally high color, diagnosed that he was suffering from distension of the arteries. In conjunction with Dr. Souquet, an eminent specialist, the prison medical officer formally reported that it was necessary that Caillaux undergo treatment with high frequency electric currents according to the Alsonval method.

On receiving reports to this effect from the prison doctor and Captain Bouchardon, three professors were nominated by the dean of the medical profession in Paris to examine the patient. They reported that the condition of Caillaux was not sufficiently serious to render continued detention dangerous, and advised that he be allowed to take more exercise and follow the Alsonval treatment, which, they suggested, might be administered in the Val de Grace Military Hospital.

Captain Bouchardon has now requested the three professors to state whether it is not possible that the treatment be applied to Caillaux at the Santé Prison, and he is now awaiting their reply. It is reported that Captain Bouchardon purposes to authorize Caillaux to spend a much longer period daily in the prison gardens.

TOLD TO SINK EVERYTHING.

U-Boat Captain Says Orders Were Changed Since He Left Germany.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 2.—The German submarine operating among the fishing fleet off the Nova Scotia coast is camouflaged with large wavelike lines, according to Captain Manuel Quadros of the American fishing schooner Rush, sunk by the U-boat a week ago. Captain Quadros, who, with nineteen members of his crew, reached his home here tonight, said that the undersea craft was painted dark gray and that for several feet above the waterline the disguising marks were invisible. The U-boat, he said, was about 250 feet in length.

Captain Quadros and three of his men were aboard the enemy craft for about three hours and had a long conversation with its commander, who spoke excellent English and Portuguese. He told the fishermen that there were American magazines and newspapers on the U-boat, and he accused the newspapers of distorting the truth about the submarines. He said that when his vessel left Germany it was under instructions to sink only three-masters, but that because of the attitude of the American press orders had come to the U-boat by wireless to sink everything in sight.

The submarine commander had a list of vessels he had sunk. It was headed by the American schooner Progress, one of eight fishermen sent to the bottom off Nantucket early in August. In response to a query by Captain Quadros, the commander said he did not have on his list the Gloucester schooners Rob Roy and Annie Perry, sunk off the Nova Scotia coast a short time later.

his captors. But there entered a German officer who had commanded this Hun before both were captured. The German private turned to the officer and greeted him with a most horrible grimace and a joyful taunt. This, one could see, was thoroughly heartfelt.

There has been comparative quiet along the Vesle for the last five days.

Took 555 Prisoners.

Sept. 1. — Between the Oise and the Aisne the Americans have today cleared out a large ravine west of Terny-Sorny and made a good advance eastward into the western plateau north of the Aisne, on the further half of which lies the German Chemin des Dames position. In the operation we took 555 prisoners.

We are moving forward in excellent liaison with the French on both sides, who to date have established themselves in strong positions on the Soissons-St. Quentin highway. A little southeast the French are intrenched on the Soissons-Laon railroad on the edge of the plateau north of Crouy.

The Americans' success today is the fruit of bitter fighting in the last four days, when the Germans threw counterattack after counterattack against them. The boche resistance today was markedly less than in the last four days, which indicates that the repeated efforts of the French and Americans north of Soissons have simply overcome the German resistance. Practically no artillery fire against our positions took place on this sector today, which indicates that the Germans are pulling back their artillery.

American work against the German machine guns north of Soissons has shown great improvement over our tactics against the same defense north of the Marne. Proportionately to the troops engaged, our losses from this boche weapon have been much less between the Oise and the Aisne than in the Ourcq fighting.

HURRICANE FIRE AT JUVIGNY.

Allied Guns Roared Continuously For More Than an Hour.

By CAMERON MACKENZIE.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 1.—The capture of Juvigny by American troops on Friday night was a difficult and singularly complete job. This most solid operation was of a kind with which the English, Scotch, Canadian, and Australian troops have long been familiar. The taking of Juvigny meant fighting over a battleground of hopelessly warworn terrain and beating a way into the shell of the collapsed town, where every atom of every ruin, as it were, spat machine gun bullets.

The town lay half protected beneath the roll of a gradually sloping hill, the crest of which could at a second's warning be enveloped in a perfect haze of flying iron. There was no profit in exploiting courage that would have taken the Americans straight over the top of the rising land and into the town, and it was by a kind of Vimy Ridge or Somme adaptation of Indian fighting that the attack was made. Of course, there was ample artillery preparation. During this period I was not far from the American guns, and for perhaps an hour and a half the fire seemed continuous, the blast of any one gun being completely swallowed in the solid roar and hurricane of all.

The Huns knew what was coming, for the ridge that shelters Juvigny began to smoke black and horrifically, as if just over the hill were hundreds of factory chimneys. This commonplace of modern war continued into dusk of the evening, and even then only abated rather than ceased. Meanwhile the American lads had been on the move; two contingents of them, crawling, were working their way from shell-pit to shattered pill-box, painfully, over the crest and toward the town. It was not a direct attack, it was an encircling movement in which hundreds of men for some hours reduced themselves in manouevring to the proportion of prairie dogs.

The two columns met. The meeting place was upon the road behind the town, where both lines managed by virtue of wide detours to arrive comparatively unobserved. That is, several hundred machine guns were assiduously sputtering at them, but the German artillery proper had not yet searched them out.

The time had now come to make a rush for it, and the doughboys did. With their little cases of bombs they swept into Juvigny to mop it up. The American artillery let up. The German fire descended.

There were, prisoners said afterwards, about 1,000 Huns in the town when the operation commenced. Many had been killed before the attackers arrived. Those who were left resisted stoutly with machine guns, and there was not a little bayonet fighting in the streets. Many of the Germans sought refuge in certain natural caves which lie beneath Juvigny. Bombs which the Americans rained into the moist darkness of those curious grottoes wrought the most gruesome havoc.

All through the fresh late Summer evening the slaughter went on. The upshot of the matter was that along about midnight the doughboys marched back 250 prisoners. Aside from these, it is not believed that a Hun escaped alive from the town. Until this morning no word of a counterattack upon Juvigny has been received. The enemy is established upon the hills further eastward, and, save for artillery protests, has apparently allowed possession of the place to pass without further dispute.

TELLS OF BATTLE AS SEEN FROM AIR

outskirts. I gave them a round of bullets from 50 meters, and several dropped, but the fire from the villa beyond the cemetery was very hot, and I didn't wait long. I circled back over the canal and flew along it, raking the edge of the wood below where the first battery of tanks had crossed. As I came to that point, I saw a third group make the crossing. One on the left ambled along the bank and pushed just above the tank in the mud.

"The next time I passed, a few minutes later, they had attached a steel hawser and were tugging him out, with shells falling all around. I saw no more there, but heard afterward that they got him out all right, and both managed to reach the village.

Airmen Help the Infantry.

"The patrol leader then signaled us to cover the village in close order, as there were enemy planes above. Two tanks were on the road at the southern end beyond the cemetery, firing at the villa on their left that had worried me. We co-operated, and a moment later the infantry rushed the place and went on beyond. I saw no boches run away, so I guess the defenders had short shrift.

"By this time the French were well established on the crest, but fighting in the houses and gardens still continued.

"Then my leader rose; we followed, flying north. At 800 meters I ran into a cloudbank and lost touch. When I emerged I could see my comrades nowhere, and while getting height to look for them, three boches piqued on me simultaneously.

"It was very hot for the next few seconds, but I managed to dodge them finally, thanks to another cloud. Suddenly I found my engine weakening. A bullet had hit something vital. Then it died completely, and the only thing to do was to volplane for a landing. I reached the field west of the canal, but it was bumpy, and the machine 'caputed.' Ia was stunned for a moment, but came to just as a group of chasseurs began extricating me from the débris.

"I had hardly a scratch, save for this arm disjointed. My machine was badly smashed—it was lucky it didn't catch fire—so I reckon by the time a new one's tuned up I'll just be about ready to fly again. The surgeon said my arm would be stiff for three weeks, but I hope to get back on the job in ten days at the outside."

FIERCE STRUGGLE FOR OISE VALLEY

by persistence, it has been able at several points to cross the Somme Canal, to reach the river, and to send small parties over it, while the east side of the loop of the Nord Canal between Campagne and Beaurains has, as reported last night, been occupied, with the villages of Campagne and Chevilly and the hill beyond them called Le Chapitre.

Another French push commenced yesterday and continued today in what may be called the Nesle loop, where the Somme and Nesle-Noyon Canals are linked by the waters of the Ingon between the hamlets of Rouy and Quiquery. On the east side of this loop, two miles beyond Nesle, there rises a broad, bare plateau, known only by the name on the staff maps as Hill 77. The old railway from Boulogne to Switzerland and the highroad from Nesle to Ham cross it, and with three water courses running around its western slopes it blocks us off from the Somme over a space of about ten miles. It is a powerful position, which Hutier would not lightly yield, but the task of reducing it has been aided by the earlier thrusts by which Rouille Petit on the north and Breuil on the south had been taken.

Yesterday forces were sent forward all around the loop in a preparatory advance. Some got across the Ingon by the broken railway and road bridges, and others found their way over the marshes. By evening a sufficient number of men had reached the lower slopes of the plateau to permit the commencement of a regular attack. This was preceded by a destructive artillery fire on the chief centres of the enemy resistance. Fighting continued throughout last night, every yard of French advance being contested stoutly while any considerable gain was challenged by local counterattacks. This morning General Debeney was pressing the enemy, particularly on his flanks above Rouy and east of Quiquery.

The splendid British successes which are watched with enthusiasm by all the French armies do not yet seem, indeed, to have weakened the enemy's defense of our part of the Somme line. Two strong attacks were made last night on our positions north of the village of Campagne, and Quesnoy Wood and the town of Noyon were subject to heavy gunfire. At General Mangin's centre across the Ailette, we began creeping forward in the woods west of Couchy le Château. The wooded hill east of Pont St. Mard, marked 124, which will be a useful observatory, was carried by assault this morning.

There is good reason to think the enemy suffered exorbitant losses by this purely defensive action of the last week. A battalion of effectives, which was uniformly organized at 980 men before the German offensive in March last, was reduced at the beginning of July to 880 men, and on July 30 the German Staff asked various commanders their opinion of whether it should not then be reduced to 650 and whether the four companies, where they existed, should not be abolished. This, it is known, has been done in many cases. There are regiments reduced to two battalions having each only 600 fit men. The 1919 class appears to be now entirely engaged and the list of divisions and regiments dissolved is steadily increasing.

BRITISH LABOR MEN CORDIAL TO GOMPERS

Rousing Reception to American Leader at Opening of Trade Union Congress.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DERBY, Sept. 2.—"A superlatively respectable and British gathering" would have been a very apt comment of visitors to the first session of the Jubilee Trade Union Congress in Derby this morning. In appearance there is nothing about the thousand or so delegates to distinguish them from members of either House of Parliament, and even at this time of day there are so few women delegates that their presence might easily have been overlooked.

The President of the Congress, Mr. Ogden of the Weavers' Amalgamation, has a much more refined and attenuated voice than either the Lord Chancellor or the Speaker of the House of Commons, and not more than half the delegates, if so many, could at any time hear, or perhaps one should say overhear, a word that he uttered. Everybody longed to see Will Thorne in the chair, as they heard that gentleman's reverberating thunders in the humble character of teller from one of the side galleries, but the delegates all suffered "the still small voice" of the President with great good humor, and when he whispered a protest, as he did many times, that he was "speaking up," the delegates expressed their gratitude in cheers and laughter.

Samuel Gompers was on the platform and the first Congress demonstration was made when the President mentioned his name, the delegates expressing by hand and voice a most cordial welcome.

The Congress began proceedings by sending a message of "appreciation and encouragement to all our fighting forces." In his address the President deprecated Havelock Wilson's resolution for the setting up of a new trade union labor party, indicated a partiality for the guild of socialism, advocated an international labor conference before peace negotiations were begun, and, while supporting the war by the sword, held there were war measures supplementary to those of the sword which should be pursued at the same time.

DERBY, England, Sept. 2.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, met with a rousing reception this morning when he arrived at Central Hall for the annual Trades Union Congress. It was by far the most representative congress ever held by members of the British Labor Party, upward of 800 delegates being present.

President J. W. Ogden, in opening the congress, told the delegates it was the duty of workers to take advantage of every opportunity that might present itself for a termination of the war. That did not mean, however, he said, that the seeker of peace sought a dishonorable peace or a peace at any price, but a peace that would secure for future generations immunity from the present horrors.

The speaker deplored the refusal of the Government to issue passports for an international labor and social conference. He added that the aim of the workers should be to get together as a means of settling disputes. That was why he advocated internationalism between the workers of the world.

To Honor Dead Y. M. C. A. Worker.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, L. I., Sept. 2.—A tablet in honor of Miss Winona Caroline Martin, the Y. M. C. A. worker from here who was killed last March in Paris when the Germans bombed a hospital in which she was staying, will be unveiled next Sunday afternoon at the Public Library.

ALLIES MUST POOL EVERYTHING NOW

allies, such as Belgium, have been greater than our own, greater than those of our friends in America. But that makes all the more necessary the pooling of our resources. If our sacrifices are to be in any degree equal, the only solution is common allied control of all the resources of the Allies.

"The key of allied control is allied shipping. But, though it is of the greatest importance that you should have common allied control of shipping, yet even that cannot be made perfect unless you have also full consideration of the allied needs.

"The principal organization for which we are pressing is control of allied shipping and complete examination and control of allied needs, and also of allied resources to supply those needs. It is the co-ordination of the allied needs and allied resources with allied shipping which would make an overwhelming economic power of the alliance to which we all belong.

A Great Deal Accomplished.

"We have done a great deal. It is well that everybody should know, even that our enemies should know, how much we have done. The best example of our efforts in the matter of allied need and supply has been the wheat executive. It has done wonderful work. Not many months ago there were many of us who were feeling a deep anxiety about the maintenance of the food supplies of the allied nations.

"Now by the efforts of the wheat executive it is a certainty that we will be able to reach the next harvest. The danger of starvation has been conjured away and much more than that has been accomplished. We have secured the guarantee of a fair distribution of allied resources among the Allies. We have by co-ordinated allied efforts in this respect saved immensely in our shipping expenditures. Each allied country gets its supply from its nearest allied source. Italy gets her supply from India, we get ours from the American continent, and an immense saving in allied shipping has been accomplished. For that great effort there are no two people who are entitled to greater credit than Etienne Clementel, Minister of Commerce of France, and Sir John Beale, President of the Board of Allied Food Controllers.

"But our efforts have not stopped there. Quite recently we established the Food Council, which brings together all of the various committees engaged in food supply and the consideration of food needs. We also established the Munitions Council, which sits in Paris, and which brings together all of the allied needs in the matter of munitions. We cannot do more in this council than to distribute in the best way possible our shipping resources. The demand is even now greater than the supply. We say with great truth that the submarine attack upon our shipping has been a failure. We can feed our people and we shall go on being able to feed our people. We can transport across the sea vast armies to fight the Germans, and submarines are powerless to stop us.

"But, admitting all that, rejoicing in all of that, our shipping is not large enough to deal with the whole of the effort that we might make if it were larger.

"Recently to meet the German attack we and our other Allies and our American friends made a great effort to transport large numbers of American soldiers to France. We are profoundly grateful to the Americans for all of the gallant efforts they made then. We are profoundly grateful to our seamen and to our Allies for all of the efforts they made to transport them. It would be living in a fool's paradise to suppose that that effort cost us nothing. It cost us a very great deal. It meant a great diminution in imports into this and other allied countries. Ships were taken from other trades and other work. I will not say they were taken from essential work, because we had got on without it, but they could only be taken from that work by inflicting great hardships and necessities on the people.

The Need of Sacrifice.

"We have made our sacrifices in this country as other people have made perhaps in a greater degree in other countries. We do not grudge anything we have done for the common purpose, but I do want to impress upon my hearers that the resources of our shipping are strictly limited, and if we wish to strengthen ourselves against the common foe we must continue to endure hardships, every one of us in the allied countries. Every saving means larger armies and an earlier peace.

"After all, the hardships we are enduring are as nothing compared to those to which our enemies are subjected. I do not want to seem even to gloat over the hardships inflicted upon the enemy populations, but it is right to remind ourselves from time to time that they who fight in a bad cause have endured for years suffering compared to which ours are light indeed. If they can do that for their cause, surely we can afford to suffer more or less hardships than they for ours.

"I am satisfied that we shall not be found wanting. The only thing that is necessary is that we should bind ourselves together to secure the greatest possible result for our effort. We see on the field of battle what magnificent results have followed from the united command.

"I do not say it is possible to put the whole economic resources of the Allies under the command of any one man. I am not sure there is such a man in existence, but I do say if we could only bring together in some similar fashion the whole of our economic forces the strength of the alliance would be prodigiously increased.

"There must be no holding back, no desire to withhold any portion of our economic effort. That is the cause for which the Allied Maritime Transport Council exists. The machinery which we build up in time of war will last, let us hope, beyond the conclusion of the war. This great economic alliance and the machinery we are calling into existence in pursuance of it may be, if we are worthy of our calling, turned to uses of peace."

High Tribute to Page.

In proposing a toast to the allied sovereigns and the Presidents of the allied republics, Lord Robert Cecil made the following reference to Ambassador Page:

"I trust you will permit me to say one word on a subject which has no direct relation to the toast. We have learned that Mr. Page has been compelled by ill health to resign. It would not be right for me to dwell on the great personal blow that this was to me. A very valued friendship has been interrupted by a cause which must give us all the deepest pain.

"Apart from personal consideration we shall all agree that Great Britain and all the Allies have suffered a great loss in the termination of this great career. It seems a long time ago, in the dim and distant past, when America was not yet a co-belligerent. That time did exist, and very difficult times there were. During that period I remember very well feeling how anxious these times were. One felt like a man groping his way along a ridge on a high precipice with a somewhat rocky wall on one side and an abyss on the other. A false step might have brought the whole allied cause to destruction.

"During all that time we had as our guide Mr. Page, who warned us when we were getting too near the abyss and shielded us from the somewhat rocky projections of national feeling and sentiment. And if we avoided disaster, the credit is due very largely to the Ambassador. While he always remained a good American, he always was a very good friend of Great Britain.

"Now, thank Heaven, we are on smoother ground. But even so we shall greatly miss his unfailing tact, good temper, broad wisdom, sympathy, great courage, and insight. When the history of this period comes to be written no small place will be alloted in the gallery of those who performed their part in this great struggle for freedom and justice to that good fellow and great Ambassador, Walter Hines Page."

Raymond Stevens, American delegate to the council, responding to the toast, emphasized that, if the war was fought to a complete victory and if the proper peace was written when victory was achieved, the war might well be worth all of the sacrifices which it cost the world.

"We have learned a great deal in the four years of the war about ourselves and about our allies," Mr. Stevens said.

"This war can only be won by complete co-epartion in all its phases of the national activity of the Allies.

"This is a matter of utmost difficulty, but it is also a matter of utmost value for the future of the nations of the world. For the nations to be compelled to get close to each other and to realize their common needs and their sacrifices is the most valuable thing that could happen in international relations, because misunderstandings and frictions occur largely out of ignorance more than out of the natural ill-will of mankind.

"I hope that these bodies we are now building up to exercise joint control over the essential resources of the Allies may continue in some form after the war and become a part of the machinery to preserve peace."

U-BOAT OFF NANTUCKET.

Lightship Commander Tells of Seeing It on the Surface.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 2.—When the Nantucket Shoals Lightship put in here tonight for repairs, Captain Studley and members of the crew told of watching a submarine which they believed to be a German boat near the lightship last Sunday morning. They said that the submarine came close to the lightship and that, believing that their vessel was about to be sunk, they made all preparations for abandoning it.

The submarine, however, did not hail the lightship, and soon drew off until it reached a point about three miles to the northeast, where it lay on the surface for half an hour. Then it submerged and nothing more was seen of it.

Captain Studley said that although the vessel flew no flag he was convinced that it was a German U-boat.

Estimates of the Crops from 10 to 15 Per Cent. Higher.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 2.—An official German crop report estimates the yield this year at from 10 to 15 per cent. above that of 1917.

The area planted with early potatoes was a fifth greater than in 1917 and that with late potatoes also showed an increase.

Explosion Kills Germans in Odessa.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 2.—A Kiev dispatch received here reports that a disastrous explosion occurred in Odessa last Saturday. The dispatch says a number of Austro-German officers and men were killed and that a portion of one of the suburbs of Odessa was destroyed.

GOT AMERICAN LEG HE HAD PRAYED FOR

Giuseppe, Helpless in Italian Hospital, Begged Madonna for Assistance.

AMERICAN WOMAN ANSWERS

Nearly $1,000 Was Raised Here, and Now Italian Soldiers Are Able to Walk Again.

How an Italian soldier's prayer to the Madonna for a wooden leg was answered by a group of Americans in New York is a story which Mrs. Rebekah Crawford of 43 West Ninety-third Street received from Rome, and with which she was able to inspire contributions of hundreds of dollars which were converted into the purchase of wooden legs, ont only for the wounded Italian peasant who made the original prayer, but also to a number of his bed-ridden comrades. The tsory ran thus:

An Italian named Giuseppe, wounded at the Trentino front, lay helpless in a hospital in Rome. He prayed to the Madonna for American legs, because the fame of Filippo at Villa Mirafiori, lent as a hospital by the American Academy at Robe, had spread throughout the city. With American legs Filippo could hop up and down stairs, he could ride a bicycle, and could even runon them. He was the envy of every crippled soldier in the hospitals of Rome.

Three successive nights Giuseppe prayed. Three long days h elay in his chair watching and waiting for the Madonna's answer. Two comrades, one on either side of him, waited with him. On the fourth day one of the visitors, an American woman, hearing the story, said to Giuseppe: "I'll get you American legs."

The woman was Miss Linda Clarke Smith, who, ever since the war began, has been working with wounded soldiers in Italy. She wrote the story of Guiseppe's prayer to Miss Rebekah Crawford in this city, who collected close to $1,000 to purchase American legs for crippled soldiers in Rome. The cost of a leg is $60 and an arm $250.

The French and the British are ordering large quantities of these artificial members from America and it was a long time before the order from Italy could be filled. In the meanwhile, Miss Crawford has reveived letters from Italian wounded soldiers, full of gratitude for the gift of the wooden legs which had been sent to them. Thus runs one letter from Pietro Paurtzaneo, a Sicilian peasant, whose brother was killed in the war. Miss Crawford received the following letter of gratitude for the wooden leg that had been sent to him.

> Most Gentle Lady: I have a great desire of showing you my immense gratitude for the interest that you take in me. May the good and merciful God recompense you with great happiness not only for yourself, but for all your dear ones.
> Only one thing I regret, that is in finding myself in such a condition that I am unable to do anything for you, but instead, I must ask help, being in such a miserable condition. But, if the Lord will aid me find work and earn a living, I hope one day to be able in some way to prove my gratitude.
> Respectfully with regards, Belive me,
> Yours obediently,
> PIETRO PAURTZANEO.

Pietro has another brother who is fighting in the war, so that with his wooden legs he hopes to be able to go back to his village and support his infirm parents.

DANIELS FAVORS POWER BILL

Urges Chairman Sims to Hasten Passage of the Measure.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Early passage of the pending emergency power bill, which would authorize the President to expend $200,000,000 in acquiring and building new electric plants or extending facilities of existing private plants, was urged by Secretary Daniels today in a letter to Chairman Sims of the House Commerce Committee.

"I have been in conference with B. M. Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board, the Secretary of War and others with regard to the Power bill now before Congress," Mr. Daniels wrote, "the question of securing ample power for the ever increasing contracts for the navy as well as for the Shipping Board and other war industrnies is one that gives us much concern.

"It is essential that ample power be supplied, and there is no adequate provision in any of the appropriations of the navy for financing agencies to secure the additional power facilities. The legislation proposed in your bill would confer this authority and give the appropriation necessary, and I trust it will come along at an early date."

Swedish-Americans Pledge Loyalty.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 2.—The Massachusetts District Lodge, Order of Vasa, representing 8,860 members of Swedish birth, assembled in this city for the nineteenth annual convention, passed the following resolution at their business meeting today: "To President Woodrow Wilson: Resolved, that we pledge our support and loyalty to our Government in the fight for democracy and freedom."

CARRANZA AFFIRMS MEXICO'S NEUTRALITY

Declares Republic's Honor Has Been Upheld in Exchanges with the United States.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 2.—President Carranza, in his address to Congress last night on the occasion of the convening of the twenty-eighth session of the legislative body, dwelt at length on internal and foreign questions as they affect the republic.

The President declared it was the determination of Mexico to maintain the strictest neutrality in the world war, and that this neutrality had been rigidly observed. He said the Administration had upheld Mexico's right to sovereignty in the situations brought by the presence of American warships in Mexican waters and the enlistment in the United States of citizens of Mexican origin. He also defended the course of the republic in the issuance of Presidential decrees for the carrying out of Article 27 of the Constitution providing for the nationalization of oil lands.

The neutrality policy of Mexico, the President said, had been adhered to by a major part of the Mexican citizenry, and the Government had met the various critical situations with complete regard to national honor. Mexico's honor and sovereignty had equally been upheld against acts directed against Mexican residents in the United States by the American authorities in the recruiting of Mexicans for the United States Army, and finally in the Nogales incident in the latter part of August, which the President asserted was merely a local disturbance.

The diplomatic relations with Cuba were characterized as being without precedent in diplomatic history. They had resulted in the absence of friction in a misunderstanding between the two republics.

The Mexican Government, the message continued, had answered satisfactorily and maintained with firmness its rights against the diplomatic protests and representations of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Belgium with regard to the petroleum question. The basis for the refusal to confirm the proposed commercial agreement between Mexico and the United States, known as the Nieto-Fletcher agreement, was given as the inclusion in the projected agreement of clauses contrary to Mexico's right, by the intimation that this rejection was connected with references apparently included in measures which were deemed contrary to Mexico's sovereignty.

With regard to the other Government departments the President asserted that under the new plan for the pacification of the country, with the President as active Commander in Chief and the nation divided into different military zones under Generals of division, opposition to the Government has been overcome.

Reporting on the Treasury Department, the President said financial conditions, despite the war, were improving. The revenue from export taxes on oil for the nine months ended May 31, 1918, were given as 5,900,000 pesos. Metals yielded 7,500,000 pesos, and other articles 45,300,000 pesos.

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

FIREMEN EVERY TEN FEET
It's expensive to be scared into sprinkler protection

If you are not conscious of your factory fire risk, it is only good fortune that has spared you the experience of others who delayed their sprinkler protection until it was too late.

It's cheaper to take the lesson of others, especially when you can let your sprinkler equipment pay for itself. Let us explain.

The War, Washington And Stein-Bloch Styles

THE minister who, having received a call to Minneapolis, took his text from St. Paul, lacked the gift of appropriateness to place and circumstance.

My Autumn Patterns in Stein-Bloch Suits, $35 to $65, have been expressly culled for their appropriateness to the simple fashions imposed by the times and the authorities.

With fashions leveled to standardized types, Stein-Bloch Tailoring assumes added importance and assures silent smartness.

How About YOUR Advertising

THERE are not a few advertisers today whose advertising policy is exactly the same as it was in pre-war times and yet every other condition of their business has changed.

Their manufacturing methods have been revised; their selling plans have been reorganized, but their advertising runs in the same old groove.

If it occurs to you that the new order of things demands more originality—more intensive selling power in your advertising—

LIEUT. COL. ADAMS WAS CITED TWICE

Officer Now Wounded Fought at Belleau Wood and Dormans with Gallantry.

HELPED BUILD CAMP MILLS

Served as Quartermaster There and Went Abroad with Baker—Other Casualties.

Lieut. Col. Frank Howard Adams of 611 Pacific Street, Atlantic City, N. J., mentioned among the wounded in France, was one of the army officers who helped construct Camp Mills, L. I., later serving as Quartermaster at that training camp. He was promoted from Major for his work there. He went to France last February with staff officers who accompanied Secretary Baker. Later he was sent to a staff officers' training school, and took the fourth highest honors at graduation.

Colonel Adams saw his first active service as an observer for the American Army with the French General Staff. He was cited twice for bravery under fire when placed in an American regiment. He participated in the battle of Belleau Wood from June 15 to June 21, and was recommended for the Congressional medal by Colonel Robert H. G. Kelton because "Lieut. Col. Adams, as commander of the 1st Battalion, was on duty continuously for twenty hours, day and night, at all times in grave danger. His duties required that he move from point to point to keep himself informed as to the progress of events. His presence greatly strengthened the morale of his men."

Later Colonel Adams was cited because "with heroic courage and daring under intense shell fire he repeatedly rallied disorganized troops and other units and returned them to the lines where they were able to render valuable service."

This was in the battle of July 15, at Dormans. He was gassed July 23, according to word received by his wife, who has no word of further injuries. Under date of Aug. 3 he wrote he was leaving on a two-week tour of the lines after recovering in the hospital from gas.

Captain John T. Fisher, severely wounded, commands a Regular Army company. His home is at 2,150 Larkin Street, San Francisco.

Lieutenant Vivian E. Roberts, missing, was in Company F, 151st Machine Gun Battalion, Rainbow Division. He is a son of Mrs. J. D. Roberts of Macon, Ga.

Lieutenant Oscar B. Nelson, wounded, went to France with Company G, 168th Infantry, Rainbow Division. He is a son of Jacob Nelson of Ottumwa, Iowa.

Lieutenant Earl C. Horan, wounded, is a son of the late James C. Horan of Brooklyn. In a letter to his wife, who lives at 103 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn, he wrote that he had been wounded in the head and arm. Lieutenant Horan is 24 years old, a graduate of Columbia University, and a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He is a Plattsburg graduate, and is in Company I, 39th Infantry.

Lieutenant Solomon Rubel, killed in action, was third in command of Company G, 168th Infantry, which is the Iowa unit of the Rainbow Division. His home was at 168 Lenox Avenue, this city. Lieutenant Rubel was graduated from the first Plattsburg camp of 1917. He was born in Hungary, and was a member of the Hungarian Republican Club of New York. His brother is a private in the 107th Infantry, Camp Upton Division.

John Knopf, severely wounded, is a son of Mrs. J. Knopf of 576 Tenth Avenue. He was gassed last April. He is in Company M, 9th Infantry.

Ralph La Forgia, wounded, went to France with the 308th Infantry, 77th Division. He is 27 years old, and is a brother of Michael La Forgia of 859 Jackson Avenue, the Bronx.

Morris Grabow, who has died of wounds, was a brother of the Misses M. and B. Grabow of 219 Henry Street. He went to France with the 102d Infantry, New England Division.

Lewis H. Gunnell, Jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Gunnell of 149 Washington Avenue, Arlington, N. J., has been wounded. He is a member of Company I, 165th Infantry. A brother, Private Benjamin E. Gunnell of the Marines, was killed in action on July 28.

Hobart L. S. Crofut, reported missing, is a regular army veteran. His mother, who lives at 80 Montclair Avenue, Newark, believes the report that he is missing is an error. The War Department notice to her stated that Crofut was missing since July 23. On Aug. 4 he wrote he was wounded and in a French base hospital.

William C. Gordon, a son of James Gordon of 1,334 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, has been wounded. He is in Company D, 165th Infantry, and is a graduate of the Manual Training High School.

Corporal Edward P. Lynch, killed, was a son of Mrs. M. Lynch, a widow, of 454 West Twenty-fifth Street. He was 21 years old. He enlisted in the 69th Regiment, and went with that unit to the Rainbow Division. He was a member of Company H, 165th Infantry, and was an only son. He was a first cousin of Lieutenant Joseph Nash of the 165th.

"If I had any more sons," said Mrs. Lynch yesterday, "I would glory in their going forward in a cause such as this."

Thomas J. Reaney, Jr., who has died of wounds received on Aug. 15, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Reaney of 53 Van Dam Street. He was a graduate of La Salle Academy, and went to France with Company K, 306th Infantry, Camp Upton Division.

Patrick Hourican, killed, was of the Camp Upton Division. When drafted he lived at 301 East Sixty-ninth Street. His parents are in Ireland.

Abraham I. Levy, wounded, is a Camp Upton soldier. His parents live at 62 East 107th Street.

William McGonigle, killed, was 26 years old, and went to France with the 302d Engineers, Camp Upton Division. He was a brother of Mrs. Bridget Doyle of 236 Willis Avenue, the Bronx.

Henry Bromberg, killed, was also in the 302d Engineers. His home was at 842 Hewitt Place, the Bronx.

Pierce R. Carmack, wounded, is a member of a well-known Tennessee family of that name. He was living in New York when he enlisted in the 9th Infantry last year. He is engaged to marry Miss Alice McConnell of 559 West Thirtieth Street.

Corporal Jacob Pincus, killed, was in the 308th Infantry. He was 23 years old, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Pincus of 336 Christopher Avenue, Brooklyn.

Sergeant Arthur A. Dobson, wounded, is a member of Company A, 47th Infantry. He is the only son of Mrs. M. L. Dodson of 45 St. Nicholas Place. He recently wrote to his mother that he was soon to be promoted to Second Lieutenant.

George H. Wendel, killed, was 23 years old and lived, when drafted into the Camp Upton division last year, at 977 Decatur Street, Brooklyn. He was in Company E, 308th Infantry.

William Tenchever, killed on Aug. 14, was in Company A, 305th Infantry. His home was in Maspeth, L. I. He is survived by a wife and a child 5 weeks old.

Samuel Seidowitz, who has been killed, was in Company K, 306th Infantry. His parents live at 71 East Fifth Street.

Anthony Caracci of 204 Johnson Avenue, Brooklyn, wrote home several days ago that he had a new "forwarding address," Base Hospital No. 20, but in the letter he said nothing about having been wounded in action on July 16. His mother has received notification from the War Department that he was wounded. Caracci was drafted Sept. 22, and four months later went to France. He is a member of Company L, 30th Infantry.

Timothy A. Harrington of 63 Evergreen Street, Bayonne, N. J., killed in action, was 25 years old and was a carpenter before joining the army. He enlisted last February.

Michael Laurito of 942 Grant Street, Brooklyn, was wounded in the left hand "going over the top" on July 24. He wrote to his wife that "our division in a big push captured over 1,400 Germans." Laurito before he was drafted was a furniture maker. He is a member of Company F, 4th Infantry, and trained at Camp Upton.

RED CROSS WORK IN ITALY.

Conducting Activities in 90 Cities, with 43 Workshops.

The Department of Civil Afiars, American Red Cross in Italy, according to information which has reached the United States Department of Labor, is conducting activities in ninety cities, towns, and villages. It has forty-three workshops employing more than 2,600 women who produced in one month [illegible] garments.

Fourteen workshops of various kinds are maintained and these employ several hundred men and women. A feature of the work is the provisoin for the care of the children. The records show that 2,258 children are being looked after. Five asylums and several schools for children are supported. Milk is obtained for undernourished babies and 750 tons of white flour for bread for children had been distributed.

GERMANS HOLD 500 AMERICANS CAPTIVE

Major Browne, U. S. M. C., Says They Are Well Taken Care Of.

Only One Prisoner Was Quartered Underground, and Spanish Minister Had This Corrected.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 2.—Among the passengers who arrived today from abroad was Major Robert S. Browne of the United States Medical Corps, who went into Switzerland in April with the American Red Cross to establish depots for the supply of food and keeping in touch with American prisoners in Germany. When he left there early last month, the Major said, there were about 500 American prisoners in Germany, who were mostly confined in camps in Northern Germany and West Prussia, and the organization was in touch with them either by letter or by telegram.

"The soldiers," he continued, "were well taken care of and there was only one case of an American prisoner being quartered underground. Arrangements had been made through the Spanish Minister at Berne to have this corrected."

Major Browne added that during his stay in Switzerland the food conditions in Germany were described to him as terrible. The majority of the civilian population had scarcely tasted meat since January, and the principal staple food product was black bread made of rye and all kinds of queer things which could not be determined by the analysts in Switzerland. The ration is now 180 gramms a day instead of 300 gramms, which was served out up to the end of 1917. Occasionally the people may get an egg, fish three times a week, and thin vegetable soup daily, with acorn coffee. In Austria, the Major was informed, the food conditions were much worse than in Germany.

"The American Red Cross has established a canteen at Bachs," Major Browne continued, "to supply food and medical comforts to the Italian prisoners exchanged from Austria. The condition of these men when they arrive there is something frightful, and the death rate is from three to five a day from weakness caused by want. At one camp in Austria there were 25,000 Italian prisoners all suffering from tuberculosis and the death rate was thirty to forty a day.

"The American Red Cross also established a cateen at Basle in Switzerland to take care of the refugees sent out of the conquered territories by the Huns. All the reports that you may have read of the treatment of these people driven from Northern France cannot exaggerate the condition I saw them in at Basle. Many of the women and children had been without food for two or three days when they arrived. You can have some idea of the number of these refugees by the fact that 400,000 had been registered passing through Avion, the Austrian frontier station, up till the end of July."

AIRCRAFT BOARD NEEDS MEN

Accountants and Clerks in Draft May Apply for Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The Bureau of Aircraft Production has been authorized to make a limited number of voluntary inductions of men registered under the present draft. An urgent need exists for accountants and manufacturing cost clerks, who have had either office or factory experience. Induction is open only to men in Class 1A, who are classified for limited service or who are in the remediable group, and to men placed in deferred classes on account of dependency.

The work to which applicants will be assigned is declared to be not only of great service to the Government in the production of airplanes, but it will prove of benefit as well to the individual in the training which he will receive. Applicants should communicate with the Personnel Officer, Finance Division, Bureau of Aircraft Production, 119 D Street, Washington, D. C.

Draft Men to Aid in Registration.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—To provide clerical assistance for local district and medical advisory boards in connection with the registration and classification of those subject to military service under the new Man Power act, 6,034 registrants qualified for limited military service only were today called by Provost Marshal General Crowder to entrain Sept. 7 for various military camps, from which they will be assigned to the different draft boards requiring their services. It is planned to keep the men in this employment until January, when they will be assigned to other duties.

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

ASKED FOR CHANCE TO FIGHT

California Youths Urged Kahn to Fight for 18 to 45 Draft Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Ten San Francisco boys between the ages of 18 and 19 years, brought into the selective draft by the bill recently approved by the President, which Representative Julius Kahn strongly supported, have written Mr. Kahn thanking him "for giving us a chance." The letter from the boys to Mr. Kahn follows:

> Mr. Julius Kahn,
> Washington, D. C.
> Dear Sir:
> I and my friends have read of your noble fight to pass the 18-45 draft. Keep up the work. We are behind you, Julius. Keep it up.
> We are boys of the varying ages of 18 and 19, and we want to have a chance to swat the Kaiser
> Another reason why we want the draft 18-19 to pass—in years to come our children will ask us if we helped lick the Kaiser. What would our answer be? We don't want to say "No," but "Yes"!
> Pass that bill, Mr. Kahn. Our fighting blood is up and we must fight, so give us a chance. Fight, fight, and fight till it passes.
> CALIFORNIA PATRIOTS.
> Milton Gerran, T. E. Curran, Jr., Melvin Exstein, Henry Warnecke, Joseph Impostato, C. Cronin, F. Code, Jr., Raymond Eckhardt, Joseph McGuire, Reuben D. Mayo.
> The New Mission Theatre, San Francisco.

To this Mr. Kahn replied to young Mr. Gerran as follows:

> My Dear Young Friend:
> I felt very happy to get the letter of Aug. 24 from you and your friends of the Mission Theatre You have shown you are thoroughgoing Americans. It is patriotism and spirit like yours that have made our country great. We are in this war to maintain American rights, American honor, and American prestige. We are going to win! I know that if the country calls you, you will respond bravely, nobly, willingly.
> With such young men in our armies, the world will once more witness the example of a peaceful, liberty-loving people crushing the powers that exalt brute force and arrogance in their effort to demonstrate to democratic nations that might is right. We believe, on the other hand, as Americans, that justice to all mankind makes for right.
> God bless you in your efforts to serve our common country.
> Sincerely your friend,
> JULIUS KAHN.

ROOSEVELT LASHES WAR JOB LOAFERS

Any Man Who Scamps His Work Is a Traitor, He Asserts at Newburgh Launching.

9,000-TON SHIP DOWN WAYS

First of Ten Building There for Government—Ex-President Praises Spirit of the Work.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Sept. 2.—"I am convinced that, generally speaking, there is a fine spirit of patriotism in shipbuilding labor in all parts of the country," said Theodore Roosevelt today in an address at the launching of the steamer Newburgh, the first of the 9,000-ton vessels to be built here for the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

"Yet it has been alleged to me," he went on, "that in certain yards men have loafed individually, and that in certain yards unions have actually limited the output, so as to limit the number of rivets driven in a day, or to limit the number of days that they worked, or in other ways to prevent the development of our full strength and our utmost speed.

"Such men are traitors to the country. If I had my way, I would take any such man and any man who aided or abetted such a man, put him in the army at once, and send him across the water to do the hardest work in the most dangerous position, and I would not give him a rifle until he had learned the spirit of patriotism.

"Any man who lays off now or scamps his job is a traitor to his fellow-Americans in France, a traitor to the men who need all the help we can give them. And, on the other hand, you, such as I am addressing here; you, whom I am convinced, represent the enormous majority of the shipyard workers; you who are doing your utmost night and day, week in and week out, stand on the honor roll of American citizenship as second only to our troops in France, and I honor you. I pay you homage, and I am proud beyond measure that I am your fellow-countryman."

Free from Profiteering.

Colonel Roosevelt paid tribute also to the men composing the Newburgh Shipyards Company, which is building the ten ships, and to the men in executive control of the work.

"The men who have put in the capital," he said, "are not only wholly free from profiteering, but have cut the margin of profit to the vanishing point. The men in positions of management have accepted salaries that barely cover their expenses and cost of living.

"The stock is held by six men who have put in $2,500,000—and all six are men who have before this war rendered disinterested and patriotic public service of the highest value. They are to get from the Government 5 per cent. on the cost of the ships as the agents' fee. These men will only come out a little more than even. They have announced that their wish is to have merely such profit as will enable them to get back their capital and the interest on it. After the war, of course, there will be here a going shipyard organization, and the company can then take private contracts, recoup themselves for their losses, and make the profits to which they are entitled."

Speaking of the President of the company, Thomas C. Desmond, Mr. Roosevelt diverged to say:

"Mr. Desmond made up his mind that he did not intend to profit out of the war. If I had been allowed to raise my divisions Mr. Desmond would have been a Lieutenant Colonel of Engineers in it, and he would have done his work admirably. It is not his fault that he is not serving on the other side. When he was not permitted to do so, he undertook this vitally important war work on this side."

Dwelling upon the duty of the workmen to put forth every effort to hasten the building of ships, Colonel Roosevelt said:

Limiting Output Criminal.

"Any union rule or workmen's agreement to limit the output in shipyards should be treated as criminal at this time. Pershing's men are not limiting their output. They don't limit the blood they shed or the efforts they expend, and shame and disgrace should be the portion of any man who here at home limits the output necessary to make the blood and the labor of our soldiers at the front of avail.

"Many of you men here have sons, brothers, kinsfolk in France. You, President Desmond, have a younger brother who is a Lieutenant in the Tank Corps in France, and I speak what I know to be the truth when I say that whenever you get tired by a day's work the thought of what your brother is risking and doing in France spurs you on to work all night, if necessary.

"The boys in France get few days off and few vacations. I wish to link you men before me here in the shipyards with your friends and kinsfolk in the army in France. I wish that every American shipbuilder shall feel that a slacker in our shipyards is as shameful a creature as a coward in the army in France, and that a good worker in the shipyards stands honorably forward like a good soldier in the army. I have come here to Newburg largely because my inquiries have convinced me that here there has been no organized limitation of output and practically no loafing.

"Mr. Desmond, from all I can hear, I believe that there has been developed in this yard a warm spirit of helpfulness and co-operation. The day of industrial autocracy is past. If we permit it to be supplanted, however, by Boshevism in industry, we will smash up, just exactly as Russia has smashed up. Romanoffism, Kaiserism, and autocracy, whether in politics or in industry, spell ruin, but Bolshevism and anarchy of all kinds spell a ruin just exactly as complete. You can no more have an industrial army without leaders than we can have a military army without officers. The Bolsheviki have tried both experiments in Russia and they have made Russia a curse to itself and a curse to the rest of mankind in consequence.

"Democracy can succeed only if the people understand the need of discipline and leadership. If they don't understand the need, then they will go down before autocracy. The leader must be a real leader, not a driver, but a man who considers primarily the interests of those whom he leads, and, on the other hand, if the mass of men are not willing to adhere to leadership, to develop it and to follow it, and to combine order and discipline with liberty, then there can be no co-operation, there can be no success—nothing but chaotic ruin ahead. We need in American industry a democracy of management and genuinely democratic leadership."

Reads a Letter from Overseas.

Colonel Roosevelt read an extract from "a letter sent to me by a Major, now overseas in the American Army, a Major in a motor supply train," as follows:

"The men of all the American Expeditionary Force are splendid. Last night at retreat I told my command that I wanted some volunteers to give up their afternoon to helping the old men and the women of this district to harvest the crops. I asked any man willing to so aid France to raise his hand. Every hand went up like a shot.

"We are training, drilling, and aiding materially to harvest crops as we train. As I looked at my men today gathering hay, hoeing potatoes, sawing wood, working in the fields, I thought to myself how truly these American Expeditionary Force men were giving their all to aid in the destruction of the enemy of American ideals.

"They are clean men, serious men, they have cast off that boyishness so manifest in training camps in the United States, and are facing every turn of the game over here with a spirit that forever will make the world prick up its ears when the word 'American' is spoken.

"The officers of my command voted to put up 10 francs each as prizes for some games on the Fourth of July. My officers asked me how best to proportion it, 160 francs in all. I spoke to some of my headquarters enlisted men about it, and the senior Sergeant replied: 'Sir, the boys feel it would be better to buy some chocolate and things for the French kids. We don't need the prizes.' Can you beat that for Americanism?

"I should think the slackers in the United States would want to crawl into a hole and pull the hole in after them."

It was with the ex-President leading the cheering that the Newburg slid down the ways into the Hudson River. Twenty thousand persons witnessed the launching. Just as the ship reached the water a long troop train passed near by, and the soldiers added their cheers to those of the Newburgers.

Mr. Desmond, in introducing Colonel Roosevelt, said that for the future the yard would turn out one similar vessel each month. Mrs. Irving T. Bush of New York was the sponsor for the vessel. Citizens of Newburg contributed to the purchase of the ship's bell, which was presented in their name by Mayor Wilson.

LABOR DAY LAUNCHINGS.

Two Ships in Philadelphia District, One at Quincy, Mass.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 2.—The merchant marine was increased by 10,500 tons today by shipyards adjacent to this city. The Brandywine, a 7,000-ton tanker, was launched at the Gloucester, N. J., plant of the Pusey & Jones Company, and the Bulana, a 3,500-ton cargo-carrier, at the Traylor Yard at Cornwells, Penn. In addition to the launchings, the 8,800-ton tanker Phoenix was turned over to the Shipping Board by the Chester (Penn.) Shipbuilding Company.

Preceding the launching at the Gloucester plant, a parade was held in which the workmen of this yard and those of the New York Shipbuilding Company, at Camden, N. J., participated.

QUINCY, Mass., Sept. 2.—The steamer William L. Steed, 13,665 gross tons, built for the Pan American Petroleum and Transportation Company, was launched today at the Fore River Yards of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. The steamer was christened by Mrs. Paul H. Harwood, wife of the President of the company, and was named for William L. Steed, Superintendent of the Mexican Petroleum Company of California.

The vessel slid from the ways with such momentum that she struck on a ledge on the opposite bank of the river and slightly dented a plate.

MINE SWEEPER LAUNCHED.

Thousands Attend Ceremony in the Tebo Basin.

Between six and seven thousand navy and army officers, city officials, and employes were present in the Tebo Basin yesterday afternoon to witness the launching of the mine sweeper Sanderling constructed by the Robins Dry Dock Company. Everything went off without a single hitch, and at the time appointed, 6 P. M., the workmen sawed through the ways, where steel cables held the ship in position, and she glided down into the water while the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The vessel was named by Miss Dorothy Baine, the 8-year-old daughter of the superintendent of the shipyard, who received a diamond lavalliere which was presented by President Alfred Smith of the Board of Aldermen on behalf of William H. Todd, head o fthe Robins Dry Dock Company.

Before the Sanderling left the slips Judge Norman S. Dike of Special Sessions, Brooklyn, President Smith and Mr. Todd made patriotic addresses to the workers in the shipyard.

FRENCH NAVAL AIRMEN BUSY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—An official dispatch from Paris today furnished an idea of the tremendous aerial activities conducted by the French Navy, principally in operations against submarines. It says:

"In May fifteen submarines were attacked by French patrolling vessels, in seven of the combats guns being used and in the others grenades. In June there were ten attacks against submarines, two with guns. French merchant vessels answered three submarine attacks in May and four in June.

"In June the aerial patrols of the French Navy covered 447,040 miles, 59,100 miles being by airships, which made 256 flights and 1,481 hours of navigation. Airplanes and seaplanes were in the air 5,758 hours and made 3,365 sorties. Captive naval balloons accomplished 66 patrolling errands and 114 scouting flights for dredges, amounting to a total of 4,408 hours of flight.

"In July the activity of the various aerial organizations of the French Navy was equally intense. Captive balloons were engaged 5,520 hours, airships 1,311 hours, and airplanes and seaplanes 7,432 hours. The naval aerial patrols in their flights covered 485,330 miles."

WIN-WAR SPIRIT HIGH IN PARADE

Living." They also carried a sign which read:

A Hun,
Some fun,
A gun,
He's done!

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had a steam roller, driven by Uncle Sam, and bearing a sign which read: "We Are Building Ships Enough to Carry You All Across and Back." The United Pavers' Association followed with a float upon which several men were hammering down stones, under a placard which read: "Paving the Road to Berlin." Other floats were constructed to picture the activity of some particular trade in connection with the war. On one the Kaiser's effigy was hanging from the rigging of a boat; on another he was being lowered into a deep well, and on a third the Glaziers' Union had him in a glass coffin with a lily in his hand and a sign over his head announcing that he was "On his way to hell."

Service flags were especially noticeable, and the Building Trades delegations carried many banners which read: "We Do Not Claim Exemption." The Painters' and Riggers' section was headed by five elephants from the Hippodrome, a girl in a black chiffon dress on the head of the first elephant.

The longshoremen had a large representation, containing men of many nationalities. The lighter Captains and marine workers wore khaki trousers and pale blue shirts, and behind them came more longshoremen with a big float showing a huge scow with the Kaiser's effigy hanging by a rope, which one of the crew kept pulling up and down to the great amusement of the crowds.

"Big Six" of the International Typographical Union told on its banners what it had done for the Liberty Loan, the War Savings Stamps campaign, and the Red Cross. Here, too, the locals offered a profuse display of service flags. All the local newspaper chapels of "Big Six" were represented. The Times Chapel announced the extent of its contributions to patriotic drives, and said: "And we are ready for the next call."

Included in the "Big Six" section was a division of women dressed as nurses, which contributed a striking contrast to the rest of the parade. They were the only women in the procession with the exception of the women's local of upholstery workers who marched with the paperhangers.

Airplanes Above Marchers.

While the parade was passing four airplanes appeared in the sky, thousands of feet above the Public Library, the aviators dropping patriotic literature.

During the course of the parade there were several unusual features which caught the attention. Brewers' Union No. 1 had a banner inscribed in German, but the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The presence of the city firemen in the parade was also a novelty. There were about 1,000 of them in line.

The last section of the parade passed the grand stand at 2:45 o'clock P. M. As each division reached Fifty-ninth Street it turned in there and dispersed. Many of the marchers then proceeded to Manhattan Casino for the big meeting and picnic which followed the parade.

Among those who watched the parade from the grand stand with Secretary of Labor Wilson were Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, Alexander Gompers, son of Sampel Gompers, and Mrs. Gompers, mother of the labor chief, who is now abroad.

The organizations which marched in the Fifth Avenue parade were:

Dockbuilders, Electrical Workers, Fixture Workers, Riggers, Cement Masons, Marble Polishers, Painters, Local 892; Engineers, Local 184; Machinists, Rammers and Pavers, Steamfitters, Painters, Local 905; Metallic Lathers, Painters, Local 1,011; Glaziers, Local 1,087; Sign Writers, Local 230; Painters, Local 874; Tunnel and Subway Constructors, Steam Shovel and Dredgemen, Local 17; Chauffers and Cab Drivers, Local 267; Furniture Storage House Chauffeurs and Teamsters, Local 273; Piano Movers, Local 274; Retail Furniture Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers, Local 285; Excavating and Sand Teamsters, Local 285; Coal and Asphalt Teamsters, Loc l 553; Milk Wagon Drivers, Local 584; Chicken Drivers and Chauffeurs, Local 167; Funeral and Hearse Drivers, Local 643; Railway Baggage and Transfer Teamsters, Local 645; United Building Material Drivers and Helpers, Local 282; Theatrical Drivers and Handlers, Local 669; Truck Drivers, Local 807; Commission Drivers and Chauffeurs, Local 202.

Wilson Congratulates Toilers.

At the Manhattan Casino celebration, which was held under the auspices of the Central Federated Union, Secretary of Labor Wilson and Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the British suffrage leader, were to have spoken. When they arrived at the Casino, there was only a sprinkling of people on the grounds, and as both had to get trains for out-of-town places, they left after dictating statements to reporters. Secretary Wilson, in his dictated statement, said:

> I just want to congratulate labor in general for the manner in which it has responded to the war needs of the country. Today's parade demonstrated that labor is standing behind the boys in the trenches with the highest possible standard of productive efficiency.
> Labor realizes that this is its war; that democratic institutions have been threatened by the military caste of Germany; that it is only in democracies that people have an opportunity of working out their own destinies in their own way. The situation is exactly similar to that in an industrial strike. It may require suffering and all kinds of sacrifice before the strike can be won, but the worker has an abiding faith that out of the suffering and sacrifice will come greater safety for our institutions and a more perfect democracy than ever before, and just as there is bitterness against those who, during an industrial strike, scab on striking workmen, so the workers of the country today naturally have a feeling of bitterness against any one who "scabs" upon the United States of America in its great strike against the Kaiser and German militarism.

Mrs. Pankhurst in her statement said she felt that the visit of Samuel Gompers to England would bring about a better understanding of the real effort the people of England are making to win the war.

The Brooklyn Celebration.

More than 15,000 workers marched in the Brooklyn parade, headed by a detachment of sailors and marines and the Marine Band. The line of march was through Flatbush Avenue to Fourth Avenue, to Dean Street, to Flatbush Avenue, and to Prospect Park, where the reviewing stand was passed.

John P. Coughlin, President of the Central Labor Lyceum, was the Grand Marshal. The Flagmakers' Union had a float representing Betsy Ross at work making the first flag. The patternmakers had a miniature battleship on their float. A float manned by sailors from the Navy Yard showed a machine gun in operation. Painters from the Navy Yard were shown camouflaging a vessel. A detachment from the Signal Corps of the navy had a float showing the receiving and sending of wireless messages.

Speaking before a large assemblage of men and women in Prospect Park, after the parade, John Mitchell, Chairman of the Federal Food Board, said that peace will not come "until the Prussian vandal on bended knee supplicates the forgiveness of God and the mercy of man for the outrages he has perpetrated against civilization and mankind."

Mr. Mitchell paid a tribute to labor and spoke of the great necessity of eliminating as far as possible accidents of an industrial nature.

Five airplanes circled the park, and there were athletic games for the boys and girls. A war ambulance was presented to the Government by Mrs. Grace B. Klueg on behalf of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Brooklyn Labor Union. John P. Coughlin presided and John J. Foote read the President's Labor Day proclamation.

A FETE DAY IN NEW ENGLAND.

War Workers Parade in All of the Larger Cities.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Workers in munition factories, shipbuilding yards, and other plants engaged in war industries joined hands today in New England for the celebration of Labor Day. In this city it was estimated that 10,000 war workers were in a parade arranged by the Metal Trades' Council of Boston.

The parade, which was designated as a "Win the War for Freedom" demonstration, included workers from Watertown Arsenal, Boston Navy Yard, the Fore River and Squantum Shipyards, and other distinctively war industries. Governor McCall and Mayor Peters reviewed the line.

In addition to the parades, sports were on the program everywhere. At the Harvard Stadium army and navy men in this district met in field events. The New England Amateur Rowing Association conducted races on the Charles River.

GIVE UP DAY TO PERSHING.

Bridgeport Employes Spend Holiday at Work on Big Guns.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Employes of the Bullard Engineering Works at Bridgeport, Conn., celebrated Labor Day by giving, without compensation, five hours of their time to constructing 155-millimeter guns for the American army overseas. In announcing this tonight the Ordnance Department made public this telegram sent to General Pershing by the men:

"To help you win soon, we propose to give Labor Day a meaning true to its name by giving, without compensation, five hours of our time on this national holiday to the building of 155-millimeter guns to shoot the Hun."

250,000 MARCH IN CHICAGO.

Opening of Government's War Exposition Features the Celebration.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The largest parade in the local history of Labor Day marched through the streets today headed by the Great Lakes Naval Training School band of 400. The opening of the Government's war exposition was a feature of the celebration.

Labor leaders estimated that 250,000 men were in line. Each flag in the parade had a guard of honor of soldiers or sailors who received furloughs in order to march with their unions.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—Metal workers and shipbuilders headed a Labor Day parade here today, the magnitude of which necessitated its separation into seven divisions. Union labor of the cities about San Francisco Bay was largely represented, scores of crafts being in line.

DANIELS LOOKS INTO FUTURE.

Says Fighters Will Control America—Predicts Government Ownership.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 2.—Discussing what he believes will be the conditions in this country after the war, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, here today, declared that the soldiers and sailors, when they return to civil life will control America for the next generation. He said he believed the conditions after peace will be far different from those of pre-war times. Expressing an opinion that they will try for a worldwide commerce, the Secretary continued:

"They will be less concerned as to whether this is by public or private ownership than with securing and enlarging worldwide commerce. The odds are that they will see in Government ownership and direction the best agency, but they will discard that if private ownership insures the best results.

"They will never return to duplication of railroad transportation and competition in terminals and facilities. All the benefits which Government operation of railroads has given will be continued, whether the railroads are in public or private ownership. The telegraph and telephone probably will be a permanent part of the postal system, though the men who will rule America will be open-minded enough to discuss the best method of communication."

Mr. Daniels spoke at the Labor Day celebration here, following a parade in which thousands of laboring men marched.

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

PUT GASOLINE SAVED AT 760,000 GALLONS

Unofficial Estimate for This City Shows a Substantial Conservation.

TAXICAB OWNERS CRITICISED

Some of Larger Companies Accused of Violating Spirit of Request by Those Who Complied.

How much gasoline was conserved for the nation's war needs on the first of the gasolineless Sundays? That is what thousands of patriotic citizens, who refused to use or patronize motor vehicles for pleasure last Sunday would like to know this morning. Official figures were not obtainable yesterday. The Fuel Administration's local representative in its save-the-gasoline campaign is the National Petroleum War Service Committee, and its offices were closed for Labor Day.

Among automobile owners, operators of taxicabs, and proprietors of garages, it was the opinion yesterday that less than 5 per cent. of New York motor vehicles were operated for pleasure last Sunday. There are about 160,000 motor vehicles in this city, including motor buses, and it is estimated that, on the average, these cars would consume five gallons of gasoline in a day. Therefore, the whole 160,000, if they had been in commission on Sunday, would have used 800,000 gallons of "gas." With 5 per cent. of them in service, only 40,000 gallons of gasoline were consumed, which would mean a saving for New York alone of 760,000 gallons.

In the territory east of the Mississippi, which was that affected by the Fuel Administration's request to abandon using motor vehicles for pleasure last Sunday, it has been estimated that not far from 5,000,000 motor vehicles are owned and operated. Figuring on the same basis only 1,250,000 gallons were consumed and 23,750,000 gallons were saved for war needs throughout the territory affected. It is believed that less than that quantity was saved, but even if only 10,000,000 or 15,000,000 gallons were conserved, a considerable amount of the fuel was added to the national reserve.

While the returns showed that the majority of the motorists of this city patriotically observed the Fuel Administration's request, there were some who did not, and among the latter were public taxicab companies who stated on Saturday that they would accept no pleasure business at all. One of these companies received considerable condemnation. An officer of this company stated on Saturday that his company's cabs would accept only train calls and other necessary business calls.

Concerning the way this company observed the request, which many citizens respected as if it were an order, one of the smaller taxicab operators said:

"I put up a sign on the door of my place on Friday that my cabs would be kept in garage on Sunday. They were, and I lost a considerable amount of money. That is all right and as it should be. But this company of which I complain of not only operated a large number of its cabs, but it actually sought business. Its drivers approached me eight times on the Broadway corner where I stood waiting for a car. I insist that it is highly unfair to me, and to many other operators who observed the request to the letter, that operators like the one of which I speak should be allowed to rake in the money while we willingly lose money. Something ought to be done about things like this next Sunday."

In many parts of the city, notably in Brooklyn, riding for pleasure had unpleasant experiences. They were jeered at by crowds along the sidewalks and along the roads and many a car was turned back in the direction from which it came. In Brooklyn, also, they organized a sort of vigilante committee, composed of some well-known citizens, and, between sunrise and dark, the committee took the numbers of several hundred cars which appeared to be on pleasure bent. These numbers were or will be sent to the National Petroleum War Service Committee.

All persons arrested for violating the speed limit on Sunday got little sympathy in the courts yesterday. Charles Elten, 20 years old, of 1,923 Daly Avenue, a chauffeur; Lawrence Esto, 20 years old, of 265 East 153d Street; Dominick Marone, 20 years old, of 277 East 154th Street, and Helen Jones, 19 years old, of 580 East 136th Street, were arrested by Policeman Jones of the East 126th Street Station early yesterday morning after an exciting chase through Harlem. The chauffeur was charged with reckless driving and the others with disorderly conduct. Elten was held in $200 bail for the Traffic Court, and the others were sent to the workhouse for from two to five days.

Magistrate Short, in Brooklyn, held Joseph Krazlaw, 27 years old, of 38 Belmont Avenue, in $1,000 bail for disorderly conduct, and in $200 bail for operating an automobile without a license. Krazlaw was severely censured by the Magistrate, who set the hearing of the case down for Sept. 5.

Forty or fifty owners or operators of taxicabs met last evening at Forty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue to denounce two or three of the companies which, the speakers at the meeting alleged, did business as usual on Sunday. A policeman, after learning that the meeting had no permit, dispersed the gathering.

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

RECORD TAX BILL READY FOR HOUSE

$3,941,633,000 last year under the present law. The largest source of estimated revenue is from taxes on excess profits, including war profits—$3,100,000,000—and the next is from taxes on incomes—$1,482,186,000 from individuals and $828,000,000 from corporations.

The income tax exemptions under the new bill are the same as under the old—$1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons, with $200 additional allowed for each dependent child under 18 years of age. An exemption of $200 for each dependent incapable of self-support because of mental or physical disability also is allowed.

The estimated yield from sources other than incomes and excess and war profits include:

Transportation: Freight, $75,000,000; express, $20,000,000; passenger fares, $60,000,000; seats and berths, $5,000,000; oil by pipe lines, $4,550,000.

Telegraph and telephone messages, $16,000,000; insurance, $12,000,000; admissions, (theatres, circuses, &c.,) $100,000,000; club dues, $9,000,000.

Excise taxes: Automobiles, &c., $123,750,000; jewelry, sporting goods, &c., $80,000,000; other taxes on luxuries at 10 per cent., $88,760,000; other taxes on luxuries, (apparel, &c., above certain prescribed prices,) at 20 per cent., $181,095,000.

Gasoline, $40,000,000; yachts and pleasure boats, $1,000,000.

Beverages, (liquors and soft drinks,) $1,137,600,000; stamp taxes, $32,000,000; tobacco, cigars, $61,364,000; cigarettes, $165,240,000; tobacco, $104,000,000; snuff, $9,100,000; papers and tubes, $1,500,000.

Special taxes: Capital stock, $70,000,000; brokers, $1,765,000; theatres, &c., $2,143,000; mail order sales, $5,000,000; bowling alleys, billiard and pool tables, $2,200,000; shooting galleries, $400,000; riding academies, $50,000; business license tax, $10,000,000; manufacturers of tobacco, $69,000; manufacturers of cigars, $850,000; manufacturers of cigarettes, $240,000; use of automobiles and motor cycles, $72,920,000.

Tax and Bond Policy.

The committee report explains that the committee decided upon the raising of $8,000,000,000 by taxation because it had accepted as a sound fiscal policy the recommendation of Secretary McAdoo that one-third of the Government's estimated expenditures of $24,000,000,000 this year should be obtained from this source and the remaining two-thirds by bonds.

"While the committee," the report added, "makes this recommendation for the current year, it realizes that no fixed policy as to relation of taxes to bonds for the future can be determined at this time and that the amount that should be raised by taxation in any given year must necessarily be determined after due consideration is given business and financial conditions existing in such year.

"The committee further adopted the policy that so far as practicable the $8,000,000,000 should be raised from taxes on incomes, excess and war profits, and luxuries and semi-luxuries. The committee has endeavored to distribute equitably the new tax burden and to levy the taxes in such a way that the burden should be met by those most able to pay. It has endeavored to wipe out all inequalities in the operation of existing law and recommends the repeal of the major portion of the revenue acts of 1916 and 1917 in order that the existing internal revenue laws, so far as deemed practicable, will be in one act and therefore more readily accessible to the taxpayer."

While under existing law only persons of lawful age have to make returns, the new bill requires persons under the lawful age and having a net income of $1,000 or over, if single or if married and not living with husband or wife, and all married persons living with husband or wife having a net income of $2,000 or over to make returns.

The bill levies a corporation tax of 18 per cent. upon the amount of the net income, in excess of the credits allowed, but provides that the rate shall be 12 per cent. upon so much of this amount as does not exceed the dividends paid during the taxable year plus the amount paid during the taxable year out of the earning or profits in discharge of bonds and other interest-bearing obligations outstanding prior to the beginning of that year.

This provision was under fire in the committee today, but without change. Under it a corporation having $100,000 net income in excess of its credits which pays out during the year $50,000 in dividends and discharges $10,000 worth of bonds would then be taxed 12 per cent. on $60,000 and 18 per cent. on $40,000. The committee believes that this rebate of 6 per cent. on distributed profits will stimulate the payment of dividends, which will be subject to surtax in the hands of the stockholders. The bill makes no change in the corporations exempt from income tax.

Partnerships are not liable to income tax, but each partner will pay his income tax upon his share of the partnership profits, whether distributed or not.

Small Corporations Protected.

The bill applies the war and excess profits taxes to corporations only. Provision is made to protect corporations whose invested capital is less than $50,000 and those corporations in which invested capital is not a material producing factor.

Increases also were made in the estate tax, which will range from 3 per cent. to 40 per cent. The increases as compared with the present bill follow: Not exceeding $50,000, from 2 to 3 per cent., $50,000 to $150,000, 4 to 6; $150,000 to $250,000, 6 to 9; $250,000 to $450,000, 9 to 12; $450,000 to $1,000,000, 10 to 15; $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, 12 to 18; $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, 14 to 21; $3,000,000 to $4,000,000, 16 to 24; $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, 18 to 27; $5,000,000 to $8,000,000, 20 to 30; $8,000,000 to $10,000,000, 22 to 35, and exceeding $10,000,000, 25 to 40.

The transportation and insurance taxes already made public include a new tax of 10 per cent. upon the amount paid to any telegraph or telephone company for any special leased wire or talking circuit, but does not apply to collection and dissemination of news through the public press or in the conduct by a common carrier or telegraph or telephone company of its business as such.

There is no reference to the imminence of prohibition legislation in what the report says about the beverage tax. Some new administrative provisions are imposed upon liquor, including elimination of every exemption.

The tobacco rates already made public, the report says, are fixed at approximately the highest revenue-producing rates that can safely be levied without greatly reduced consumption of tobacco and consequent reduction in revenue.

WILSON PLANS 3-WEEK TOUR

May Visit the Pacific Coast During Liberty Loan Campaign.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Under the tentative program for President Wilson's Fourth Liberty Loan speaking tour, the President probably will leave Washington about Sept. 30, to be away for the three weeks of the loan campaign. In a swing that may carry him to the Pacific Coast, he expects to make stops in nearly every section of the country.

It was learned today that the President had promised Senator Ashurst of Arizona that if the itinerary will permit, he will visit the Grand Canyon of Arizona during the trip.

For One Week

A Sale of Fur Garments

presenting an unusual assortment of fur coats, neckwear and muffs—considering the length of service to be had from selections from this stock—the prices suggest sound economy

FOR months we have planned this ONE WEEK FUR EVENT. Early in the year we arranged with our manufacturers to work on our stocks for this season. Pelts were purchased far in advance and placed in work—early enough to escape the tremendous rises in costs of material and labor. Since our orders were completed we could have sold these stocks at a profit. Today, as a result of our foresight, we own and offer these dependable garments at prices which are fully one-fourth less than cost to duplicate.

Never could we more sincerely urge "Buy furs today"

1. NUTRIA COAT: Proven by early selling to be a most desired fur and model, 45 inches long . . . . 225 Other models 150 to 350	3. NATURAL MUSKRAT COAT: Illustrating one of several models, collar and cuffs of natural raccoon, others with Hudson Seal Collar and Cuffs . . . 165

START DRIVE TODAY FOR DRAFT SLACKERS

Men Between 21 and 31 Will Be Stopped in Street and Asked to Show Registration Cards.

20,000 AGENTS IN ROUNDUP

Theatres, Saloons, Hotels, and Trains Will Be Combed for Suspects.

The entire force of the New York Bureau of the Department of Justice, the Deputy Marshals of the Southern and Eastern Districts of New York, and the Northern District of New Jersey, members of the American Protective League, and hundreds of specially deputized Government agents, will begin this morning a roundup of every draft slacker in New York City and vicinity. Beginning at 7 o'clock this morning the police and agents are to arrest every man between the ages of 21 and 31 years who cannot produce a registration card.

Chief Charles F. De Woody of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation will command the "drive," and he said last night the total number of Government agents, policemen, special deputies, and others who would aid in the roundup would total between 20,000 and 25,000. Chief De Woody will also be aided by 2,000 soldiers and 1,000 sailors, who are ordered to report at certain designated points at 6 o'clock this morning.

The territory which will be covered is all of New York City, Westchester County, Jersey City, Newark, Hoboken, and Paterson. In the outlying districts the local constabulary forces have received instructions to assist the Federal agents.

Men apparently between 21 and 31 years will be stopped wherever an agent happens to meet one of them. Government agents will be at the ferries, in hotels, in theatres, restaurants, saloons, railroad terminals, and in every other place of a public nature. There will be at least one agent to every block in the principal business and residential sections of the territory embraced in the drive.

Draft Board to Sit All Day.

All local draft boards will be in session today and in constant communication with the various headquarters of Chief De Woody. In Manhattan these headquarters will be in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, and in Brooklyn at the Twenty-third Regiment Armory. The police stations will be the headquarters in the outlying districts. Men unable to show a card will be taken to the nearest detention headquarters. There an examining board of draft officials who will inquire into his case will be in session. If the man has, in fact, registered it will be quickly ascertained by telephoning to his district draft board. If the board reports that he is not registered he will be transferred to the nearest police station, and there held pending the action of the Feredal Government. If a man is from another part of the country and is unable to show his draft credentials he will have to remain in custody until his status can be determined by telegraph.

The plan of campaign which will be followed today was described last night by Chief De Woody as follows:

> All workers will be divided generally into four groups.
> 1. Operatives—Those men assigned to the duty of stopping and questioning persons of apparent military age.
> 2. Examiners—Those persons at detention headquarters charged with the duty of ascertaining definitely the status of the individual who is brought in.
> 3. Guards—Uniformed soldiers, sailors, and police officials, who will assist in the transportation of the persons apprehended to detention headquarters and their guarding at detention headquarters.
> 4. Automobile operators—Those who will transport the persons apprehended, guards, &c.
> Upon apprehending a person whom it is necessary to detain, operatives will first bring such persons to the nearest precinct police station, which will be used as a temporary collecting point for persons apprehended. As quickly thereafter as possible, and when a precinct station has collected an automobile load of such detained persons, they will be transported via automobile to detention headquarters, which headquarters are as follows:
> For New York City and the Bronx, the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, occupying the block between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Streets and Lexington and Fourth Avenues.
> For Brooklyn, the Twenty-third Regiment Armory, located at Bedford and Atlantic Avenues, Brooklyn.
> For Jersey City, Fourth Regiment Armory, Bergen Avenue and Mercer Street.
> For Newark, First Regiment Armory, Sussex and J Streets.
> Upon receipt of the persons apprehended at detention headquarters, they will be taken in charge by the examining force.

650 Automobiles in Service.

There will be 400 automobiles at work in Manhattan and 250 in Brooklyn. The men first taken into custody will be transported to the nearest police station and held there under guard until a sufficient number to fill a patrol wagon comfortably has accumulated. The patrol wagon when full will proceed at safe speed to the detention headquarters.

The operatives have been cautioned to be courteous but firm and to require some affirmative or corroborative proof from men who appear to be of military age but deny that they are, if they think it necessary. Detailed instructions have been given about classification cards. Where a registrant is shown to be classified in Class 1 he must also produce further evidence to show that he has submitted to physical examination, but where it is shown that he is in Class 2, 3, 4, or 5 he will be released at once.

MRS. WHITMAN IN LAND ARMY

Governor's Wife to Aid in Obtaining 1,000,000 Supporting Members.

Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, wife of the Governor, is to serve as Honorary Chairman of the State Committee which will direct a drive to be undertaken immediately for 1,000,000 supporting members of the New York State Woman's Land Army. F. H. Bethell, First Vice President of the New York Telephone Company, is to be active Chairman. The new membership is needed to give financial and moral backing to the work of the army in preparing to meet the demands, which will be greatly increased, for young women workers on the farms of the State another season. In accepting Mrs. Whitman said:

"I have been in close touch with the Land Army movement since its inception a year ago, and I am convinced that the little army of 1,000 farmerettes has carried the work beyond its experimental stage, and all efforts to increase its efficiency, I am sure, will appeal to every patriotic citizen. We must have, as well as the young women workers themselves to do the farm work, money to establish camps for them to enter. With this financial aid and the moral support of the new members, we shall be able to solve the food production problem of this State. The army is maintaining forty camps at the present time, but that is only a nucleus of the force we must be able to promise the farmers for another year, that they may plan to work their lands to the utmost. We want city and country members, for every one is vitally interested in the problem, and unless we can make arrangements to supply the women for farm work our food production will suffer seriously."

Governor Whitman has promised the Land Army the support of the State Agricultural Department and the co-operation of all departments devoted to food production and conservation, and the Federal Government will aid by sending a representative of the Labor Bureau at Washington to assist in the drive and will give the army the privilege of franking its mail.

WILSON LAUDS BOY SCOUTS.

President Urges Their Co-operation in Coming Loan Drive.

A letter from President Wilson urging every member of the Boy Scouts of America to aid the Fourth Liberty Loan was made public yesterday at the Scout organization's national headquarters in this city.

"The fact that the Scouts secured 1,322,649 subscriptions, representing $203,169,000, in the previous campaigns is a convincing testimonial to the value of organized boyhood for the kind of patriotic service that is worth while," the President said in his letter, addressed to Colin H. Livingston, President of the Boy Scouts. The loan services of the boys have been "appreciated by the whole nation," he added, "and the country, already proud of them," expects effective work during the fourth campaign.

Mr. Livingstone replied to the President by promising the Scouts' coming efforts would "result in even greater service than heretofore." During the first three campaigns one in every twenty-three subscriptions turned in to the Treasury Department was obtained by the Boy Scouts of America. Secretary McAdoo has recommended to the Governors of the Federal Reserve Banks and to Chairmen of Liberty Loan committees that the Boy Scout activities be limited to the final seven days of the coming campaign.

DENOUNCES TOMATO PRICES

Jersey Bureau of Markets Says They Should Not Be Tolerated.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 2.—Stating that a charge of 10 or even 8 cents a pound for tomatoes by dealers who buy them for 3 cents is an offense against the people of New Jersey and should not be tolerated, the Bureau of Markets in its weekly bulletin today says that newspapers, local committees and patriotic persons in general can perform a service of far reaching benefit by starting a campaign of price publicity.

"The average price to the storekeepers in the large cities in Essex and Hudson counties," says the bulletin, "is between 2 and 3 cents a pound. At 4 or 5 cents a pound dealers could afford to handle them. Consumers should remember, however, that tomatoes do not grow all perfect and that where they are fastidious in selecting only perfect specimens, the dealers must be paid for the poorer looking ones which are thrown aside.

"The Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense has recognized the importance of profit cutting in this matter of increasing the immediate consumption of tomatoes and without doubt the effect of its interest will be felt within a day or two. Consumers are urged to demand there shall be not more than 50 per cent. profit on tomatoes in less than basket lots and not more than 25 per cent. profit in basket lots."

Dives to Death in Swimming Pool.

Abraham Unger of Whitestone, L. I., was killed in the swimming pool at the Bronx International Exposition yesterday in diving from a springboard. Although the water in the pool was about ten feet deep where Unger dived, his neck was broken. Attendants said they thought he had not struck bottom, because there was no bruise on his head, but they advanced the theory that he might have struck a person who was swimming under water.

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

SEIZE CIPHER LETTER SENT TO GERMANS

Pennsylvania Car Company Used Subterfuge in Writing to Berlin Owners.

DECODED BY AUTHORITIES

Marcus Braun Admits Having Attempted to Carry Letters to Europe for Austrians.

Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker told last night the story of how the Pennsylvania Car Company of Pittsburgh tried to communicate, after this country entered the war, with the German concern of Ornstein & Koppel, which, Mr. Becker said, was the parent organization of the Pennsylvania corporation. He cited the case of the concern as showing the method by which enemy-owned concerns in this country sought to communicate with Germany by means of apparently harmless letters addressed to persons living in neutral countries.

"At the present time it would not be consistent with the interests of justice to make public most of the apparently harmless communications under investigation, but by way of illustration one may be cited," Mr. Becker said. "A letter was written on stationery of the Hotel Schenlay of Pittsburgh, under date of April 30, 1917, which reads as follows:

> Mr. Erich Rothenberg.
> Dear Mr. Rothenberg: I trust that this letter will reach you promptly and find you well and happy. Undoubtedly you have received the various letters of our friend Penaco, and I wrote you up to the end of March and the first days of April.
> Mr. Penaco has not written you lately, although he is so far very well and active. It is, however, not desirable, according to physicians' advice, that he should exert himself to write letters. You must, therefore, not worry if you do not hear from Penaco. He is all right and I understand quite prosperous.
> As to myself and our other friends, I can only report the best. We are busy, as usual, and as to my private and business life there is nothing special to report, as you are familiar with the quiet and satisfactory routine of life in this city. We have very nice weather for the last few weeks and it is a genuine pleasure now to have the train rides every day, and to enjoy the springtime resurrection of nature.
> There is not much new to report, and we can only hope that everything will come out to the best. I am very anxious to hear how you are getting along and am quite sure that married life agrees with you very well. I want to avail myself of the opportunity of asking you to convey my best respects to Mrs. Rothenberg, and with very best wishes I remain,
> Very sincerely yours, ——.

"This letter is a typical example of the use of cover names and of the length to which this pre-arranged system can be carried. An analysis reveals the fact that the letter comes from the Pennsylvania Car Company of Pittsburgh, U. S. A., and is intended for Ornstein & Koppel of Berlin, of which the Pennsylvania Car Company is a branch. On account of the break with Germany, which occurred on April 7, 1917, the Pennsylvania Car Company adopted this method of advising its head office, Ornstein & Koppel of Berlin, that they are still doing satisfactory business; that they have taken legal advice (according to physicians' advice) and must stop sending details of business to Berlin.

"Such a letter should excite suspicion, first, because the envelope is addressed 'Care of A. Bruce, Stockholm,' and addresses in Scandinavian countries were favored by Germans as cover names. Second, because written from a hotel address. Third, the unusual name 'Penaco,' which is made out of a combination of the words 'Pennsylvania Car Company.' Fourth, a careful reading of the fourth paragraph should immediately suggest to the mind some form of business.

"With the exception of the first, none of these reasons may seem very strong to the ordinary layman, but when comparison is made of the tenor of this communication with the forms used by Hugo Schmidt to communicate with the Deutsche Bank, and other forms used by scores of Germans and German-American houses, and investigation into thousands of cover names and cover addresses, after all it is not so difficult to decipher this seemingly harmless social communication."

Marcus Braun, the Hungarian Republican leader, was asked yesterday if he was still of the opinion that the administration of justice in the United States was "in the hands of British lackeys." In a letter he wrote to a Mrs. Valli Kroch in Berlin in February, 1916, he said that that was the case. He also wrote that he would leave this country for Germany on the "first German boat which will leave New York Harbor after peace is declared."

In explanation of the letter, the text of which was printed in THE TIMES yesterday, Braun said an incorrect impression was created. He said that he denounced the American administration of justice in order to get the letter passed by the German censors. He said that he had no use for either Germany or Austria, and that his attitude on the war in 1916 was due to his hatred of the Russian Government, which was then in power. Mr. Braun added that he is a loyal American.

HON. MERTON E. LEWIS,

New York City.

New York City, August 27, 1918.

DEAR SIR:

The undersigned desire to assure you of their support at the approaching Republican primaries for the nomination for Governor.

We do this out of respect for the consistent and faithful manner in which you have performed your duties as Attorney General.

You have exercised the functions of that office in an intelligent, sane, impersonal, conservative, law-abiding manner. Likewise we recognize the efficient work done by your office under your direction in the official investigations made which resulted in uncovering the plotting against the Government on the part of disloyals.

Your endeavor to restore to its full effectiveness party government, with its consequent responsibility as an instrument for creating and maintaining sound public opinion in governmental politics and administration, inspires confidence, and appeals directly and persuasively to enrolled Republicans. Your position that amendments to the Constitution of the United States should be ratified only when they reflect the opinion of the voters of the State directly expressed is consistent, logical and fully within the spirit of the Constitution. At this moment, when the public mind is engrossed with the necessary success of the allies in arms, there is a natural tendency to haste in matters that are not of themselves vital necessities to the winning of the war. But this haste might work unexpected and untold evil. Unusual and unprecedented authority transferred to governmental executive authority is only a loan, and title in the people has not been lost. The restoration of government in its executive and administrative purposes is a problem before the American people second only in importance to winning the war.

Your ambition to be Governor, frankly announced, commends itself to all who hate hypocrisy, believe in sincerity, and are committed to the doctrine that public office is a sacred trust. Just rewards in public opinion inevitably result from real service and are more to be valued than the temporary applause forced from artificially created groups. Principle rather than expediency, breadth of judgment, vision in ideals, unselfish honesty in intelligent administration, are demanded of him who seeks to fill adequately the position of Governor of the Empire State.

Your aim to fulfill these requirements has been proven, and we therefore assure you of our aggressive support.

Sincerely yours,

"Morale is Winning the War"

WAR CAMP COMMUNITY SERVICE

"Look for the Red Circle"

The Sign of Welcome to Soldiers, Sailors and Marines

WAR CAMP COMMUNITY SERVICE represents a range of activities in which the folks back home and the folks in the war camp city co-operate for the benefit of our men in uniform, every one of whom comes from some "home town."

"By helping the fighter make wholesome use of his leisure, by putting before him in the communities where his duty calls him adequate substitutes for those necessities and comforts of life of which he is depriving himself and of which he is being deprived—in a word, by serving him through War Camp Community Service, the civilian is armoring him with contentment, confidence and consecration to the common cause—that trio of essentials to a triumphant morale, lacking which empires have been wiped from the pages of history."

The practical side of War Camp Community Service is visualized briefly below in a summary of some of the activities of this service:

CLUBS providing entertainments, writing materials, lounging rooms, baths, meals and sleeping accommodations.

HOTELS with all hotel facilities, where a bed and bath can be had for twenty-five cents, and meals are served at less than cost.

ENTERTAINMENTS so diversified that every man can suit his own taste in wholesome recreation. These include theatres, picture shows, dances, automobile rides, concerts and many social gatherings.

ATHLETICS—Baseball, football, field sports, boxing and wrestling matches, tennis and all wholesome recreational sports.

INFORMATION BOOTHS—These are provided in railroad and traction stations, prominent and central street corners where all men in uniform can obtain correct information as to arriving and departing trains, where to go, what to see, etc.

COMMUNITY SINGS—organizing large choruses for concerts and congregational singing of popular music, a favorite form of entertainment of men in uniform and most inspirational.

HOME HOSPITALITY—organizing communities for the entertainment of soldiers, sailors and marines; just home boys, at home dinners and home gatherings.

COMMUNITY HOUSES—erected near camps and cantonments where parents, relatives and friends can meet men in training, in pleasant surroundings.

COMMUNITY HOSPITALITY—getting clubs, churches, associations, fraternal organizations, city officials and private individuals, men and women, to see that our soldiers on leave are properly treated and have a healthy good time.

There are no hard and fast rules for the activities of this Service. Precedents are not followed, that which seems best is done. Bathing beaches, restaurants, girls' clubs, band concerts, convalescent and educational work are a small part of the many activities organized by the War Camp Community Service.

'PENROD' IN A PLAY IS HIGHLY AMUSING

Booth Tarkington's Hero as a Boy "Deteckatuf" in Chief.

THE EPIC OF AGE ELEVEN

The Characters in the Familiar Novel as a Setting for a New Story.

PENROD, a comedy in four acts by Edward E. Rose, based upon Booth Tarkington's stories. At the Globe.

Tim	Robert Vaughn
Della	Flo Irwin
Mary Schofield	Catherine Emmet
Burns	Thomas Ford
Robert Williams	Paul Kelly
Mrs. Laura Rewbush	Maud Hosford
Jarge	Leslie M. Hunt
Henry P. Schofield	Edmund Elton
Margaret Schofield	Helen Hayes
Mr. Jones	George Meech
Herbert Hamilton Dade	John Davidson
Penrod Schofield	Andrew Lawlor
Sam Williams	Richard Ross
Rev. Lester Kinosling	W. F. Canfield
Rodney Magsworth Bitts	Bevor Alvarez
Maurice Levy	Henry Quinn
Georgie Bassett	Ben F. Grauer
Mrs. Bassett	May Ellis
Mamie Rennesdale	Lillian Roth
Marjorie Jones	Helen Chandler
Herman	Thomas McCann
Verman	Charles Whitfield
Mr. Coombes	Jack Ellis

People who go to the Globe to see a dramatization of the Penrod stories of the long-familiar volume will be, in one sense, disappointed. The play is constructed about an entirely new episode which, though incidentally published in a magazine, was written with a view to dramatization. That is as well—or better. The volume has been pronounced quite undramatizable, and probably is so. The new story is in Mr. Tarkington's best vein and affords material for a play which is thoroughly interesting, and which kept last night's audience amused throughout the evening.

It shows Penrod playing an intense and exciting game of make-believe as a detective—a "deteckatuf," in fact—whom he has modeled on a hero of the movies. Sam Williams is his Lieutenant, and the negro boys from across the alley, Herman and Verman, complete his staff. The object of their fell pursuit is a beau of Penrod's sister, Margaret, who is also a prospective business associate of their father. How the quartet of "deteckatufs" persecute the lover and upset the business deal may best be left to the play to tell. There is quite enough drama to hold the four acts together; and, though the four boys lack something of the delicious deftness of characterization in the book, the play shows them quite adequately in their habits as they live. Herman and Verman—especially Verman with his tongue-tied jargon—are an unalloyed delight.

By far the best scene of the play comes in the last act when Penrod and Sam, supposing that they have actually shot their make-believe crook, are cross-examined by Penrod's father. The stories they tell—and especially the blank wall which they rear against every question as to literal fact—make up a little masterpiece of comic invention.

In the end Penrod finds that, instead of being the culprit as usual—the seat of his trousers has been actually twitching in anticipation—he is the hero of the occasion. How this has fallen out he does not know. It is the eternal mystery of 11 years old. His own world of simple, barbaric impulses is above good and evil. But the world of grown-ups has standards as momentous as they are unfathomable; there is no telling whether the result of any particular moment of joy will be a taste of the birch or an approving quarter. This time the mystery is twice confounded, for it is $5.

Undoubtedly the book reveals a keener insight into the epic joys and sorrows of eleven years old, a far subtler humor in contrasting its Homeric passions with the prose of maturity.

But if any one laments the lack of the familiar episodes let him consider what has happened to the solitary one which is attempted—that in which Penrod figures as the child Sir Launcelot in his sister's old stockings and his father's red flannel drawers transmogrified into knightly breeches. Humor vanishes in bathos. Some of the characters are attempted; but with the exception of the "deteckatufs" they are attempted in vain. Maurice Levy of the heroic digestion is a lay figure, and Marjorie Jones is a mere shadow of her tyrannous self.

The cast is admirable, and the acting as deft as it is discreet. The four boys seem to be literally 11 years old; and, though there is at times a rather sad forcing both of their histrionism and of their childish voices, the effect as a whole is astonishingly good. Andrew Lawlor, as Penrod, gave a performance quite wonderfully detailed and sustained. As Sam Williams, Richard Ross had moments of awkwardness, but he redeemed them amply by other moments of quite heavenly humor.

The scenes show the lawn, the side yard, and the sitting room of the Schofield house, and are pleasantly atmospheric of the well-to-do Middle West.

SAY ALLIES BEAT GERMANS.

Behind in Aviation and Artillery, Returning Officers Assert.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 2.—Several American and British officers belonging to the air forces in their respective armies arrived today from the western front to give instruction to the cadets at the aviation camps in the United States. They declined to comment on the war except to say that the Allies were decidedly ahead of the Germans in aviation and artillery, and each infantryman had proved to be worth at least two of the enemy, including the much-advertised Prussian Guard.

Captain Lewis D. Boeree of Winnipeg, Man., who was on his way home suffering from shock through overflying, has officially brought down twelve Hun machines and has spent the last three months with the American soldiers on the western front. He said that he liked them immensely in every way, and it was a certainty that the American Army will continue to make its mark throughout the war.

Another passenger was Count Kozo Yoshi of Tokio, Japan, who said he had been over to attend the Fourth International Parliamentary Commercial Conference held in London. The object of the conference was to establish unity of international commercial laws. The first one, in 1914, was held in Brussels, the Count added, and was attended by Germany. Since the war the conferences had been kept up by the Allies and the neutral countries.

Neighborhood Theatres Reopen.

Labor Day, as usual, witnessed a general reopening of the neighborhood theatres and vaudeville houses throughout the city. One new house was added to the string of neighborhood theatres in the Shubert-Riviera, at Broadway at Ninety-seventh Street. "Eyes of Youth" began a week's engagement there yesterday afternoon, and a weekly change of bill will be the policy. The Standard Theatre, at Ninetieth Street, also began its season yesterday, presenting Lou Tellegen in "Blind Youth."

Among the vaudeville theatres the Colonial, Alhambra, and Orpheum reopened for the season.

Jolson in "Sinbad" at Century.

Al Jolson, whose popularity in "Sinbad" had been by no means exhausted when that attraction vacated the Winter Garden two months ago, began a supplementary metropolitan engagement yesterday afternoon at the Century Theatre. The occasion marked the first time that a Winter Garden show has been seen in New York in any theatre other than its original home. Several hundred members of the "Yip! Yip! Yaphank!" company were the guests of the management at the matinée.

British War Mission in Washington

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The British War Mission headed by Sir Maurice de Bunsen, which has been visiting South American countries to adjust trade and financial conditions to meet the exigencies of the war, arrived in Washington today from Havana. The visitors will remain in Washington a week or ten days, during which time they will be the recipients of official courtesy.

THEATRICAL NOTE.

The first performance of "Mr. Barnum" took place last night at Atlantic City. The piece is a circus comedy by Thomas A. Wise and Harrison Rhodes, and will be produced at the Criterion Theatre here next Monday night.

PEACE PLOT THEME OF NEW WAR PLAY

"Watch Your Neighbor" Tells Excitingly of the Foiling of a German Trick.

STAGEY, BUT FASCINATING

Moves Swiftly and Begins Where Other Spy Dramas Leave Off, and Is Reckless of Probabilities.

WATCH YOUR NEIGHBOR, a melodrama in three acts, by Leon Gordon and Le Roy Clemens. At the Booth.

Corporal Greene	Le Roy Clemens
Commissioner	Alexander Loftus
Major Tomms	Frederick Esmelton
Captain Fielding	Gerald Pring
Captain Bennett	Leon Gordon
Sergeant Birdseye	Stanley Harrison
Dorothy Farnham	Mary Servoss
Mr. Dudley	Emil Hoch
Mrs. Patch	Ruby Hallier
Comrade Deversalles	Harold Vosburgh
Karl	Dore Rogers
Comrade Olganoff	Bertram Marburgh
Comrade Nagle	Dodson L. Mitchell
Comrade Pastorelli	Edward Colebrook
Comrade Beaubein	John De Briac
Comrade Bergstoff	Charles Fisher

"Watch Your Neighbor" is stagey but fascinating. Of all the war melodramas it skirts widest of the probabilities, but it never is dull for a minute. It is always entertaining, and at its best moments it becomes exciting, and even thrilling. When it moves it moves with speed—and that is its salvation. If you like war plays you are certain to wax enthusiastic over it, and if you don't like them you are likely to regard it as much theatrical balderdash. Either way you will be right.

The play is the work of two actors, Leon Gordon and Le Roy Clemens, both of whom take part in the performance. The piece begins where other war plays leave off by taking peace plotting as its theme. Socialist delegates from the warring countries gather at a peace conference in Switzerland, where there is put forward a somewhat nebulous plan, whereby the fighters of all nations will surrender to each other at a given signal. It is, of course, all a German trick, and the foiling of the plan and the outwitting of half a dozen or more Germans provide most of the melodrama.

The hero of it all is a "silly ass" Englishman, somewhat of the type made familiar in "The Man Who Stayed at Home"—a Secret Service man who seeks to disarm suspicion by his apparent simpleness. In "Watch Your Neighbor" he takes the credentials of the English delegate and goes in his place to the conference, where, at the conclusion of Act II., he triumphs over the prostrate forms of two men from the Wilhelmstrasse, hurls one chair through a picture of the Kaiser and another through the window, and makes his escape with the papers.

The necessary love interest is none too plausibly brought in by making the American delegate a girl. But, then, the piece cannot be spoken of in the same breath with plausibility, for, judged by such a standard, it collapses utterly. It must be taken for what it is—melodrama, and that only. As such it is rather good fun.

Mr. Gordon, as the hero, overplays his silly moments a trifle, and is responsible for giving much of the piece the aspect of farce. He goes to particular pains to be nonsensical when there is no apparent need for it, and the Germans in the play would have good grounds for suspecting him merely on the strength of his attempts at imbecility.

The second author, Mr. Clemens, appears as an orderly in the first act. The acting as a whole is everything that the play calls for, with Dodson Mitchell standing out as the delegate from Germany. Mary Servoss is the delegate from America, and has somewhat fewer opportunities than a description of the plot would indicate.

SAN CARLO OPERA RETURNS.

Crowd Warmly Greets "Aida," with Elizabeth Amsden in Title Rol.

Signor Caruso and his American bride, in a right stage box under flags of the Allies, joined an eager audience that stood up and cheered at the Shubert Theatre last night while the orchestra of the San Carlo Opera Company played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and Italy's "Marcia Reale." The crowd welcomed Italian grand opera at theatre prices—all the more heartily, perhaps, in wartime—for the house was reported sold out early in the day, while later it was said that as many as a thousand had been turned away. The opera last night was "Aida," with which Fortune Gallo had also opened his first season here on Labor Day last year at the neighboring Forty-fourth Street, and which his company gave last March at a Red Cross benefit in Washington before President Wilson.

Last night's audience during an intermission shouted five minutes for "Caruso, Caruso," and the famous Radames of the Metropolitan had to rise and bow, though he refused a speech. He left before the opera ended at midnight.

With few exceptions the San Carlo's 125 young artists returned in unbroken ranks from 24,000 miles travel in a twelvemonth. There were one or two changes in the "Aida" cast. Charles Baker announced from the stage that Manuel Salazar, the Spanish tenor, due by steamship from Costa Rica and as yet unreported yesterday "at an Atlantic port," would therefore not appear, though his name was in the bill. The new Radames was a Russian instead, Leone Zinovieff, who was recently with Chicago and who once sang an open-air "Aida" at St. Louis, though he now moderated his tones to suit a smaller theatre.

"Aida's" title rôle, for the first time at the Shubert if not elsewhere, was well taken by Elizabeth Amsden, who had been with the old Boston troupe as well as those of Chicago and the local Century. Miss Amsden's husband, the French-Canadian baritone, Joseph Royer, was again in Mr. Gallo's roster as Amonasro, while Stella De Mette reappeared as Amneris, Pietro de Diasi as Ramfis, Natale Cervi as the King, and in minor rôles Frances Morosini and Luciano Rossini. Gaetano Merola, a conductor for Hammerstein in London, led the forty orchestra men for whom several rows of theatre chairs were removed, and there was a ballet drilled by Luigi Albertieri, with a new first dancer, Clara Tosca.

Miss Amsden was called before the curtain after her first scene and greeted with much enthusiasm, as an American girl of the growing number that owe less to Europe's stage than to the helping "hand" of audiences at home. Mr. Zinovieff sang with manly ease that quickly divided the allegiance of Italians and Russians in the house, but his good reception in an emergency was doubly deserved. Mr. Royer and others had their greeting from the friends they had made last year. The prosperity of that former tour was reflected in much new scenery, framed in a "shadow border" of sapphire blue velvet.

The Shubert lobbies, being smaller than the house over the way, could not contain an excitable crowd that early packed sidewalk and carriage lane outside. It was announced that, following the New York engagement, the Shuberts had secured the company for a brief term at the Boston Opera House this Fall.

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

RUSSIA'S END SEEN IN GERMAN PRESS

Articles in Teuton Papers Confirm Reports of Kaiser's Plan to Seize Reins.

WOULD "HELP" BOLSHEVIKI

Under Pretext of Saving Country from the Allies, Berlin Aims to Tighten Grip.

Articles found in copies of German newspapers and magazines recently reaching the outside world confirm the reports arriving here from various sources telling how the German Government is seriously considering "coming to the help" of the Bolshevist Government in Russia with soldiers, and then, under the pretext of saving Russia from the Allies, making an attempt to set up a régime openly controlled from Berlin.

Writing in the July number of the Preussische Jarbücher, Professor Hans Delbrück, generally regarded as a "moderate" German publicist and a strong advocate of the complete restoration of Belgium by the German Government, begins an article on the Russian situation as follows:

"What a blessing it would be for Germany if—now that Czarism, which always aimed at conquest, has been killed, and the peril from the east, which always weighed so heavily upon us, has been averted and shut out—we were bounded on the east by a number of middle-sized, small, and very small nations, who had no other ambition than to cultivate their peculiar characteristics, to go about their work, and to build up with us an exchange of commodities equally advantageous for both parties. But unfortunately this picture is nothing but a dream of Paradise."

Then, dismissing this Utopian idea, Dr. Delbrück goes on to say:

"What would happen if we refused to interfere in the internal affairs of Eastern Europe? The impending conflicts will not be fought out by Russian forces alone. The first party which rises or which gets into trouble will look about for foreign help, and its opponent will do the same. Will all the Powers abstain, and, on the principle of non-intervention, leave the Russians to settle their quarrels among themselves? First with money and arms, and then with troops also, Japanese, English, and Americans will appear and offer their help. They are doing so already. Can we leave it to our enemies, who even after peace will remain our rivals, to create order, whether with this party or with that, and so to establish their influence? Can Germany put up with that? Has not Germany herself the very greatest interest in seeing that a state of things shall prevail in Eastern Europe which will make possible production of goods and an ordered exchange? Are persons to starve in Germany because anarchy reigns in the land of corn and sugar?"

In discussing the fate of Esthonia and Livonia, where he is convinced the Germans must remain "in some form or other," Dr. Delbrück remarks:

"The obstacle is our evil repute as the oppressors of small nationalities. How different would be our present position in the world, and how much easier the whole eastern policy would be for us, if we had treated our Poles and Danes somewhat less roughly during the last decade, if we had not forced German elementary schools upon them, and if Prince Bülow had not crowned everything by breaking the Settlement law.

"Even now we have not resolved to put an end to our colonization policy in Prussian Poland and in Schleswig; indeed, a noisy agitation is demanding the revival of the unhappy old system which has done only harm to Germanism and is now making the greatest difficulties for our linking up of the eastern peoples with Germany."

Several days later a leading article in the Kolnische Zeitung, which is occasionally inspired from the Wilhelmstrasse, said:

"It is the obvious aim of the Entente to create a new eastern front, and, if in any way possible, to find elements in Russia which are ready to be driven into a fresh state of war against Germany. It must seem more than doubtful whether the Entente will find willing helpers for this purpose. The Russian people is absolutely weary of the war, and would presumably drive out any Government which let loose this new war. On the other hand, the events connected with the rising of the Revolutionary Socialists show that the efforts to sow mistrust against Germany have not been entirely unsuccessful. All the more important is it for Germany soon to establish a relationship with Russia which—in the first place by a far-reaching economic agreement—will knock the bottom out of these intrigues. As far as can be seen, both the present Government in Russia and the Cadet Party are seeking contact with Germany.

"One may well hope that the German-Russian conversations, which refer to a whole series of economic, world-political, and territorial-strategic questions, will soon lead to an agreement between the two Governments. There is every disposition for this on the German side, as is shown by the dispassionate view that is taken of the regrettable murder of our Ambassador.

"It is not a question of the revision of the peace of Brest-Litovsk. Such a revision has not been demanded by the present Russian Government, and it is regrettable that such ideas are discussed in German newspapers. The Russian Empire still retains a power in the economic sphere which it will be a great task for the present Russian Government to develop into happy conditions. Germany will always strive to give Russia a helping hand in every respect.

"As soon as the new Foreign Secretary has assumed his office, one of his main tasks will lie in this sphere. If he soon succeeds in bringing the German-Russian negotiations to a conclusion which—in the first place in the economic sphere—will secure the strengthening of our mutual economic forces, that would be the best foundation for a friendly relationship, which, shedding its rays upon both domestic and foreign policy, will perhaps represent the most effective peace offensive of the Central Powers. Such a relationship may be expected to demonstrate even to the most passionate chauvinists in Paris, London, and Washington the impossibility of their victory, while on the other hand it might liberate Russia from many of her present difficulties."

On July 28 the Frankfurter Zeitung printed a lengthy report from its correspondent in Moscow in which conditions in the Bolshevist capital were depicted in the gloomiest colors and the country round about was described as being in a state of anarchy. After summing up the military situation so far as the activities of the Bolsheviki, the Social Revolutionaries, and the Czechoslovaks were concerned, the German writer went on:

"It is plainly felt that a ring of hostile centres of operation is gradually tightening itself about Moscow. Trotzky, the Commissioner for War, issues flaming appeals against the counter-revolution in the north, south, east, and west. For the foreign observer the visible result of these manifestoes consists in causing small groups of Red Guards, intermixed with armed workingmen and women, to make occasional marches through the streets. The persons in the street cars rise and watch the strange processions pass, look dumbly into each others' faces, and shrug their shoulders. Late yesterday evening the news was spread of the shooting of Nicholas II. in Yekaterinburg. For the first time there is excitement noted in this city. Perhaps over two things. Over the sad end of the Czar, as well as over the circumstances which forced the Commissioners of the Soviet Government to order the shooting of their prisoner, a measure that is celebrated by the Bolshevist sheets printed here as a triumph of the 'red terror,' but which nevertheless is reacting deeply upon the people and certainly will not remain without far-reaching consequences."

THE Statler hotels still pledge—and deliver—your full money's worth, just as they always have.

Most of the Statler rooms are the same price today as before the war. All the characteristic Statler comforts are there, too; and the Statler policies are unchanged.

You get more than your money's worth at a Statler Hotel.

Rates are from $2 up (more than 60% of the rooms are $3 or less). Every—every—room has private bath, circulating ice water and many other unusual equipment-features that add to your comfort and save you time, annoyance and money.

A morning paper is delivered to every guest-room—without charge, of course. This is typical of Statler service. Club breakfasts are served in all restaurants.

Statler hotels go the limit to please you, because they stake their continued growth and success on the way they take care of present business.

HOTEL PENNSYLVANIA, to be opened about January 1st, will be the largest hotel in the world; and in appointments, service and character worthy in every way of America's first city, her greatest railway system and her most prominent hotel chain.

how would you like to be in France?

—To stop at a little village; to see the peaceful life, the lovers with their gentle wooing, the twilight minstrels under the faithful moon, the happy homes, the contented villagers.

—And then!

—Hear war's alarms; see the troops go marching off; hear the tread of tramping legions, the thrust and roar of battle, the gallant charge, the massed combat.

—And

—In the village the coming of the horde of Huns, the spray of shrapnel and the terrible shock of shell.

—To see the magnificent womanhood of France, sublime devotion, eternal faith, undying love, heroic fortitude.

—To be in that terrific drama on the allied front.

thousands go to France every week

—They are visiting Chaulnes, Nesle, Noyon, Ham, Guiscard, Ribecourt, the St. Gobain Forest and the Vesle sectors.

—They are, figuratively, standing on the very ground where the Americans, British, and French are now fighting.

—And in the North they are with the Americans and the British at Mount Kemmel, at Arras, at Ypres; actually following every movement of Our Boys.

—You can go to France today—tonight—and see the very ground where the Allies are making history.

—You can be at Voormezeele, Vierstrat, Bailleul—right in the very thick of the fight.

—You can be guided by David Wark Griffith along the very roads where he secured the wonderful battle scenes for "Hearts of the World."

—There is only ONE PLACE in all New York where you can actually see ALL FOUR FRONTS OF THE PRESENT BATTLE, and that place is the 44TH STREET THEATRE.

—"Hearts of the World" is now in its 6th Month at the 44th Street Theatre, and is still proving the greatest sensation in New York.

SHOOTING OF LENINE.

The shooting of Nikolai Lenine, like the shooting of Nikolai Romanoff, was a thing that was bound to come. If he is not dead of his wounds, as reported, it is probable that he will be shot again. "All anarchy," as Carlyle said of an earlier Reign of Terror, "is, by the nature of it, "dragon's teeth; suicidal, and cannot "endure." Nature abhors anarchy, and has its own way of curing it; the way of letting the anarchy eat itself up. In March, 1793, when the French Reign of Terror was beginning, Vergniaud, the great Girondin orator, said to the National Convention: "Citizens, it may be feared that the "Revolution, like Saturn, successive-"ly devouring all its children, will at "last engender despotism, with its "accompanying calamities."

Kerensky escaped this fate by flight, Savinkov by taking up arms. There is hardly any question that their lives would have been forfeited if they had stayed as long as Lenine has. The Revolution has been "devouring its own children" at a rapid rate. The murders and massacres that have been going on incessantly in Russia are no longer those of Royalists, or even of Constitutionalists. They are murders of Socialists of all kinds, but chiefly of Social Revolutionists. The two hundred so-called "counter-revolutionists" who were massacred under the pretense that they were concerned in the killing of Count Mirbach were Social Revolutionists, just as socialistic and just as anti-royalist as Lenine himself. It is quite likely that as many human beings have been slaughtered already in the Russian Reign of Terror as in the whole French Reign of Terror, and of late they have been mostly Social Revolutionists.

There is no republic and no democracy in Russia, and the Social Revolutionists, recognizing that fact, have taken up the arms of terrorism against the new despotism as they so long used those arms against the old. Mirbach and Eichhorn were the first victims we heard of, though there may have been many others less important; and now comes the shooting, perhaps the death, of Lenine. Terror fights with terror; the underground terror which so long acted as "rude justice" over the Czar's satraps is now turned against the new tyranny. That tyranny is not even a tyranny of the working classes; men of the working classes are slain as impartially as noblemen; the extremest Socialists have no more chance of life than the Czar's Generals, unless they subscribe to that particular kind of socialism which Lenine invented himself. Let us hear Vergniaud again, and see how difficult it is to realize that that famous revolutionist was talking not of Russia today but of France 125 years ago:

> We have seen the development of that strange system of liberty according to which we are told: "You are free, but think like us on such and such a question of political economy, or we denounce you to the vengeance of the people. You are free, but bow down to the idol to which we offer incense, or we denounce you to the vengeance of the people. You are free, but join us in prosecuting the man whose enlightenment and integrity we dread, or we will denounce you to the vengeance of the people."

"I contend that we have never been "so enslaved as since we have called "ourselves republican," said that other great revolutionist Camille Desmoulins. Yet France had at least the form of a popular government during the Terror, while the present so-called Government of Russia is an irresponsible despotism. Recognizing that the new despotism differs from the old only in the circumstance that it is conducting a Reign of Terror, the Social Revolutionists have deliberately renewed the old war which they conducted against the tyranny they overthrew. For Lenine and his narrow sect had no part in the overthrow of the Czar; that was done by the Constitutional Democrats and the Social Revolutionists, the Leninists being then mostly in Switzerland, London, Paris, and New York, and entirely out of the scene wherever they were.

The Leninists will, of course, put Dora Kaplan to death, whether Lenine dies or not. But they remember enough of the old underground terror to be aware that this punishment is no deterrent. The youth who killed Eichhorn is said to have held the despots so lightly as to tell them to their faces that he was a delegate from a circle in Moscow, specially sent to the Ukraine to kill Eichhorn and die himself. Every characteristic of the old terrorism against the Czars is present, except that there is an additional ferocity, which is manifest in the unusual frequency of these assassinations. It is, indeed, war. The Revolution is successively devouring its children, as was foreordained; anarchy is suicidal, by the nature of it.

TODAY'S PRIMARIES.

In the hands of the enrolled voters of each party are the power and the opportunity today to make its nominations, local, State, and Federal. Men and women who abstained from the trouble of enrollment have shut themselves out from anything more than a November ratification of or protest against the choices made. It is for those who are enrolled to go to their polling places and vote, every woman and man of them; and then, whatever the outcome, at least the enrolled voter will have done his duty; and candidates fairly defeated can fall back on their philosophy.

The primary system, lamentable as are its faults, defective as are its workings, is what we have got. Let us make the best use of it we can, not loaf away from it, substitute abuse for action, and blame the primaries for the results of our own laches.

HONEST MICHEL.

Honest Michel is not a "stayer." Even in the course of the great German offensive that began on March 21 the military critic von Salzmann was writing in the Vossische Zeitung, (April 27:)

> It is remarkable in this war how often the tension of the nerves of a large part of the German public produces hallucinations. In Berlin people have been saying quite openly to one another everywhere: "In the Reichs-"tag they say our losses were enor-"mous." "In the Reichstag they say the offensive in the west has stuck." "In the Reichstag they say the enemy "is much stronger than the high com-"mand had assumed at the beginning "of the campaign."

And so on. "People should not al-"low themselves to be frightened by "old wives' tales. Is there anything "the German soldier cannot do? The "man in the steel helmet can do "everything; he has proved himself "superior to the enemy wherever he "has met him and overthrown "worlds." Thus, while Paul Lensch, the Majority Socialist Deputy, was proclaiming the foundation of a greater than the Roman Empire; while pompous, thrasonical congratulations poured over the thirtieth anniversary of the Kaiser's accession to the throne, were weeks ahead; in Berlin, von Salzmann admitted, "people have begun to lose their nerve." "The Ger-"man people and army are indeed "now one," cried the Kaiser in his famous anniversary speech on June 15, when he set "German principles of right, freedom, honor, and morality" against Anglo-Saxon idolatry of Mammon. Even some of the newspapers couldn't stomach that. How flat and unprofitable it must have appeared to "people who have lost their nerve."

We know the panic terror, the cries for peace, of the bombarded Rhine cities treated to doses of German medicine. If the people, long fed with illusive promises of victory, have lost their nerve in a great temporarily successful offensive, what must be their fears, their flabbiness of resolution, after a great successful offensive of the Allies?

We know the danger of believing anything that comes from Germany, but antecedent probability, fact, as instanced by von Salzmann, and the official speeches and "business" which Hindenburg and Hertling, the two Leading Old Men of the German stage at present, are using prove, as do the Kaiser's frequent pieties to his German Gott, that Hans Michel is getting gooseflesh. The German people are told by Hindenburg that their enemies show "the will to annihilation." A good many of the German people know better than that. "I have great confidence," continues Hindenburg in his telegram to Hertling, "that the "Fatherland stands united behind the "fighting troops." So united that Hertling has to warn against criticism of the Government and its measures, heightening party antagonism, in which "there is undoubtedly danger." "The enemy," he says, "dream "of impending internal collapse, they "construct their stronghold of victory "thereon, and for its sake protract "the war."

The enemy, as a matter of fact, dreams of nothing of the kind. A complete peace, dictated inside of Germany, as Mr. Lodge puts it, is what the enemy is fighting for. But Hertling's perturbation is even more evident than Hindenburg's. There is no danger of "a real convulsion in the life of the State," he says. "Our "German nation is, in its overwhelm-"ing majority, too perspicacious and "intelligent for that." Too well-drilled, too incapable of coherent, reasoned political thought and action, too helpless, it may well be. Yet there is scission, trouble. A remedy is needed, "united and firm cohesion between "the Emperor and Empire and the "Government and people." That is a confession of disagreement, of disunity. Behind it we may guess the condition in adversity of the people who lost their nerve even after victories.

"Our glorious troops will continue to beat back the tremendous onset," et cetera. We seem to see the Kaiser, Hindenburg, Hertling as three drunken warlocks holding one another up and yelling at the German people, as if they were primitive savages, magic formulas, words of power, "will to victory," "our glorious troops."

The German used to be arrogant in success. The ruling class is now. Spineless seems Honest Michel. He must be coaxed, entreated, bulldozed, hypnotized into believing that black is white. Innumerable are the homilies to him to pluck up a heart. The British will take any amount of disaster, keep a close mouth, fight with indomitable spirit. The French, after nearly four years of suffering and endurance, were threatened imminently last Spring with the loss of Paris. They didn't whimper. The Government offices packed up. The Government, the munition factories, were ready to move. A black hour. Wouldn't a word of cheer from Mr. Wilson be advisable? "We shall fight," said President Poincaré, "before Paris, in Paris, behind Paris." It would be well to wait until the last contingency before asking for a word of cheer. Another difference between the psychology of civilized and savage peoples.

THE TRADE COMMISSION.

Either the Federal Trade Commission or the act creating it stands in need of amendment. That is made plain by the communication sent to President Wilson by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which arraigns the Commission as unfair in its processes, inaccurate in its reports, abusive of its powers, hostile to the business of the country, and a fomenter of strife.

If the Commission, with the approval of the Executive, is to continue its efforts to create prejudice against the great industries of the country, if it is to carry on the propaganda of a class struggle and engage in the agitation for Government ownership, then the act which established it should forthwith be amended to make its charter conform to its practices. It was believed when the Commission was created that it was to inquire into practices alleged to be in restraint of trade, to give warning that unfair methods in competition must cease and to use its influence to secure their abandonment. It was hoped that through voluntary compliance with its recommendations a great deal of costly litigation would be avoided and corporate good behavior generally established.

The Commission's report on profiteering made it evident that the Commissioners did not take that view of their duties. The communication to the President instances that report and other acts and utterances of the Commission as evidence that it seeks to create prejudice "which would sup-"port an apparently preconceived pur-"pose to inaugurate Government op-"eration" of the packing business. Its methods of inquiry are declared to be "subversive of common justice," and in its report it employs "sensational "terms unwarranted by the facts set "out" and better suited to the compositions of an irresponsible muckraker than to the pages of an official document.

The observant public lost confidence in the Commission when the profiteering report was published. If it is worth while to maintain the Commission, if it is to serve any useful purpose, it should be cured of its present Bolshevist and propagandist tendencies. The suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that "men of a different type from those "now in control be appointed to fill "vacancies" is reasonable and sound.

THE HOUSE'S REVENUE BILL.

Chairman Kitchin authorizes a statement that the Treasury has accepted the draft of a war revenue bill which the Ways and Means Committee has been pressing, with modifications to which Mr. Kitchin confines his statement. To individual taxpayers the most important and interesting fact is that the agreement is "absolute and satisfactory" regarding the normal tax on personal incomes. Above $4,000 it is 12 per cent. Below $4,000 to the exemption limits the rate is 6 per cent. There is no distinction made between earned and unearned incomes, and, since the normal rate is higher than had been proposed when a differential rate was under consideration, there is a reduction through the surtax rates. The calculations are not complete, but the maximum income tax with surtax is put at 77 per cent., compared with 67 under the present law. On $10,000 income the tax works out at $965, and on $100,000 at $39,215.

The most important thing in the bill regarding corporation taxes is the combination of the excess profits tax with the war profit tax. Secretary McAdoo carried his point regarding a flat 80 per cent. war profit tax, but was obliged to concede higher rates for the excess profits tax. The official calculations of the effect of the combination upon the taxpaying corporations are complicated and incomplete. Moreover, there are limitations as to the maximum surtax and credits before calculation of the tax, so that the outcome is not sure until the official text is available. Semi-officially it is stated that the rates are 35 per cent. for profits below 15 per cent. upon invested capital, 50 per cent. between 15 and 20 per cent., and 70 per cent. above 20 per cent. profit on invested capital.

It cannot be thought that the enactment of the House bill is sure because Chairman Kitchin is so enthusiastic about his agreement with Secretary McAdoo. The Secretary conceded much for the sake of progress through the House, but there remains much for the Senate to consider. The harshest critic of the House's failure to agree completely with the Treasury will not deny that the House has improved upon its previous efforts. Nor will it be possible for the best friends of the House proposals to deny that unprecedented weight of taxation has been thrown upon production rather than upon consumption, as it is by the corporation taxes. If consumption were checked by consumption taxes, the check upon production would be less burdensome to business and better diffused through all classes of the community. When business is deprived of profits fairly earned because they are thought excessive, there is a reflex action against the taxing power which is not felt when business is reduced by decline of consumptive demand. Praise of such a proposal must be so qualified that the controversy should be regarded as open until the Senate and the Conference Committee have reported. They may be less complaisant than the Secretary, who has yielded much—as well as won much—at a time when the country's approval might have stiffened his resistance to proposals not paralleled in other countries.

NO RAILROAD POLITICS.

"Politics adjourned" in the Government-controlled railroad service—that is the order of Director General McAdoo. Political activity is forbidden all his employés, from executive officers to trainmen; and even retained attorneys must forbear. Those who covet political office must resign. It is hardly a fair picture that Mr. McAdoo paints of "railroads under private control" which dabbled in politics:

> It was a matter of common report that railroads under private control were frequently used for partisan political purposes, that railroad corporations were frequently adjuncts of political machines, and that even sovereign States had been at times dominated by them.

As Mr. McAdoo says, there were scandals, "the public interest was "prejudiced, and hostility to railroad "management was engendered." That professional politicians and lobbyists were often as much to blame as the railroad officers and their attorneys, and that sometimes the companies were solicited to buy their rights and privileges, succumbing to the temptation, is a matter that naturally the Director General does not touch upon, nor is he called upon to do so. Mr. McAdoo has drawn up a set of regulations to keep his employés, that is to say the servants of the people's Government, in the straight and narrow path. To them he says:

> Let us demonstrate to the American people that, under Federal control, railroad officers, attorneys, and employés cannot be made a part of any political machine nor be used for any organized partisan or selfish purpose.

Amen, say all of us! During the period of the war the Director General should be able to enforce his decree. He has absolute authority. The responsibility is his. As Mr. Wilson says: "We are all enlisted men." Moreover, the railroad men really want no politics in the administration and discharge of their duties. But after the war, when for a period designated by Congress the railroads will continue to be Government-controlled, what then? It is a speculation that makes the American people ponder. The Government's responsibility will still continue. Will it always repress tendencies to political activity among its supporters employed in operating the railroads? That is the question.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Made, But Lost, Their Friends.

In the truly interesting letter sent, or, at any rate, written, by Marcus Braun to his friend in Berlin two years ago, and now exhumed by Assistant Attorney General Becker from his secret place of many thunders, there is one sentence that fixes the reader's delighted attention even more than do the other sentences that so delicately characterized and complimented "our rotten pro-English newspapers" and our administration of justice "in the hands of British lackeys."

When Mr. Braun wrote those things he was simply expressing the familiar products of the Teutonic inner consciousness, and, as usual, they had no relation to reality. He has not lived here quite in vain, however, and that he observes and judges correctly, now and then, what is to be seen in the United States he proved when, after referring to the regrettable antagonism to his beloved Germany that existed here, he wrote: "It is a good deal the fault of our German friends themselves. Somehow or other they do not understand how to make friends."

A great truth, that, or it would have been had he said that what they did not understand was how to keep friends. His American memories extend backward far enough for him easily to recall a time when there was nothing but friendliness in this country for Germans in Germany and for Germans here—when nobody ever referred to German-Americans except to group them with "our best citizens." They were welcomed everywhere as neighbors, every door was open to them, and of all our later arrivals they were perhaps alone in encountering nothing whatever of prejudice, jealousy, or distrust on the part of the older stocks. They were credited with industry, sobriety, intelligence, and loyalty, and innumerable American students thought their education incomplete till they had rounded it out at a German university.

That these feelings have changed is, as Mr. Braun said, "a good deal the fault of our German friends themselves." As a matter of fact, it is entirely their fault, or rather it is entirely the fault of a small minority of them. What the fault was he is well qualified to tell them if he would, as he belongs to that minority himself.

Censorship at Its Very Worst.

A very recent inquirer at one of the New York libraries for "The Unpardonable Sin," by Rupert Hughes, was told, rather scornfully and rather haughtily, that it was not the intention to have the book there or to assist in its circulation. No explanation of the refusal was made, but it would be both interesting and profitable to have one, and it might well be obtained by the Federal authorities. For, of the innumerable books that the war has produced, not half a dozen, if as many, that would be catalogued as fiction better deserve reading by good Americans of every age and both sexes than does "The Unpardonable Sin," and none better rewards a careful perusal.

Many parts of the book, indeed, will be found highly objectionable by pro-Germans and by pacifists, and there are, perhaps, a few people outside of those two closely related classes who, in this instance as in so many others, think ignorance is innocence and hope to abolish painful or terrible facts by ignoring them. It is true that Captain Hughes tells plainly, but always decently, of certain abominable crimes committed by the Germans in Belgium. He doesn't tell all of those crimes, or the worst of them, because the revelation of some of them is possible only in official reports and technical treatises on psychopathology. He exercises a wise discretion and keeps well within the limits of the permissible, the commendable, and the essential—the essential because only by telling what he tells, and only by telling it as well as he tells it, can the American public be forced clearly to realize just why the United States and its allies have sternly determined, cost what it may, to fight this war with Germany to a real finish.

For every statement made by Captain Hughes as of fact there is the warrant of sworn testimony, with names, dates, and places, in the reports of the Bryce Commission and those of the French and Belgian Governments. He has exaggerated nothing and set down nothing in malice. And it is this book that a New York library sees fit to banish from its shelves! Why? Who rejects the theory of disloyalty—and to protect the enemy from deserved obloquy is a form of treason—must resort to the alternative explanation, hardly more charitable, of a silly and vicious prudery. Anyhow, such a censorship of the public's reading matter by library officials is nothing less than intolerable.

Everybody, Nearly, Was Good.

That a majority of automobilists so large as to make the minority almost negligible in forming a judgment of the public's present attitude and sentiment refrained from unnecessary uses of motor cars on Sunday—that is, indeed, a source of legitimate satisfaction for us all. Expression of this joy, however, should be as mild as that over any other manifestation of the fundamental virtues, and out of it the judicious carefully will keep any emotion that shows or hints surprise.

For who cannot see that while it would have been truly a dreadful and alarming thing if, at this time, a reasonable request from an authorized representative of our Government had met with anything else and less than cheerful heed and prompt, the fact that it was so met shows little more than that most Americans have common sense and that they conduct themselves with common decency? Surely that is no reason for exultant boasts or lyric praise. Of course we did what the Government asked!

And, in times like these, how little it was! That thousands and thousands relinquished for a day a pleasure unknown in the world until the present generation came on the stage is to their credit, but it will hardly count to them among sacrifices for the war. Whatever of real loss there was fell on others than the owners of automobiles—on the keepers of wayside inns, on the proprietors of garages and the other places where gasoline is sold, and on the more or less estimable exploiters of the popularity of "resorts." All of those folk suffered in pocket, many of them heavily, and they have almost a right to complain that they were the victims of a discriminating tax for military purposes. Almost, but not quite; it was the fortune of war, and we all have our private troubles these days.

Whoever must use large words and loud tones in discussing the phenomena of this new sort of Sunday can have full use for both in characterizing fitly the few brazen wretches who took joy rides in defiance of the well-deserved scorn they everywhere excited. Every one of them revealed that he or she will serve the Great Cause only under compulsion, which means, of course, that he or she in heart is against it and wants the Germans to win.

Boys Who Want to Serve.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noticed in various papers letters from parents who are very much exercised to find some excuse for keeping their sons out of military service. I also hear a great deal of this in private life. Some people, knowing that I have served, have dared to approach me on the best method of keeping their relatives out of the army. One cannot, of course, blame parents for loving their sons and wishing to keep them at home, but is this real kindness? Will your children bless you in after life? I very much fear that parents who exercise themselves to discourage their children from service to their country will later repent their action. In England I have met boys who openly curse their parents for having delayed their entry into the army. The American boy is of the same manly stuff, and it is certain that those of military age and physique, realizing their position after peace is declared, will look with envious eyes upon their soldier associates, even those who may have been seriously maimed, and may wish to exchange places with those under the sod of France rather than exist with the awful feeling of having shirked their duty.

ITALY'S WAR AIMS.

Full Accord with the Jugoslavs on Future Arrangements.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An echo is reaching America of a polemic of the press taking place in Italy concerning the aims of the war and the general policies of the Italian Government in the war. Such an echo might engender impressions and opinions not exactly in conformity with the truth.

There does not exist any essential difference with regard to the aims Italy must attain with peace, not among the political parties which have adhered to the war, nor among the members of the Ministry, nor between the Government and the political factions.

Italy is practically the only nation of the Entente, after the disintegration of Russia, which is fighting Austria by land and sea.

To think that an Italian might wish to spare Austria is to commit an injury to the intelligence of the Italian people. It is a fact, therefore, that Italy is the only nation of the Entente which, since the first day of the war, has been fighting against Austria, and today must carry the entire military and naval pressure of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, which has a population, it is well to remember, 15,000,000 in excess of the population of Italy, and resources far more extensive than Italy's resources. But this is not sufficient.

The policy of the liberation of the races oppressed by Austrian tyranny affirmed itself for the first time in Rome, and it is from the Italian Government that it still receives the most vigorous defense.

The pact of Rome, signed at the Campidoglio by the official representatives of all the oppressed peoples of Austria, Italians, Czechoslovaks, Jugoslavs, Poles, and Rumanians, constitutes the cornerstone of the official Italian policy as far as Austria is concerned.

The former rivalry between Italy and the Jugoslavs, which was resulting too much to Austria's advantage, has entirely disappeared since the day of the Congress at Rome, inasmuch as it had been through Austria's efforts that this rivalry existed, for her own interests.

The head of the Jugoslav movement, Dr. Ante Trumbic, now lives almost constantly in Italy, is received as a trusted friend at Rome by the Prime Minister, the Hon. Mr. Orlando; by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Hon. Mr. Sonnino, and at the front by the Commander in Chief of the Italian Armies, General Diaz.

Since the month of April, when the convention was held at the Campidoglio by the martyrized nations of Austria, the Italian press has never so much as hinted anything but friendship for the Jugoslav cause and its representatives.

After the terrible defeat of the Austrians on the Piave, among all the expressions of joy and admiration for the Italian Army received by the Italian Government, none have been more earnest than the message sent by Dr. Ante Trumbic.

Under such conditions it is impossible to speak of misunderstanding in Italy among the organs of public opinion, or among the members of the governing bodies, concerning the war policies of the nation.

The national accord is absolute on this ground:

That all the oppressed peoples of the heterogeneous empire of the Hapsburgs must be liberated by the final outcome of this war and be made arbiters of their own destinies; and this by the indestructible principle of nationality and auto-decision by the various peoples, which it is the immortal glory of President Wilson to have placed as the cornerstone of the reconstruction of the world!

If any one in Italy at first hesitated to enter resolutely this path, it was only because he saw that the Governments of other nations allied or associated with Italy were willing to save Austria, under the deluded hope that they might be able to effect her separation from Germany, rather than attempt to liberate the peoples quivering under the yoke of the Hapsburgs, and feared that too pronounced a divergency of Italian policy from the policies of the Entente would compromise the unity of direction among the allied nations, a unity which is absolutely essential to victory.

But the solution arrived at in the incident of Prince Sixtus's letter has served better than any other proof to demonstrate that the Austrian monarchy is indissolubly bound with the house of Hohenzollern and will stand or fall with them.

Meanwhile, the pact of Rome demonstrated to the allied Governments and all those associated against Austro-German tyranny the just road which it is necessary to follow to solve the Austrian problem and to honor the supreme principles for which this crusade is being waged against Prussianism and its Danubian ramifications.

The divergencies which may exist and which undoubtedly have existed in Italy among the organs of public opinion reflect the questions of procedure and method, and consequently are secondary considerations, as long as public opinion is in accord on the principal question—that is, the solution of the Austrian problem.

The vivacity of the argument on these secondary points only demonstrates how acute and intense is the interest of Italian public opinion that nothing be omitted by the Government, and that the problem of the liberation of the oppressed peoples of Austria be solved forever.

No Letters from Home.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have a brother who has been in France for the last ten weeks. We received from him about ten letters, and we sent him twice as many, and he writes in every letter that he did not receive any from us. I think by printing this letter you can help me and many others very much.

Mrs. PEARL LIEBERSON.
New York, Aug. 29, 1918.

THEY SENT ME A FLOWER FROM FRANCE.

Dark stain upon the poppy's red,
Where rested last my soldier's head—
All hallowed with the blood he shed.

Still trembled here the morning dew
When o'er his eyes death's shadows grew
And his swift soul to glory flew.

War's thunders in thy chalice dark
Slept while one throbbing meadow-lark
Let him unto God's angels hark.

Lulled softly in thy opiate breath,
He tasted not the pangs of death—
Still mid thy dreams he visiteth.

Wide is the world and dark the road,
And heavy, heavy my heart's load,
Ere I can rest in God's abode.

But in thy dark-stained red I see
The vision of a world set free,
Which took my soldier boy from me.

AIR MAIL FOR CHICAGO.

Aviators Expect to Make the Trip in Ten Hours.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—First steps looking to the establishment of an airplane mail service between New York and Chicago will be taken by the Post Office Department Thursday, when two planes—a Curtiss and a Standard—will be sent over the course from New York. The return trip from Chicago is planned for Saturday and mail will be carried each way.

In announcing the flights today, the department said the purpose was to chart the course for distinguished landmarks and safe landing places. The course has been named the Woodrow Wilson airway, and plans to have regular stops at Lock Haven, Penn., Cleveland, and Bryan, Ohio. With favorable weather conditions the flight should be completed in ten hours.

On the initial trip Thursday the planes are due at Lock Haven at 8:30 A. M.; Cleveland, noon; Bryan, 1:30 P. M., and Chicago, 4 o'clock. On the return trip the machines will leave Chicago at 6 A. M.

Aviator Edward V. Gardner will pilot the Curtiss plane and Aviator Max Miller the Standard machine. The distance to be traveled is 745 miles. The starting and landing fields will be Belmont Park, New York, and Grant Park, Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

BELMONT PARK, L. I., Sept. 2.—The air mail service between New York and Washington today was not only in operation, but the flyers broke records in celebration of the holiday and made through trips both ways between the terminals. Maurice Newton left Belmont Park with the mail going south at 11:56 A. M. and reached Philadelphia at 12:49 P. M., 53 minutes. Taking on the Philadelphia mail, he got under way again at 1:03 and reached Washington at 2:44, or 1 hour 41 minutes, making 2 hours and 34 minutes lapsed time for the through trip.

In the other direction, C. DeHart left Washington this morning at 11:37 and reached Philadelphia at 1:23 P. M., or 1 hour 46 minutes, and, starting again at 1:38, reached Belmont Park at 2:40 P. M., making 2 hours 48 minutes for the northbound through trip.

WAR TRAINING AT PRINCETON

Plan Will Meet Conditions of the New Draft Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 2.—Princeton has decided to follow the new plan of the Students' Army Training Corps as revised to meet the conditions imposed by the passage of the new draft bill. In accordance with this plan a student who has already been registered on Sept. 12, and who has been regularly admitted to the university, may be inducted into that corps about Oct. 1. When inducted he is a member of the army on active duty. He receives the pay of a private, together with subsistence, quarters, and instruction, both military and academic.

The academic studies will be prescribed in part by the War Department, their nature differing according to the kind of course pursued. The members of the corps will lead a strict military life.

It is the policy of the Government to assign, from time to time, in accordance with the needs of the service and the qualifications of the individual, members of the corps to an officers' training camp, to a noncommissioned officers' school, to a depot brigade, or to allow the student to continue his studies in such technical or special training as the needs of the service may require. In case of unsatisfactory work at the college students will be sent to a cantonment as privates.

500 GREEKS PROMOTED.

Noncoms and Privates Get Reward for Bravery in Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The Greek Legation was advised by cable today that seventy-five noncommissioned officers and 430 private soldiers in the Greek Army had been promoted for conspicuous bravery in the field.

The Archbishop of Athens, who will be presented to President Wilson this week, said today that the situation in Greece was improving daily, the military conditions were better, and there was everywhere faith in the successful issue of the war.

He told of 300,000 refugees in Greece from Turkey and Bulgaria whose plight was desperate. Greece was doing all within her means to alleviate their sufferings and supply their wants, but contributions from other countries for their relief were necessary.

ATHENS, Sept. 2.—More than 600 refugees from Thrace held a meeting here yesterday under the auspices of the Union of Thrace at which the Chairman presented a plan for addressing the Greek Government concerning the future of their fatherland. It was finally decide to call a Pan Thracian congress to prepare the memorial to the Government.

EMPIRE FIRM, SAYS KAISER.

No Enemy Can Shake It, He Asserts in Sedan Day Message.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 2.—Emperor William, replying to a message from the municipality of Berlin on the occasion of Sedan Day, said he was firmly convinced that no enemy would ever be able to shake the strong structure of the German Empire. Never, he added, could the German people be vanquished when they were united. Continuing, the message as quoted in a dispatch from Berlin reads:

"I know that the whole brave German people are ready for all sacrifices; that they are at one with me in the firm determination to obtain an honorable peace. No other people are able to accomplish what the Germans have done at the front and at home in heroism, energy and loyalty to the death for the defense of our existence and for our holiest rights.

"Unshakeably brave and hard as steel, we look forward closely united. We will and shall successfully and gloriusly overcome all storms. May God grant it."

MENTION Y. M. C. A. HEROES.

Win Praise of French for Gallant Work During Battle at Marne.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 15.—American Y. M. C. A. workers attached to the Moroccan Division of the French Army distinguished themselves by their heroism during the recent offensive on the Marne salient. They took an active part in relieving the wounded of the division, were under constant shell, rifle, and machine-gun fire, and many had miraculous escapes. They carried water, cigarettes, and food to the fighting men, and acted as interpreters, many of the men of the division being of different nationalities.

Among those mentioned for displaying extraordinary heroism under fire were R. H. Bacon, New York City; Frank Hamilton, Buffalo; S. H. Bush, Iowa City; Ray Coyle, Berkeley, Cal., and William Murray, Brooklyn, N. Y.

UNVEIL STATUE IN GARFIELD'S MEMORY

Thousands Parade at Long Branch as Tribute to Murdered President.

LABOR PRAISED BY EDGE

"Workingmen," Governor Says, "Are Sticking as Loyally as the Boys in Khaki."

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 2.—A statue of President James A. Garfield was unveiled today before a large crowd here, where President Garfield died on Sept. 19, 1881, thirteen days after he was shot by Guiteau in a railway station in Washington. A parade of several thousand members of local organizations and United States troops detailed by Secretary of War Baker was reviewed by Dr. Harry A. Garfield, the Fuel Administrator, and a son of President Garfield; Mrs. Harry A. Garfield, J. Stanley Brown, President Garfield's private secretary, and Mrs. Brown, a daughter of President Garfield; ex-Senator Burton, Governor Edge, and Senator Alfred I. du Pont.

The memorial was erected by the Garfield Memorial Association, organized in 1906 by Daniel Doran, E. W. Packer, and others, on the twenty-fifth anniversary of President Garfield's death. The memorial is sixteen feet high. The statue, made by Carl Schweizer, is of bronze, seven feet high, and rests on an ornamented granite base.

Words of the martyred President were quoted by Governor Walter E. Edge and other speakers as prophetic of the development of the country since his death. After describing the early days of President Garfield, when he worked on a farm and as a canalboat boy, and telling of his championship of labor, Governor Edge continued:

"Every war has its compensation. War has brought home to America as nothing else could, the great truth that labor must not be treated as a class. Free labor is democracy, just as is free business and free thought. Labor is America—and must be so regarded. The war teaches that that nation is helpless, an easy prey to invaders and plunderers, which does not have as its backbone an army of willing, energetic labor.

"The very fact that American labor has stood nobly by its guns, resisting every treasonable appeal to vicious class prejudice and every sugar-coated bait of the Hun propagandist, is doing more to solve long-standing labor problems in this country than all the preachments of theorists and all the arbitration movements put together. It is rapidly disintegrating the mossgrown Chinese wall between the capitalist and the worker. It is dispersing the clouds of misunderstanding and letting in the sunshine of friendship and co-operation.

"War has also provided a notable precedent for the education of those obliged by force of circumstances to enter fields of industry at an early age. In direct point is that section of the new draft measure providing collegiate education at the expense of the Government for the younger men called to the colors. It is only just that employing capital should provide adequate means of education for those employes who are of schooling age.

"Labor has stood by the country, and the country will stand by labor. Workingmen are upholding the gigantic bridge which spans the ocean, and enables our armies to get to the front and to stay there. Workingmen are sticking to their tools as loyally as the boys in khaki are sticking to their guns. It seems scarcely necessary to caution American labor that the safety of the great ocean bridge depends absolutely on their unswerving loyalty. The American workingman is aware to the fact that we are fighting two German armies, one in the open on the field of battle, and the other in secret at our very elbows.

"He realizes that every full day's work puts his brothers in arms that much nearer Berlin. He believes that sticking to his job sticks a bayonet in the Kaiser. Democracy owes him a great debt of gratitude, which makes us agree, in the words of Garfield, that 'the nation is resolutely forging to the front, resolved to employ its best energies in developing the great possibilities of the future.'"

Ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton said: "Even the dead yet speak to us, and in this time of trial and sacrifice we may yet hear as an echo from the past his words, 'forward to a triumphant end.' In a day when the country was appalled by the news of the assassination of President Lincoln, Garfield spoke from the steps of the Sub-Treasury of New York, fast by the place where seventy-six years before Washington had taken the oath of office as the first President. In this speech he calmed the troubled throng by saying, 'God reigns and the Government at Washington still lives.' No less now than then God reigns and the Government at Washington still lives, lives now as a triumphant force for victory and the restoration of a troubled world, and will live in the future as a beacon light to the nations and the leader in a brighter and more glorious day."

MISS TAFT AIDS WAR WORK.

Ex-President's Cousin Employed in Munition Factory.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 2.—Miss Florence Taft, of Rockwell, Conn., a cousin of ex-President William Howard Taft, is employed in the cap works of the Dupont Company at Pompton Lakes, with a number of other girls of well-to-do families. Miss Taft said yesterday that the feeling that prompted her to join the ranks of the munition workers was inspired by a poster shown in a manufacturing town in connection with the recent Liberty Loan campaign. Later, when Miss Taft visited a big plant where swarms of men were turning out war material, she said there was something very fascinating in the busy scene.

"Here was created and evolved the mass of vital paraphernalia essential to our war program," Miss Taft said. "It brought to my mind the message portrayed in the posters—team work—and vividly brought home the truth that this kind of team work in conjunction with our boys' gallant efforts will win the war."

STAND FAST, SAYS BORDEN.

Premier Delivers Message from Canadian Army to People.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—From the Canadian Army to the Canadian people, Premier Borden, in his first public speech since his return from abroad, delivered today the following message: "Stand fast to your purpose, abide the issue and vindicate the cause of justice and humanity."

Sir Robert spoke at a Labor Day luncheon. Discussing the immigration arrangements between India and the other Dominions, he said the principle of complete control by any part of the Empire of the composition of its population, by restriction of immigration if necessary, would be adhered to. He said Hindus already domiciled in Canada would be permitted to bring in one wife and their minor children, this previously has been prohibited.

PRESIDENT RETAINS $2.20 WHEAT PRICE

Will Appoint a Commission Next Spring to Determine Whether an Increase Is Necessary.

FEARS ADVANCE GUARANTEE

Peace, if It Should Come Next Year, Would Release Vast Stores Elsewhere and Cause Huge Loss Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—President Wilson in a proclamation today announced that the present price of wheat guaranteed by the Government will be applied to the 1919 crop, unless an investigation to be undertaken by the Government next Spring determines that the farmer deserves an increase.

The price retained by the President is the old $2.20 a bushel, fixed by Congress for the 1918 crop, to which has been added increases sufficient to meet the freight advances applied by the Government last June. Thus the actual price tentatively guaranteed by the President for the harvest of 1919 is based upon $2.26 a bushel at Chicago. The price of wheat at New York will remain at $2.39½ a bushel.

The President declared that next Spring he will appoint a disinterested commission to determine the increase in wheat-growing costs over and above the three-year pre-war average. With the facts in hand he will decide whether an increase in price is warranted and what that increase will be. In any case the increase, if made, will apply only to the 1919 crop, and those who will benefit by it will be only those who have disposed of all their 1918 harvest.

In discussing the danger of giving a guaranteed price for wheat for a year in advance, the President used the same arguments he used a year ago in guaranteeing a price for this year's crop. If there should be peace, he said, Europe naturally would take advantage of the huge stocks of grain in Australia, India, and the Argentine, now unavailable because of lack of shipping facilities. The United States then would be faced with a loss of nearly $500,000,000 through its inability to sell its surplus for which a high price had been guaranteed.

The opinion was not general here that the President's reference to the possibility of peace constituted any definite indication that he saw peace in 1919 or even 1920. Rather, it was believed that he used it as an argument against committing the nation to a policy of fixing the price of commodities a year in advance.

It is well known here that the price of wheat was guaranteed this year to obtain increased acreage and an output which would take care of demands of the allied armies and their civilian population. The desired result was obtained, for the acreage was increased 27.8 per cent. and the crop reaches close to 900,000,000 bushels.

The President calls his action the fixing of "a preliminary guarantee" and, in a memorandum attached to the proclamation which explains his reasons for the action, closes with the assurance that justice will be done the grower. The President's memorandum says:

"In issuing today the Government's guarantee of the same price for the 1919 wheat crop that was guaranteed for the 1918 crop, I wish it to be understood that in the Spring of 1919 I will appoint a disinterested commission which will secure for me the facts by that time disclosed as to the increased cost of farm labor and supplies, using the three-year pre-war average prices of wheat, of labor, and of supply costs as a basis, and that from this information I shall determine whether there should be an increase in price above the present level and, if so, what advance, in order to maintain for the farmer a good return. Should it then appear that an increase is deserved over the present guarantee, however, it will be applied only to those who have by next harvest already marketed their 1918 wheat.

"It is the desire and intention of all departments of the Administration to give to the wheat grower a fair and stimulative return in order that the present acreage in wheat may be maintained.

"I find a great conflict of opinion among various sections of the country as to the price that should be named as a minimum guarantee. It must be obvious to all, however, that the factors which will make for increased or decreased cost of production of next year's harvest cannot be determined until the near approach to the harvest.

"In giving a guaranteed price for wheat one year in advance, (the only industry guaranteed by the Government,) there is involved a considerable national risk. If there should be peace or increased shipping available before the middle of 1920, Europe will naturally supply itself from the large stores of much cheaper wheat now in the Southern hemisphere; and, therefore, the Government is undertaking a risk which might in such an event result in a national loss of as much as $500,000,000 through an unsalable surplus, or, in any event, in maintaining a high level of price to our own people for a long period subsequent to freedom in the world's markets.

"Despite this, the desirability of assuring a supply to the world of prime breadstuffs by insuring the farmer against the fluctuations in prices that would result from the uncertainties of the present situation and from the speculation those uncertainties entail, seems to me to make the continuation of the guarantee for another year desirable. On the other hand it is clear that before increasing this liability by large sums with the risks set forth above and before increasing the burden of the consumer, the matter should be subjected to searching inquiry at the appropriate time—the time when the pertinent facts will be known.

"I feel confident that with this preliminary fixed guarantee and with the assurance that justice will in any event be done to the grower, he will continue the fine patriotic effort by which he has served the country hitherto; that the Government will have acted prudently and that the consumer will be satisfied that his interests are not unduly sacrificed, but just and exhaustive consideration given to every element of the matter at the proper time."

PUBLIC ASKED TO CUT CHRISTMAS BUYING

Also to Purchase Useful Gifts Weeks Ahead and Act as Their Own Carriers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Curtailment of Christmas buying and giving, as a means of saving labor, material, and transportation, was emphasized today by the Council of National Defense in a statement issued after a conference with representatives of various industries and retail interests.

It was found that the manufacture of goods for the coming holiday season had been substantially completed; that the transportation of goods to the point of sale was also largely done, and that much of the material used for Christmas purchases, especially in the manufacture of toys, was the waste material derived from prior processes of manufacture.

The retail interests represented at the conference have agreed not to increase their working force by reason of the holiday business over the average force employed by them throughout the year and not to increase the normal working hours of their force during the Christmas season. They also agreed to use their utmost efforts to confine Christmas giving, except for young children, to useful articles, and to spread the period for holiday purchases over the months of October, November, and December.

In order to relieve the transportation facilities of the country from a congestion in the latter half of December, which would be so hurtful to the interests of the nation that it cannot be permitted, the retail interests represented at this hearing have agreed to cooperate further in the campaign being carried on under the auspices of the War Industries Board to restrict deliveries and to induce their customers to carry their own packages wherever possible.

The merchants appearing before the council were brought together by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, acting through its General Secretary, Elliot Goodwin, and their names are as follows:

N. M. Henderson, the Henderson-Hoyt Company, Oshkosh, Wis., merchant.

A. S. Campbell, Louis Meyer & Son, glove manufacturers, New York.

Charles Hurd, Jordan, March Co., Boston, Mass., buyer of hosiery.

C. G. Nutting, Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, Ill., buyer of handkerchiefs.

Harry T. Grand, Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, Ill., buyer of toys.

A. C. Gilbert, A. C. Gilbert Company, New Haven, Conn., manufacturer of toys.

Victor W. Sincere, the Bailey Company, Cleveland, Ohio, merchant.

E. L. Howe, Secretary and Treasurer of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, representing 600 dry goods and department stores of the country.

James B. Reynolds, Washington, D. C., attorney for the toy manufacturers.

H. C. Ives, Bridgeport, Conn., toys.

Albert T. Scharps, Treasurer Lionel Manufacturing Company, New York, toys.

Fletcher D. Dodge, Secretary Toy Manufacturers' Association of America.

Cardinal Farley Steadily Improves.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 2.—"Cardinal Farley is able to sit up and his general condition is improving as well as can be expected," said Mgr. Carroll, his secretary, tonight. Yesterday the Cardinal sat up for hours and chatted with many visitors. Dr. Thomas F. McPartland, one of the attending physicians, said the patient had made a great deal of progress in the last few days and that he was very happy over the steady improvement.

Capt. O'Hara Weds Miss Armstrong

The marriage is announced of Captain Joseph J. O'Hara, U. S. A., Adjutant 73d Heavy Artillery, now stationed at Fort Banks, Winthrop, Mass., and Miss Martha Amy Armstrong of St. Louis last Saturday in this city. William F. Switzler, assistant cashier of the National City Bank, was the best man. The marriage was hurried owing to war exigencies.

Passengers from England.

Some of the passengers who arrived recently from England on a British steamship were:

A. B. Adams, Robert Browne, Edgar A. Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. M. Cortes, Jr., Mrs. W. H. Davidge, Joseph M. Dent, Mr. and Mrs. Halleck, D. Evans, T. C. Everts, Charles Fairbrother, Dr. E. Frawley, Frank Hodson, J. P. Jackson, A. F. Keene, H. F. Kerr, Percy N. Leyland, G. McD[illegible], H. T. Morton, Rev. Joseph F. and Mrs. Newton, N. Paulet, Sir Lindsay B. Peters, J. H. Pritchard, W. Roper, H. P. Watson, Ralph Soper, Miss M. F. Stephens, Fullerton L. Waldo, C. Fearne, W. W. Corlett, Count Kozo Yoshi.

Resinol
helps counteract the bad effect of sun, wind and dust upon your complexion

The smoke and dust of city life, and the sun and wind of the country, often do harm to good complexions. But Resinol Ointment, aided by Resinol Soap, assists in repairing the damage done in this way and helps to keep the skin clear, clean and fresh.

Resinol Ointment is cooling, soothing and healing to an irritated skin. It contains medicinal agents that are in no way harsh or harmful and may be used without hesitation.

All druggists sell Resinol Soap and Ointment. Why don't you try them?

STARS AID WAR RELIEF.

Viola Allen, Cyril Maude and Others Act at Sleepy Hollow Club.

The open-air theatre of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club, at Scarborough, was the setting last night of an entertainment for the benefit of the Stage Women's War Relief. The entertainment was preceded by a dinner in the clubhouse. Viola Allen made a speech of welcome, and Irvin S. Cobb, the master of ceremonies, made a brief and witty address and rang up the curtain.

Julia Arthur began the program by reciting "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," followed by Edward Martindell in songs, and then Francis Wilson gave "The Little Father of the Wilderness," a one-act comedy by Austin Strong and Lloyd Osbourne. Mr. Wilson was the Priest, Kathleen Comegys, Louis's favorite of the hour, and A. E. Anson was the King.

The next feature was dancing by Mrs. Castle and Roshanara, and then Cyril Maude and Bianca Soroya appeared, and were followed by Kenneth and Roy Webb's "The Best Sellers," acted by Kenneth Webb and Agnes Patterson as the Buyer and Seller, and the "books" played by Mabel and Edith Taliaferro, Edward Earle and Roy Webb. The singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by actors and audience closed the performance. A good sum was realized for the war work.

Mme. Galli-Curci Sings to 8,000.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Sept. 2.—Eight thousand persons greeted Mme. Galli-Curci in the last of the Summer's concerts at the Auditorium here tonight. It was the first of a new season for the prima donna herself. She was in great form, singing an air from "The Barber of Seville" and the Shadow Song from "Dinorah."

MASS FOR LIEUT. THAW.

Rev. H. S. Whitehead Pays Tribute to Young Aviator Killed in France.

A requiem mass was celebrated yesterday in the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, in West Forty-sixth Street, for Lieutenant Blair Thaw of the American Air Service, who was killed on the American front in France when his airplane met with an accident. The celebrant was the Rev. Henry S. Whitehead, who was assisted by Stephen B. Thaw, the Lieutenant's older brother, a candidate for holy orders. A number of French and American officers attended the services.

Blair Thaw was the younger brother of Major William Thaw of the American Air Service in France, who became distinguished as an aviator in the French Army before the United States entered the war. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw of Pittsburgh, and 640 Park Avenue, this city. The young aviator obtained a civilian pilot's license and had invented an airplane stabilizer nearly three years before he joined the American Air Service last December, at the age of 18.

In his tribute to the memory of Blair Thaw Dr. Whitehead reviewed the aviator's brief but eventful life.

"Those who knew and loved him most intimately," he said, "remember the sunny child, gentle in manner, fearless, generous, loving dumb animals, and chivalrous to the weak. They remember the boy who excelled in all the tests of manly skill, and whose chief interests from the very earliest times of self-expression centred in the intricacies of mechanical construction, an absorbing interest which was not tardy in developing into genius."

Miss Streat to Wed Aviator Sept. 14.

The marriage of Miss Ruth D'Orsay Streat, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gerard Streat of 55 West Eighty-ninth Street, and Lieutenant Lonsdale Green, Jr., Aviation Section, U. S. A., will be celebrated at the country home of the bride at South Beach, Conn., on Saturday, Sept. 14, and Lieutenant Green will take his bride to Hampton, Va., where he is stationed.

Knight-Trafford Engagement.

MASSED THOUSANDS WELCOME THOROUGHBREDS UPON RETURN TO BELMONT PARK

RECORD CROWD SEES RACES AT BELMONT

Return of Thoroughbreds to Metropolitan District Brings Out Lovers of Racing.

SUNNY SLOPE FIRST HOME

Rated Outsider in Autumn Handicap, Martin's Colt Runs Away from Two Contenders.

The thoroughbred resumed his sway at Belmont Park yesterday after a month of campaigning at Saratoga, and the popularity of racing was attested by the largest turn out of the season. There was no stake of importance on the program, nor were large fields expected, but there was an opportunity to see high-class sport conducted under ideal conditions, and the public took full advantage of it.

Even the Memorial Day crowd was exceeded, and when the bugle sounded for the first race there must have been 25,000 persons jammed in the stands and on the lawn. All were eager for the fray, and though only a few horses fought out each race there was bitter contention throughout, with many close finishes to thrill the ardent sportsmen.

A new favorite was introduced to New Yorkers in William Martin's Sunny Slope, which proved a handy victor in the Belmont Park Autumn Handicap, the feature of the day. Sunny Slope had gained a reputation when he ran second to War Cloud in the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico, and had further recommended himself to students of form by winning at Saratoga and running the second fastest mile made in competition on that superlative track.

Sunny Slope Rewards Backers.

Sunny Slope was opposed by A. L. Astes' Eyelid, another three-year-old and by the four-year-old Hollister. Sunny Slope was conceding weight to these contestants, and this discounted his chances so that with a strong play on the others he receded until he was the outsider of the trio, but at that the layers took no great liberties with the smoothly gaited son of Astronomer.

It took Sunny Slope but a few strides to assume the lead at the beginning of the mile and a furlong race, and thereafter, in spite of the desperate efforts of Hollister and Eyelid, the issue was scarcely in doubt. At the end of the back stretch Sunny Slope had put a length of daylight between himself and Hollister, while Eyelid was held in restraint another two lengths back.

Around the bend Sunny Slope held his lead, and little Callahan was pust racing him along in front waiting for the expected rush of the more favored horses. The rush came at the head of the stretch, where Eyelid ran wide, but when Callahan called on Sunny Slope he responded with a burst of speed that left the others far behind. As he crossed the line Sunny Slope was six lengths in the van.

There was a pleasant surprise for the crowd when the horses were called for the first race, the parade being rendered more spectacular by being preceded by a mounted leader in hunting costume, an innovation which proved a success at Saratoga. There were some fast horses immediately behind the pink-coated huntsman, including the Brighton Stable's fleet three-year-old Flags, which bids fair to be the king of sprinters now that Polymelian has retired. Flags was an odds-on choice, and though he was rather slow in leaving the barrier he made a show of the others when let down at the head of the stretch, winning by five lengths from Lady Dorothy, which ran over Prince of Como and Brooks in the last 100 yards.

New Jumper Successful.

The Broadhollow Steeplechase brought out a promising jumper in the Greentree Stable's Square Dealer, a comparative novice through the field. Square Dealer followed the pace set by H. L. Pratt's Trumpator, the favorite, until the last fence was cleared, when he had to be hard ridden to beat Trumpator by a length and a half. The time of 4:11 2-5 is the fastest recorded for this stake, which was run first in 1915.

There was a great surprise for the form players in the Tomboy Stakes for two-year-old fillies, in which Triple Springs Farm's Penrose was made a prohibitive favorite. This smart young miss had won five races in succession, and it was not believed that the Coe pair, Uncle's Lassie and Kiss Again, or John E. Madden's Milkmaid, an added starter, could even extend her. Penrose, however, had rested through the Saratoga campaign and evidently needed a race to key her to concert pitch. She showed all her great speed for the first half of the distance, but was too energetically driven by Lyke. The result was that she had nothing left to withstand the challenge of Milkmaid, which came with a rush and won by a length and a half.

Gilt-edged riding marked the finish of the fifth race, in which the Kentucky Stable's Torchbearer lasted long enough to beat Buckboard by a nose. Torchbearer, ridden by Robinson, set all the pace, but at the head of the stretch Loftus began one of his characteristic finishes on Buckboard. It was the consensus that no other boy but Robinson could have kept Torchbearer up against such strong opposition, and the crowd yelled as the pair passed the judges with Torchbearer a shade in front and both boys whipping to the limit of their power.

August Belmont, who was delighted with the banner crowd, had further cause for satisfaction when his colt Mad Hatter defeated the biggest field of the day in the last race for two-year-olds.

50,000 AT GRAND CIRCUIT.

Huge Assemblage Sees Lu Princeton Lower Record at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Sept. 2.—The opening day of the Grand Circuit race meeting here this afternoon was made noteworthy by Lu Princeton's performance in the free-for-all trot, Walter Cox piloting the horse in the two fastest heats ever made by a stallion in a race. The new world record was acclaimed by an enormous crowd. More than 50,000 persons attended the Connecticut fair in connection with which the Grand Circuit program is being conducted.

Lu Princeton's victory was a clean-cut one, and although the stallion went in record time, at no stage of the race was he pushed hard by his closest rival, St. Frisco, which took second money.

J. H. Lawrence's fast Hoboken mare, Lizzie March, took all three heats in the 2:07 pace, the concluding event of the day's program, and thus made the card a straight-heat affair. Many prominent officials, including Governor N. H. Holcomb, were present.

The summaries:

MISS DETROIT III. WINS CUP.

Takes Gold Challenge Trophy in Power Boat Race.

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—Adding four points to her score by finishing second in the final thirty-mile heat, Miss Detroit III. of the Detroit Yacht Club won the gold challenge cup of the American Power Boat Association here this afternoon. Whip-po-Will, Jr., of the Lake George Yacht Club, won today's heat and nosed out Miss Minneapolis of the Minneapolis Power Boat Association for second place.

Miss Detroit II., which failed to finish in either of the first two heats because of engine trouble, set the pace for the first two laps today, but as she started the third time around snapped a connecting rod and wrecked her engine.

The final standing and points of the four contenders was: Miss Detroit III., 14; Whip-po-Will, Jr., 12; Miss Minneapolis, 10; Miss Detroit II., none.

In winning today's heat Whip-po-Will, Jr., averaged 53.4 miles an hour, the best of any of the three thirty-mile heats. Sixteen seconds late across the starting line, she finished the thirty miles 34 minutes and 2 seconds after the gun, leading Miss Detroit III. at the finish by 1 minute and 54 seconds. Miss Minneapolis was a close third, 22 seconds behind the cup winner.

Earlier in the day Whip-po-Will, Jr., was awarded the one-mile championship of North America, after Miss Detroit III. withdrew from this event. The Lake George Hydroplane, piloted by George C. Reis, averaged 63.498 miles an hour in six one-mile trials. In one of them she attained a speed of 65.01 miles an hour.

BROOKLYN ELEVEN VICTOR.

Regains Cricket Title by Defeating Kings County.

Winning a full two-innings game from Kings County at Prospect Park by a margin of 49 runs, with five wickets to spare, the Brooklyn Cricket Club yesterday regained the championship of the Metropolitan District Cricket League. While the league schedule has not been quite completed, the Brooklyns, having won 14 games, lost 3, and drawn 1, are now safe from pursuit.

The scoring in the first innings was decidedly low, Kings County starting with 81 and Brooklyn responding with 44. In the second effort, Kings County did somewhat better with 63, a grand total of 94. The Brooklyns thereupon scored 99, for the loss of five wickets, a grand total of 143, with five wickets to spare.

At Livingston, S. I., the Bensonhurst Rovers, scoring 245 runs, won against the eleven of the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club, which totaled 199, a margin of 46 runs. Staten Island made a good rally, getting 131 for three wickets, but failed to keep up the pace set by the visitors.

Intercity honors on the cricket field went to the West Indians of Philadelphia, who obtained the verdict in the match with the eleven of the United Cricket Club of Brooklyn at Prospect Park by 79 to 50. Not a single batsman on the Brooklyn team was able to get into double figures.

To win by one run in a cricket match of two full innings is a decidedly novel experience, but is what the Longfellows of Brooklyn accomplished yesterday at the expense of the champion team of the Manhattan Cricket Club at Prospect Park in a Metropolitan League fixture, winning by 128 to 127.

TILDEN'S RACQUET TANGLES KUMAGAE

Japanese Tennis Star Overwhelmingly Beaten in Semi-Final at Forest Hills.

LOSES IN STRAIGHT SETS

Philadelphian Drops Only Four Games in Match—Will Meet Murray in Final Test Today.

Ichiya Kumagae, the swarthy little son of Nippon, whose clever tennis of 1916 won for him a place as the fifth ranking player of the country, dropped ingloriously by the wayside in the semi-final round of the national championship on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills yesterday when he faced the hard-hitting and brilliant William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia, in a match which was to decide which would advance to the final round to play Robert Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls for the tennis crown.

Kumagae, with a game that was only a fleeting reminder of play of yore, was completely at the mercy of the Philadelphian, who won success not only in straight sets but by an overwhelming score as well, the record in his favor reading 6—2, 6—2, 6—0.

It was no upset that Tilden should win. It was confidently believed by many that the little Japanese would be unable to rise to the heights of the tennis skill which he displayed when last in this country, but even those who expressed the strongest confidence in Tilden's play were not so rash as to underestimate the Nipponese, and the opinion before the contest started was that the Quaker City contender would gain the laurels in four sets. That the match should go in straight sets was reason for some little lifting of the eyebrows in surprise, but that Kumagae could take only four games was cause for amazement.

A strange feature of the present tournament has been the manner in which Kumagae advanced from one round to another without ever showing his best form until at last he was ensconced in a semi-final position. It had been hard to determine whether Kumagae was reserving his strength for the big contests or whether he had fallen off lamentably in quality of play.

The solution came yesterday with a suddenness that was almost startling. There has seldom been a semi-final match in a national championship that went by so quickly as did this in which Kumagae was the victim. Just forty-four minutes after the starting time Kumagae was slowly wending his way back to the clubhouse, all his aspirations of a championship and all the hopes of his many Nipponese friends who were in the stands turned to sorrow.

Kumagae Hopelessly Outclassed.

If the Kumagae of old had been on the courts, the same man who defeated William M. Johnston at Newport and who won repeated successes during 1916 at the expense of a host of tennis stars, there might have been a somewhat different story to recount, but even then it is doubtful if there would have been a possibility for Kumagae to win. There is no denying that Kumagae, when in condition, is one of the greatest baseliners who ever stepped on the courts, but it is also true that the tennis developed by Tilden was almost super tennis. If there was a stroke which he did not know there was none other present who could teach him.

It had been expected that if Tilden was to be successful against the Oriental he would have to play somewhat the same type of severe net game as did George M. Church in the nationals in 1916, when he, also, triumphed in straight sets. But Tilden did not do this. He played at the net at times but he never crowded the barrier, in fact, he was quite content to stay on the baseline and match strokes with his rival from there. But from wherever he played, he was always the superior of Kumagae. There was not one time during the match when the Nipponese caused him the slightest worry. If Tilden had been asked about the contest afterward he might have replied that it was good warming-up exercise for his match with Murray this afternoon. At any rate, it never looked to be more than that.

When the men took the court there was a clear, crisp atmosphere, with just enough wind to be cooling without being disagreeable. Kumagae and Tilden took only a few minutes for the warming up, and then settled down to the contest that was to be finished less than three-quarters of an hour later. Tilden never looked more fit for a keen struggle, and was even a bit impetuous at the outset, when he gave the first game to Kumagae, mainly because of errors off service.

The single-game lead which Kumagae had then was the only time that he led during the entire three sets. Tilden didn't use his severe service often, but when he did it went well, once or twice almost tearing the racquet out of Kumagae's hand. It was characteristic of Tilden that he should begin with his terrific service in the second game, and all but one of the points he made were errors off service because Kumagae could not begin to handle the shots. It was the same all through the match, Kumagae not returning with much success even Tilden's twist service.

Kumagae is charged with an amazing number of errors in the match; many of them were errors of service, and it was partly for this reason that the usual steadiness of the Nipponese was lacking. He was never allowed to bring his game down to a rational level. Tilden kept him keyed up to the point of trying to better his condition, and in striving too often for the heights Kumagae fell completely.

After the games were one all in the first set, Tilden swept along rapidly, allowing his rival only one additional game in the set. Kumagae's service was nothing but flimsy so far as Tilden was concerned. He broke through his rival twice in the opening set and six times during the course of the match, while only once relinquishing his own service.

Tilden Shows no Mercy.

The first set had shown the drift of things. It was evident that Kumagae was outclassed so decisively that there would be little in the way of a thrilling match, and some of the spectators wended their way homeward during the second set. During this period of the contest Tilden continued to flash brilliant tennis on nearly every shot, and about all that Kumagae could do was to wait patiently for the end. It was not to be long delayed. After having clinched the second set, Tilden, with the flash of victory in his eye, showed no mercy to the Japanese. To close the match quickly he took a love set, Kumagae interposing only a feeble resistance.

The veterans' championship, about which there had been a goodly amount of interest, went to Ross Burchard, who defeated Frederick G. Anderson in the final round on the championship courts with the score 6—4, 6—4. Both men played some fine tennis from the baseline, but Anderson, who was generally favored to win the event, was handicapped by an injury to his right eye, which he suffered three days ago during the progress of the tournament. Many times this season he has played better tennis than he showed against Burchard, but the fates were against his being in condition to do his utmost toward winning the newly created title. The same injury was a handicap to himself and his son, Fred C. Anderson, in the father and son championship.

The final in the junior doubles was played yesterday, this being an event which it is hoped later will be turned into a national championship event. The winners were Harold Taylor and Vincent Richards, and the Executive Committee of the tennis association will recommend at the meeting next February that the junior national doubles championship be awarded to this team. Gerald Emerson and Herman F. Dornheim were the defeated pair, the score against them being 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3.

In the exhibition mixed doubles tournament, the Metropolitan champions, Miss Marion Zinderstein and Walter Merrill Hall, went down to defeat before Mrs. George W. Wightman and Nathaniel W. Niles, at 6—1, 3—6, 6—1. Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Frederick B. Alexander triumphed over Miss Eleanor Goss and Lieutenant S. Howard Voshell in the other semi-final round match at 8—6, 6—2. The winners will clash in the final round this afternoon.

WARD TAKES NET MATCH.

Veteran Defeats Rival in Straight Sets at Seabright.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Sept., 2.—In a speedy tennis match, Holcombe Ward, the 1904 national champion, defeated T. S. Adams at the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club courts this afternoon, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2, 6—0. Society packed the main entrance and the more enthused devotees of the popular all-year game watched with interest the match for the side lines.

The third set proved a smashing struggle with cross court drives and net attacks figuring conspicuously throughout the closing scene of the three act drama.

RACE IS EASY FOR PORES.

Champion Gallops Away from Field at Caledonian Games.

Charles Pores of the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, local and national five-mile champion, scored a comparatively easy victory over a large field of rivals yesterday in a two-mile handicap run, the feature of the sixty-second annual track and field games of the New York Caledonian Club, held at Juniper Park, Maspeth, L. I. The diminutive jack tar, starting from scratch, gave a remarkable demonstration of his ability to outfoot his field, and captured the premier prize in 10:07 3-5.

Pores started from scratch with Andy Craw of the Brooklyn A. A., and, despite the difficult track, which was ragged in spots, immediately proceeded to mow down the handicap men. Once at the head of his field, Pores changed his pace and contented himself with staying with the leaders. On the final lap, however, the five-mile champion went away in a dash for the worsted, and broke the tape about seventy-five yards ahead of Craw, who finished second.

Another successful scratch competitor loomed up in the twelve-pound shot-put, which was won by Fred Onken, Brooklyn A. A., the honor man, with a heave of 47 feet 8½ inches. The closest finishes of the day were furnished in the 300-yard handicap event, which went to P. Hauser of the Federal Rendezvous, and the 1,000-yard handicap run, which was won by C. Correll, Paulist A. C.

The summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by E. Perelman, Glencoe A. C., (4½ yards;) P. Verwayen, Salem-Crescent A. C., (4½ yards,) second; W. Bjork, unattached, (5½ yards,) third. Time—0:10 1-5.

880-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by P. O'Connor, unattached; Charles Beagen, Paulist A. C., second; Peter Bodgen, Mohawk A. C., third. Time—2:19 2-5.

1,000-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by C. Correll, Paulist A. C., (45 yards;) C. H. Hill, Glencoe A. C., (45 yards,) second; Tom Lockhart, St. John's Club, (55 yards,) third. Time—2:22.

300-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by P. Hauser, Federal Rendezvous, (4 yards;) W. Braunstein, Glencoe A. C., (10 yards,) second; George Dernell, Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, (penalized 4 yards,) third. Time—0:36 2-5.

Two-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by Charles Pores, Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, (scratch;) A. Craw, Brooklyn A. A., (scratch,) second; Frank Titterton, Pastime A. C., (180 yards,) third. Time—10:07 3-5.

Medley Relay Race, Handicap.—Won by Pelham Bay Naval Training Station second team, (A. Smith, Eastman, Giorgio, and Pores,) 42 yards; Pelham Bay Naval Training Station first team, (Dernell, O'Brien, McCabe, and McCauley,) 38 yards, second; Paulist A. C., (Brundage, Kunkel, C. Carr, and Wigger,) 36 yards, third. Time—8:10.

12-Pound Shot-Put, Handicap.—Won by F. Onken, Brooklyn A. A., (scratch,) with 47 feet 8½ inches; J. Steinberg, unattached, (6 feet 6 inches,) 47 feet 6 inches, second; J. Torocco, unattached, (6 feet,) 47 feet, third.

POINSETTE GOLF VICTOR.

Defeats Eckhardt in Final of Forest Park Tourney.

Maintaining his steady play, A. F. Poinsette won the tournament for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus war fund on the Brooklyn-Forest Park links yesterday. In the final round the champion of the New York Newspaper Golf Club defeated A. Eckhardt of the home club 2 up and 1 to play.

There was also a medal play handicap in which W. R. Newman won the net with 77, and Edgar Winnie the gross with a round of 80.

The summaries:

First Sixteen, Semi-Final Round.—A. Eckhardt beat Edgar Winnie, 3 and 2; A. F. Poinsette beat A. H. Greuer, 2 and 1.

Final Round — Poinsette beat Eckhardt, 2 and 1.

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

ATHLETES OF CITY IN FIVE BIG MEETS

Nearly 2,000 Competitors Take Part in Games in All Boroughs.

MANHATTAN TITLE DECIDED

Tompkins Square Boys Gain Supremacy Over Rivals in Tests at Chelsea Park.

The opening day of Patriotic Play Week was observed yesterday in the five boroughs of the Greater City with many athletic meets under the supervision of the Department of Parks and the Metropolitan Association, A. A. U. About 2,000 athletes participated, and many more thousands of spectators were on hand. The sports were similar to those held on Independence Day, differing in that they were not of such an extensive scale, but, despite the condensed form, surprising crowds turned out to witness the competitions.

Children and adults, soldiers and sailors, and prominent Amateur Athletic Union athletes were the participants, and to those who were successful gold, silver, and bronze medals were given.

The greatest glory of the day was won by the youthful athletes of Tompkins Square Park. They garnered the championship title of Manhattan in a meet held at Chelsea Park on the west side. A score of twenty points gave the Tompkins Square youngsters the Manhattan laurels. Representatives of Hamilton Fish Park were second, with 16 tallies, and St. Gabriel's Park finished third, with 9.

GOLF ON OTHER COURSES.

Links of Local District Busy with Host of Players.

Making his fifth round over a golf course, A. E. Wright led his field in an afternoon play over eighteen holes at the Haworth Country Club. His card was 114, 40—74. In the morning play Alex Hart, Jr., was the winner, with 99, 30—69.

A card of 82, 9—73 gave R. A. Haight the morning honors in an eighteen-hole M. G. A. competition at the Greenwich Country Club. In the afternoon Dr. C. E. Martin was the winner with 82, 9—73.

A card of 95—22, 73 gave E. A. St. John the M. G. A. medal for best net score in the War Relief Fund play at the Oakland Golf Club. Theodore Cassabeer was the leading gross, with an 82.

The Count de Turin golf trophy at the Newport Country Club was won by Dr. Austen Gray, who returned a card of 175—26, 149 for the thirty-six holes play. Last year's winner of the trophy, T. Suffern Tailer, finished fourth, with a net of 165.

Maxwell Leads at Ekwanok.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 2.—Lee W. Maxwell of Sleepy Hollow was the best of the eighty golfers playing in the annual Labor Day Bogie Handicap at Ekwanok Country Club today. With a card of 76 and playing from scratch he had a net result of 3 up on bogie. M. W. Wilcox of the New Bedford Country Club, with an allowance of eight strokes, showed the same net score.

GOLFERS INCREASE WAR RELIEF FUND

Large Sum Realized in Labor Day Tournaments on Many Links.

ANDERSON WINS AT SIWANOY

Yagyni, Japanese Player, Takes President's Cup at North Jersey Country Club.

Golfers of the metropolitan district came to the front again yesterday in a variety of competitions held on nearby links under the auspices of the Metropolitan Golf Association. The day was celebrated as War Relief Fund day and as a result of the different events held a large sum will be turned over shortly to the Knights of Columbus, War Camp Community Service, and the Y. M. C. A., the three war relief organizations for which the day was observed. Morning and afternoon attractions were furnished at practically all of the clubs in the vicinity and, with the perfect golf weather conditions, large fields ruled.

At the Siwanoy Country Club John G. Anderson was among the competitors in the afternoon Liberty tournament, and he carried off the gross prize. He returned a score of 78 for the eighteen holes. For the net medal, a tie resulted which will have to be played off in the near future. The deadlocked golfers were J. P. McKenna with 100, 24—76, and J. A. Howe, with 88, 12—76.

In the morning the attraction was a Thrift Stamps event over eighteen holes, and this was won by H. M. Wolfe with a card of 91, 12—79.

W. W. Harris led the class A field in the patriotic play on the links of the Dunwoodie Country Club yesterday with a net score of 75. The Class B prize went to W. S. Evans, who went over the course for a net of 69.

S. W. Howland had a monopoly of prizes in the events held at the Apawamis Club of Rye, N. Y., yesterday. He won the thirty-six-hole War Relief Fund medal play handicap with a score of 164, 12—152, and also led in the morning and afternoon sweepstakes competitions. For leading in the thirty-six holes play he received the gold medal offered by the Metropolitan Golf Association. He was followed by T. A. Dent, with 191, 30—161; S. Battelle, with 189, 24—165, and A. A. Forrest, with 201, 36—165.

In the morning eighteen holes medal play event three golfers tied with net scores of 79, and the deadlock will be decided next Saturday. They were R. H. Higgins, with 97, 18—79; E. A. Choate, with 91, 12—79, and A. A. Forrest, with 97, 18—79. The afternoon prize went to W. M. Stillman, who returned with a card of 91, 13—78.

Howland's leading score in the morning sweepstakes round was 84, 6—78, and after him came T. A. Dent, with 96, 15—81, and E. H. Harris, with 88, 5—83. In the afternoon Howland returned a card of 80, 6—74, while W. M. Stillman was second with 91, 13—78.

A large field of golfers crowded the links of the Upper Montclair Country Club yesterday in morning and afternoon competition for M. G. A. medals. The morning prize went to E. H. Eaton, whose card showed 91, 22—69 for the eighteen holes, while in the afternoon the victor was John G. Todd, who had a card of 92, 22—70.

A. Yagyni, a Japanese golfer, won the President's Cup in a thirty-six hole selected score competition, which was the M. G. A. patriotic attraction yesterday on the links of the North Jersey Country Club. The Nipponese golfer returned with a card of 87, 25—62. Following Yagyni was H. C. Rinehart, with 86, 17—69; Fred La Baugh, with 76, 7—69, and J. D. Van Dien, with 86, 16—70.

Forty golfers spent their holiday on the links of the Arcola Country Club yesterday struggling for laurels in a patriotic competition and a thirty-six holes round for the Directors' Cup. The latter event went to Elliott C. Smith, who returned a card of 201, 54—147. J. R. Marshall was second, with 174, 24—150, and H. F. Harrison was third with 176, 24—152.

The gross prize in the patriotic play went to Archie Graham, who went over the course for a 75. His complete card showed 75, 5—70. Marshall won the net medal with a card of 86, 12—74.

In an eighteen hole play, C. N. Jones led with 86, 9—77. George E. Colon was second with 96, 21—75, and H. F. Harrison was third with 90, 12—78.

F. B. Haight showed the way in the morning M. G. A. play at the Richmond County Country Club yesterday with 91, 18—73. In the afternoon, H. H. Benedict was the leader with 95, 20—75.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Horns were the leading golfers on the Essex County Country Club's links yesterday. Mr. Horns won the patriotic gross prize with a card of 80, 8—72, while in a mixed foursome, Mr. and Mrs. Horns carried off second laurels from Miss Florence Dorflinger and E. L. Windpenny. The latter combination had a score of 96, 38—58, while Mr. and Mrs. Horns's card was 94, 33—61. The winner of the patriotic net medal was E. R. Early, who had a card of 91, 20—71.

YANKEES WIN FINAL GAME AND STAY IN FIRST DIVISION

BASEBALL INTERNED FOR PERIOD OF WAR

Yanks and Red Sox Split Even in Final Local Exhibition of Game.

BAKER ENLIVENS THE WAKE

J. Franklin Hits Home Run to Assure Huggins of Booby Prize in the First Division.

They tucked the weak, tottering baseball season away in camphor up at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. The game is interned for the period of the war, along with a lot of other less useful things. Officiating at the obsequies were the Boston Red Sox, who will commence an argument with the Cubs in Chicago tomorrow concerning a matter appertaining to the world's championship. Some 10,000 folks sat in at the wake and saw the Red Sox win the first game 3 to 2 and got all excited when the Yanks took the second game 4 to 3.

The Yankee victory in the last game assures Huggins's lads of fourth place in the league race, which gives them the booby prize in the world's series money. With the slice in prices for the big classic, the Yankees can take their share and will have almost enough to buy a dinner at a Broadway restaurant.

Two incidents seemed to please the populace overmuch. One came in the first game when Slim Love fanned Babe Ruth, and the other was in the second tilt when Frank Baker hit a home run inside the park. These things, together with a big crowd of soldiers and a syncopated brass band from Camp Merritt, took all the sadness out of the occasion.

Yanks Winners in Ninth.

The Yanks had a tough time winning the second game. They had lots of chances, and Boston seemed perfectly willing, but more than once they gummed up the proceedings and didn't get over the winning run until the last of the ninth. Jean Dubuc, who used to pitch for the Detroit Tigers, handled the second game for the Red Sox against George Mogridge. In the first game Manager Barrow warmed up his dark horse pitcher, Samuel Jones, for the big series.

Whiteman opened the hostilities in the second game by poking a home run into the left field bleachers in the second round. Another run came in the fourth, when Whiteman doubled and scored on Scott's triple.

Hyatt scored the first run for the Yanks in the fifth, when he doubled to right and scored on Peck's two-base bang. Frank Baker tied the score in the sixth when he rapped the ball to the darkest corner of right field and made the circuit in record time.

The Yanks went to the front in the eighth on a pass to Pratt, a steal, and a double by Fournier. The Red Sox tied it up again in the first of the ninth. Whiteman got his third hit, and with two out Jack Coffey pasted a Texas leaguer to centre and pushed Whiteman home.

In the last of the ninth, with two gone, Mogridge walked and stole second when Mayer, the Boston catcher, didn't even throw the ball down to try to get him. Walters got an infield single and Hummel walked and filled the bases. Baker then smashed out the hit which sent Mogridge over with the winning run.

Love Forces in Run.

Slim Love was as wild as a bucking broncho in the opening game and became so unruly in the sixth that he forced in a run, which proved to be the margin of Boston's victory.

The Red Sox got a run in the first inning. Harry Hooper crashed one of Love's shoots for a double to left centre and Shean pushed him to third with a sacrifice. Strunk hoisted a sacrifice fly to Hummel, Hooper scoring.

The Yanks tied the count in the second when Sam Jones momentarily lost his grip. Fournier got an infield hit through Shean. Hyatt carromed another infield tap off McInnis. Peck cracked a hard single to the right field wall, scoring Fournier. Then the Yanks proceeded to jam up the bases, but couldn't squeeze Jones for another run.

Love went on a rampage in the sixth. McInnis singled through third and Scott fouled to Baker. Coffey singled, and when Schang singled to centre McInnis counted. Jones rolled to Peck and Coffey was thrown out at the plate. Hooper walked and filled the bases. Love failed to get back to earth and gave Shean a pass, forcing Schang over the platter.

The other Yank run came in the eighth. Pratt got an infield single and went to third on Fournier's hit. Del scored while Hyatt was being thrown out at first.

CLAIM GAMES BY FORFEIT.

St. Louis Ready to Play, but Cleveland Is Missing.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—Although Business Manager Bob Quinn of the St. Louis Americans had been officially notified Saturday that the Cleveland team would not be here for today's scheduled double-header, Manager Jimmy Burke put his men on the field at 1:45 and claimed both games by forfeit.

The scores will be sent to President Ban Johnson of the American League. Grover Lowdermilk was umpire. Two pitchers pitched five balls each, in compliance with the rules. There was ten minutes between "games."

Griffiths Beats Doty.

CANTON, Ohio, Sept. 2.—Johnny Griffiths, of Akron, earned the newspaper decision over Al Doty of Canton in a twelve round bout here today. The men are welterweights.

ROBINS HOLD FIFTH PLACE.

Dodgers Split Even with Phillies and Lead Also Rans.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—Brooklyn closed the season in fifth place by beating Philadelphia in the second game of the holiday doubleheader today, 5 to 3. The Phillies won the first game, 4 to 2. Victory in the second game would have given the locals the leadership of the second division, but poor infielding in the fifth and two timely hits gave the visitors their winning lead.

CUBS SHARE WITH PIRATES.

Cooper Beats Hendrix in Pitching Duel by 3 to 2 Score.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 2.—Chicago and Pittsburgh closed the season here today by splitting a doubleheader, the visitors winning the morning game, 4 to 3, while Pittsburgh took the afternoon contest, 8 to 2. A wild throw by pitcher Miller during the morning game gave victory to the visitors.

Cooper and Hendrix, the opposing hurlers for the afternoon contest, engaged in a pitcher's duel. In the ninth inning Bigbee beat out an infield hit and Carey and Southworth drew passes. Cutshaw hit past third, driving in the winning run.

GIANTS DROP FINAL CONTEST TO BRAVES

Boston Registers Only Triumph of Year Over New York in Curtain Struggle.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The Braves saved themselves from getting a season-long record of defeats at the hands of the Giants this afternoon when they took the last-of-the-season game from the visitors 2 to 1. It was the Braves' only chance to show signs of life, and they were rather lucky, for the Giants did not seem at all anxious to let the Bostons have even one run.

Dick Rudolph was at his best and the fans felt that an error at the plate on the part of the Braves was the only thing that saved the Giants from a shutout. In the first half of the double bill the Giants won, as usual, 6 to 2.

With the score 1 to 1 in the fourth inning of the second game and one out Wilhoit was purposely passed by Rudolph, filling the bases in order to get at Rariden and Steele. He judged correctly and struck them both out.

About 6,000 fans turned out to see the windup, more than 1,500 of whom were soldiers and sailors, the guests of the management.

In the first game Arthur Nehf acted a bit weary and the Giants hit him freely, especially Zimmerman, Fletcher, and Young. Zim smashed out two doubles, a triple, and a sacrifice fly in his five times up.

The Braves could do nothing with Causey's offerings except in the fourth inning, when they bunched three hits and scored their only runs of the game.

Rudolph was good in the second game, but Steele was something of a puzzle to the Braves. The Giants were the first to score. With one out in the third Zimmerman drew a pass, Kirke singled to right on a hit and run play, and Jay went down to second on the throw over to third. Zimmerman did not stop at third, and Terry threw to Wagner, who muffed the ball and allowed the run to count.

The Braves tied up the score in the third on a single by Rudolph, a steal and singles by Taggart and Chadbourne. They put over what proved to be the winning run in the sixth on singles by J. C. Smith and Konetchy, a base on balls to Wagner, and a sacrifice fly by Rawlings.

REDS LAND IN THIRD PLACE.

Matty's Club Takes Double-Header from Cardinals.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 2.—Cincinnati closed the season in third place by winning both games of the double-header from St. Louis this afternoon, by scores of 6 to 3 and 1 to 0.

The second game was a battle between the Cuban pitcher Luque and Tuero, both of whom were in good form.

MAYBE LEADS BEES HOME.

Hopewell Boat First in Bayside Yacht Club Race.

Only yachts of two classes, the Birds and the Bees, appeared in the holiday regatta of the Bayside Yacht Club in Little Neck Bay yesterday. It remained for the little Bees to provide a race replete with interest, although it was triangular in complexion.

Maybe, the entry of George Hopewell in the Bee class, and P. W. Mack in the Beatrice, soon drew away from the only other starter, the Vespa. With James Gillies at the tiller and rounding the last mark at the first half, the Maybe led over the Mack yacht by 20 seconds. At the finish the Maybe was a winner by 43 seconds.

John Johns, in the Teaser, won an easy victory over Commodore William R. Teller's Woof in the Bird class.

SERIES TICKETS IN DEMAND.

Indications Point to Large Crowd at Chicago Tomorrow.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Chicago is ready for its wartime world's series which will open at Comiskey Park, the scene of the 1917 championship games, Wednesday afternoon. The playing field was covered tonight with a huge canvas to protect it from a drenching rain.

The rival teams, finishing their season in the east today, are speeding toward Chicago for the final practice tomorrow. Manager Fred Mitchell of the Cubs will direct his players through a spirited workout at Comiskey Park in the afternoon, so they will become familiar with the grounds. The main purpose of the practice is to gain an idea of the light conditions.

Members of the Boston Club will be quartered at a hotel near the park. The American League champions, if they arrive from New York in time, will take their final practice after the Cubs have finished. Otherwise Manager Barrow probably will send his players through a "warming up" exercise Wednesday morning.

The steady demand for reserved seats has convinced Walter Craighead, business manager of the Chicago Nationals, that few will remain to be placed on sale on the opening day of the series. From all indications the 17,000 box and reserved seats will be sold before tomorrow night. The 15,000 general admission tickets will not be placed on sale until the day of each game.

Games will start at 2:30 P. M. each day.

BALL SCRAMBLE IS HELD.

Dignitaries and Soldiers Help Close Season in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Washington and Philadelphia ended the season here today by dividing the Labor Day double-header, the visitors winning the morning game 5 to 2, and the Nationals taking the afternoon contest 8 to 3.

A ball scramble participated in by 2,500 soldiers from nearby camps preceded the afternoon game, which was attended by many Government officials and army and navy officers, including General March, Chief of Staff.

WILD BILL WINS A GAME.

Donovan Helps Detroit Take Double-Header from White Sox.

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—Making little effort to play championship ball, Detroit and Chicago ended their league season here this afternoon with a double-header, the home team winning both games, 11 to 5 in the first and 7 to 3 in the second. Detroit got 16 hits off Danforth in the first game and 21 off Cicotte in the second.

Manager Jennings shifted his lineup several times in the last game, Donovan, Cobb and Veach taking turns in the box.

Hockanson Takes Junior Singles in Boston Regatta.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Gilbert Hockanson, of the Duluth (Mich.) Boat Club, won the junior singles event at the Annual Labor Day Rowing Regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing Association over the one-and-a-half-mile course on the Charles River Basin today. Hockanson who was the only out-of-town oarsman competing in the regatta, finished a length and a half ahead of John Shea of the Riverside Boat Club. The winner's time was 10:05.

The surprise of the afternoon was the defeat in the senior singles of John J. Sullivan of the St. Alphonsus Boat Club by Carey Faulkner, of the Riverside Boat Club. Sullivan was the winner of the event at the National Regatta in Duluth this year and was the favorite. Faulkner's time was 9:59.

LARGE FLEET SAILS IN RED CROSS RACES

Hempstead Harbor Club Holds Successful Regatta, with 18 Yachts Competing.

Eighteen yachts started in a regatta given by the Hempstead Harbor Club, yesterday, on Hempstead Harbor and Long Island Sound. It was termed a Red Cross regatta, and the owners of the eighteen yachts, with two others, whose boats did not start, paid $5 each for the privilege of entering, and the total was turned over to the local Red Cross unit. The racing men got no prizes, other than certificates stating the order of finishing. The fleet was the second largest of the season on Long Island Sound.

The day was perfect for yacht racing. There was a good breeze all day; almost enough for single reefing on the open water in the afternoon, and the sea was fairly smooth. Most of the yachts were from the home waters, although several came from the American Yacht Club across the Sound, and one from Greenwich on the Connecticut shore.

The course was triangular, and was nine miles in length for all excepting the boats of the bug and dory classes.

Arvia and Barbara, of Class Q, the first to be sent away, made a close start, and kept together nearly all the way around, excepting at the turning mark at the end of the first round of the course. In rounding Barbara fouled the anchor line of the mark boat and wound herself up in it so thoroughly that several minutes were lost in clearing. Even at that Barbara led her classmate across the finish line by more than half a minute, but lost the certificate of winning as she was disqualified.

Top, of the sonder class, also came to grief at the start, as she fouled the flagstaff of the committee boat and carried away the regatta committee flag. Her skipper then withdrew. There were six in the class, and they made a very close start and for the most part sailed a close race. Mingo, the winner, beat the second boat by nearly two minutes, but three of the class finished within twenty-nine seconds.

ALTAIR GETS STAR TITLE.

E. V. Willis Decides Interclub Yacht Laurels for Season.

Happy memories of old yacht-racing days were revived yesterday when seven yachts of the Manhasset Bay handicap class crossed the starting line in a race over the course of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club. It was the largest fleet of these yachts to meet this season. R. W. Fraser won on time allowance with the Sirene, although H. L. Corry's Skid, which was adjudged second, crossed the line a minute and a quarter ahead of the former. G. W. Atwater's Bob Cat did not take to the course as laid out, and was disqualified.

Another one of the series of interclub races among yachts of the Star class was sailed over the same course. Edwin V. Willis absolutely clinched his right to the championship when he again won with Altair, and once more Charles E. Hyde was the runner-up with the Hydra. Twenty yachts started, and they were favored with a fresh southerly breeze.

Before the Stars started on the championship race the little yachts were seen in action in a race among the junior members of the club. This race was confined to skippers 17 years old or younger, and was won by Lockwood Pierie in the Gemini.

RANI LEADS ARROW YACHTS.

E. G. Snow, Jr.'s, Craft Beats Hawk on Indian Harbor.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 2.—Ideal weather for sailing resulted in two races being held today over the five and one-half mile course of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club this afternoon.

In the first race, with a strong wind blowing from the northwest, the Rani, owned by E. G. Snow, Jr., was the winner among the Arrow Class yachts.

WALLEN IS MILE CHAMPION.

Chicago Swimmer Beats Laubis for National Title.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—W. A. ("Buddy") Wallen of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station won the National A. A. U. one-mile swimming championship here today, defeating Herman Laubis, formerly of St. Louis, in 25:08 3-5. Laubis also swam under the colors of Great Lakes. The event was contested during a heavy downpour of rain. Wallen, a Chicagoan, also holds the national half-mile title.

Perry McGillivray of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station won the Central A. A. U. fifty-yard championship swim in 0:26, and E. M. Chapman of the Chicago Athletic Association took the Central A. A. U. 100-yard breast stroke event in 1:19.

WOULD RAISE RATES TO CURTAIL CREDITS

Bankers Association's Organ Favors Higher Charge for Rediscounting.

FOR RESERVE BOARD ACTION

Deplores Failure to Make Rate Scientifically Adjusted to Demands of the Market.

Discussing the steps taken with the view of curtailing credits, the Journal of the American Bankers Association, an organization having a membership of about 18,500 banks and trust companies, points out that the desired end can be obtained most effectively by the Federal Reserve Banks raising their rediscount rates. "Curtailment of credits through the impossible means of sympathetic co-operation is something more than an absurdity when the control over the rate of rediscount was placed in the Federal Reserve Banks for that exact purpose," the official organ of the association declares in its forthcoming September issue.

"Increasing the rate," it says, "is the surest way to restrict the demand for credit. The Federal Reserve Board has not been permitted to have recourse to this remedy because the Treasury officials will not give heed to the condition of the money market. The Government's war issues have been put out at rates of interest which take no account of obvious conditions. In the placing of these securities with investors, the rates they bear must be considered. If the interest rate at which loans against these issues as collateral could be had were much higher than the rates of the reserve banks, the buying of the securities would necessarily be halted. We are then on an artificial basis.

"The rediscount rates of the reserve banks are much too low. The prevailing commercial rate is 6 per cent. The rediscount rates average 4.4 per cent. Rediscounting is profitable as well as easy. If moral influence, sympathetic co-operation, sentiment, patriotism or any form of emotion controlled the money market, Liberty bonds would all be selling above par, instead of only the 3½s, which are tax free. The way to curtail credit for nonessential enterprises is by raising interest rates. The way to force bankers to bring about the curtailment is by raising the discount rates of the reserve banks to a point where they will indicate something other than the desire of Government officials to keep rates down. Just now the rates are frankly arbitrary and were held at the present low point in order that there might be little difficulty in handling Liberty bonds.

"Thus the rediscount rates of the reserve banks are on a false basis, also in regard to commercial loans. When the reserve system was in a formative state and anxious to give a practical demonstration of its value to the banks and to the people, the fact that the rediscount rate was lower than the prevailing rate for commercial paper was not regarded seriously. The readjustment was bound to come in due course. But the readjustment has not come. The rediscount rate, as given in the Federal Reserve Bulletin for August, was 4.4 per cent., 'if calculated on a uniform 360-day basis and 4.46 if calculated on a 365-day basis.' All reserve banks, except New York and Boston, use the 360-day basis.

"The average rediscount rate is, therefore, about 1.6 per cent. lower than the commercial bank rate. The rate of 4.4 is a trifle lower than the average for bankers' acceptances. The call loan rate has held firmly between 5 and 6 per cent. during August.

"Official discount rates in European centres were quoted at 5 per cent. in London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, and Copenhagen in August. Money on call in London was 3 per cent. In London the private bank rate, says The Commercial and Financial Chronicle of Aug. 17, has not been changed from 3 17-32 per cent. for sixty and ninety days.

"In England the official rate of the Bank of England is invariably higher than the private bank rate. The bank that rediscounts loses money by the transaction. That the loss may be as small as possible, the bank seeking a rediscount selects for that purpose paper near maturity. It is so in all central bank countries. There can be no rediscounting for the purpose of making profit. No temptation to rediscount is offered by the central bank. The central bank is there as the guardian of business, and business is assured of credit at a rate which conforms to the necessities of the case when the capacity of the commercial banks has been reached."

The Journal asserts that the failure of the Federal Reserve system to make a rediscount rate scientifically adjusted to the demands of the market "is one of the great defects of the system," adding:

"The adjustment is even less in conformity with conditions now than it was before the reserve system was instituted. It is important that the war bonds of the Government be taken by the people. If they are to be taken there must be an easy method by which the banks may secure rediscount against the bonds as collateral. Otherwise the resources and the facilities of the reserve banks would not be available for the purpose of aiding in financing the war. But, as a direct result of the effort to keep the rediscount rates down for this purpose, the rediscount rates are down for all purposes."

LONDON MARKET IS STRONG.

Spanish Securities Freely Offered and Decline Five Points.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Trading on the Stock Exchange today was strong. Gilt-edge securities were in good demand, but with a small supply. Foreigners were harder, but Spanish securities were freely offered, and declined 5 points.

Mining groups were firm, those of the base metal description being prominent. Shares of the iron and steel industries were active, improving, under the lead of Vickers, on talk of important developments. Shipping shares and stocks of upgrade oils were irregular. Money was quiet and easier.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—Trading on the Bourse today was calm. Three per cent. rentes, 64 francs 10 centimes. Exchange on London, 26 francs 14 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 90 centimes.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago and New York announce the purchase of $1,120,000 Detroit City Gas Company's general mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, due July 1, 1923, from the American Light & Traction Company. The bonds are secured by a direct lien on the property of the company, representing an investment of more than $21,000,000, an amount equal to about twice the entire bonded debt of the concern. The securities will shortly be offered to the public.

I. Siegel, member of the New York Stock Exchange, has formed a copartnership with John J. Levenson under the name of Siegel & Co. for the transaction of a general commission business in stocks and bonds.

John P. White & Co. have removed their offices to 27 William Street.

The semi-annual report of the Certain-teed Products Corporation for the period ended June 30, 1918, shows gross income of $1,344,266 and net income of $221,667.

The New York Stock Exchange firm of Swartwout & Appenzellar announces that Frederick H. Turner, for eighteen years cashier and manager, has been admitted to partnership.

Promotes as well as Protects

American Credit Insurance does far more than provide absolute protection against abnormal, unforeseen credit losses. It serves to prevent losses, by providing for the allowance of covered accounts not over forty-five days past due, if the company fails to collect them.

Thus it cultivates confidence as well as carefulness; helps to construct as well as to conserve.

Such a broad service—which places credits upon an absolutely guaranteed basis and safeguards them against all eventualities—is of particular value to manufacturers and wholesalers right now. Full particulars of the American's Unlimited Policy will be sent free upon request.

DISSOLUTION NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM, PART I, OF THE Supreme Court of the State of New York, held in and for the County of New York, at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 22d day of July, 1918. Present: Hon. John V. McAvoy, Justice.

In the matter of the application of Greenhut Company, Inc., a corporation, for voluntary dissolution.—File No. 17867.—1918.

On reading and filing the petition of Joseph B. Greenhut, Benedict J. Greenhut, William T. Black, Ely R. Wolfner, Jacob G. Cohen, Jerome Siegel, Leo Schlesinger and Frank I. Tomlins, constituting a majority of the Board of Directors of Greenhut Company, Inc., a corporation created under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal office located in the County of New York, and the schedule thereto annexed, duly verified by the petitioners on the 15th day of July, 1918, from which it appears that the case is one of those specified in section 170 of the General Corporation Laws, and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court from said petition that it would be beneficial to the interest of the stockholders that the corporation should be dissolved, and on reading and filing notice of this application, dated July 15th, 1918, with proof of due service thereof, and of said petition and schedules, and a copy of this order on the Attorney-General of the State of New York;

And after hearing Rose & Paskus, attorneys for the petitioners, and no one appearing representing the Attorney-General, and Hughes, Rounds, Schurman and Dwight appearing on behalf of committee representing Class M of preferred stockholders and not opposing;

Now, on motion of Rose & Paskus, attorneys for the petitioners, it is Ordered that all persons interested in said corporation show cause, before me or one of the justices of this court, at a Special Term, Part I thereof, to be held at the County Court House, County of New York, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 9th day of September, 1918, at 10:15 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why the said corporation should not be dissolved, and why an order should not be entered accordingly with such provisions as may be proper; and it is further Ordered that a copy of this order be published at least once in each of the three weeks immediately preceding said 9th day of September, 1918, in the New York Times and New York Law Journal, newspapers published in the County of New York.

Enter. J. V. M., J. S. C.

OFFER OF TRACTION BONDS.

National City Co. to Sell $5,500,000 of Monongahela Valley.

The National City Company will offer today $5,500,000 five-year, 7 per cent. general mortgage bonds of the Monongahela Valley Traction Company at 97 and interest, to yield slightly more than 7¾ per cent.

The company operates a system of urban and interurban electric railways in West Virginia and Ohio consisting of more than 177 miles of track. It also does the entire electric and gas business in a number of cities and towns and owns valuable coal mining properties.

The company has outstanding $8,288,861 of common stock, paying 5 per cent., and $3,431,730 of cumulative preferred stock, paying 6 per cent. The proceeds of the bonds now offered will be employed for the retirement of $2,829,000 one-year 6 per cent. notes due Feb. 1, 1919, and to complete a construction program. For the year ended May 31, 1918, the company's gross earnings amounted to $3,708,168 and the net earnings, $1,573,717, which is more than 1.81 times the total interest charges, including interest on $5,500,000 new bonds.

Trained Women Dietitians Needed in U. S. Medical Corps

Drexel Institute's special war training Dietetic courses have been arranged under the supervision, and have received the approval of the Hospital Division, Medical Corps, U. S. Army

One of the Government's great needs is for trained dietitians. To help supply them, Drexel Institute, in cooperation with the United States War Department, has prepared special training courses.

Graduates of these courses are eligible to certification for position as assistant dietitian, upon satisfactory completion of four months' probationary work as pupil dietitians in the United States Military Hospital.

1. A four months' intensive course for those who have had two years' college studies or hold a degree from some Domestic Science institution, and one year's occupational experience.
2. A one year's intensive course for college graduates.
3. A two years' course for high-school graduates.

Students who enter these courses will be at once in training for their country's service. Uniform will be worn. Military regulations.

Enrollment will be limited and applicants carefully selected. Courses begin October 21.

The Army's need for trained dietitians is urgent, and the time is short in which to enroll.

We request that you write us at once for complete Bulletin and enrollment blanks.

DREXEL INSTITUTE
Hollis Godfrey, Sc. D., Eng. D., LL. D., D. C. L., President.
Philadelphia, Penna.

In addition to the above courses, Drexel Institute offers Special War Courses for trained Secretaries, an Engineering Course under the control of the War Department, and regular Courses in Domestic Science and Arts.

Learn to Be a Dental Mechanic
A Paying Professional Trade

Students Preparing Plaster Models for Making Artificial Dentures.

Dental Mechanics in Great Demand

The Modern Dentist

when he employs a Dental Mechanic, wants him professionally rather than commercially trained. He prefers bench-made dentures to the factory-made kind.

The Y. M. C. A. School

The work is practical from the start.

Both instruction and progress are individual.

The fees are moderate.

The laboratories are centrally located, fully equipped, cool and comfortable.

The hours are at your convenience—you may learn while you earn.

A Few Spare Hours

(part time) or a few spare months (full time)—if you have these, and if besides you have moderate skill of hand, you may learn this pleasant profitable professional trade.

No AGE limit.

A Laboratory of Your Own or a profitable relation with a Dental Surgeon or with an employing Dental Mechanic—these are the future rewards to you, of foresight and a little self-denial NOW.

Arrange to Visit the West Side Y. M. C. A. School of Mechanical Dentistry.
Call up Columbus 7920 TO-DAY.
Ask for booklet of the School.

Accountancy prepares you to assume responsibility.

The Government and Organized Business need trained men—men who can —audit expenditures; determine costs; prepare tax returns; calculate cost-plus prices; control buying and stores; devise office procedures; systematize; organize; supervise.

Thousands of successful Certified Public Accountants, Auditors, Controllers, Treasurers, Disbursing Officers, Credit Men, and Executives have been trained in affiliated schools giving Pace Courses. Classes are held after business hours under guidance of specially trained instructors.

For Bulletin giving valuable information and details of courses apply to F. P. Lamphear, 215 W. 23d St., N. Y., or C. W. Stowell, 55 Hanson Place, Brooklyn.

WOMEN ARE INVITED

Women who are interested in training themselves for the unusual opportunities now open to them in Business and in Government Service are cordially invited to attend a lecture by Charles B. Couchman, C. P. A., (Mo.)

"OPPORTUNITIES FOR WOMEN"
6 P. M., Wednesday, Sept. 4th

This lecture marks the opening of a special training course conducted exclusively for women. Tickets of admission to the lecture and details of the training course will be gladly furnished upon request.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—A belt of low pressure now extends in crescent shape from the upper lake region to Southern Central Texas, thence northwestward to Southern Oregon with moderately high pressure to the northward. This distribution has resulted in additional showers in the northwest and their extension into the plains States, the central valleys and the northern and western upper lake regions.

There were also scattered showers in Georgia, Florida, the east Gulf States, New Mexico, and Arizona. Elsewhere the weather was fair.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate southeast to south; fair Tuesday, showers Wednesday. Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate east to southeast; increasing cloudiness Tuesday, showers Wednesday. South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate east, partly cloudy weather.

FORECAST TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Showers Tuesday or Tuesday night; Wednesday fair in the west, showers in east portion; cooler.

Southern New England—Fair Tuesday; showers at night or on Wednesday; cooler Wednesday in the interior.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy Tuesday; showers at night or on Wednesday; somewhat cooler Wednesday in the interior.

Western New York—Showers Tuesday; cooler at night; Wednesday fair and cooler.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers by Tuesday night and probably on Wednesday; somewhat cooler Wednesday.

Northern New England—Fair Tuesday; Wednesday showers; cooler in Vermont.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

The Civil Service.

United States.

The commission announces examinations for Inspector of Safety Appliances and Inspector of Hours of Service, for men, on Oct. 2 and 3. Vacancies exist in the Interstate Commerce Commission at salaries of $3,000 a year, with necessary allowances for expenses incurred while absent from headquarters in the discharge of official duties. It is expected that several appointments will be made to the position of Inspector of Safety Appliances and to the position of Inspection of Hours of Service. The duties of the Safety Appliance Inspectors will comprise the making of inspections and reports as required by the Safety Appliance acts; the duties of the Hours of Service Inspectors will be the making of inspections and reports as required by the so-called Hours of Service act. Both Safety Appliance and Hours of Service Inspectors may be required to investigate accidents as required by Section 3 of the Accident Investigation act of May 6, 1910.

Applicants must be between 25 and 55 years of age.

An applicant for the position of Inspector of Safety Appliances must have had at least eight years' experience in steam railroad service as conductor, engineer, trainman, yardman, fireman, or yardmaster, or at least five years such experience as manager General or Division Superintendent, trainmaster, master mechanic, master car builder, general car foreman, road foreman of engines, or air-brake supervisor.

An applicant for the position of Inspector of Hours of Service must have had at least eight years' experience as trainmaster, yardmaster, train dispatcher, telegraph operator, block-signal operator, conductor, engineer, fireman, trainman, or yardman, or at least five years' experience as manager or as General or Division Superintendent.

Competitors will be examined in spelling, (twenty words of average difficulty in common use); arithmetic, (addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division of whole numbers and common and decimal fractions, and the ordinary weights and measures); report writing, (a report of not less than 300 words to test the competitor's ability to write an orderly, concise, and complete statement on a given case relating to the duties of an Inspector); practical questions, and training and experience in railroad work and general fitness.

Further information of the commission, Washington, D. C.

WOMEN MAY DECIDE TODAY'S PRIMARIES

679,618 Are Qualified to Vote and Many Males Are Absent for War.

WHITMAN COUNTS ON THEM

His Stand for Suffrage Is Expected to Gain Him Much Support from Republican Women.

Candidates for elective State offices will be nominated and members of State and County Committees of all parties elected at the direct primaries which will be held throughout the State today. In this city the polls will open at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and remain open until 9 o'clock at night. Everywhere else in the State the polls will open at 7 in the morning and close at 9 at night.

Aside from the contests themselves, the interesting feature of today's direct primary is that it will mark the first general participation of women throughout the State in a prmary election. With a large proportion of the male voters absent on war errands, the enrolled women will be an important factor, and possibly determine the result of the election. In all, 679,618 women throughout the State have qualified for the right to participate in the primary. A majority of these are enrolled as Republicans, the party division of the enrolled voters of the four parties being: Republicans, 375,093; Democrats, 247,676; Prohibitionsits, 36,899, and Socialists, 19,950. In the Prohibition Party the enrolled women will be in a position through numbers to control the result of the primary.

The primary fight has been apathetic and politicians do not look for a large vote, unless the women should come out in large numbers. Supporters of Governor Whitman believe they will vote for his renomination. A tremendous effort has been made throughout the State to line the women up for his candidacy on the strength of his stand for suffrage and the immediate ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment. Among the Democratic women, William Church Osborn, the independent Democratic candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination, expects to receive strong support.

The most interesting contests in today's primary are those between Governor Whitman and Attorney General Merton E. Lewis for the Republican nomination for Governor and of Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker against State Senator Charles E. Newton for the Republican nomination for Attorney General.

There is a three-cornered contest, too, for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the Republican primaries between Lieutenant Governor Edward Schoeneck, and ex-State Senators William M. Bennett of this city and Seth G. Heacock of Herkimer. In the contest over the Lieutenant Governorship the loyalty issue has been raised against Mr. Schoeneck by his opponents as a result of his activities in the case of John A. Tolishus, formerly a law clerk in his office, who has been indicted on several counts for disloyal and seditious utterances. Deputy Attorney General Becker, who is a candidate for the nomination for Attorney General on the Lewis ticket, expects to win on the strength of his official activities in the Bolo Pacha case and in other cases involving pro-Germanism.

Mr. Lewis in his campaign against Governor Whitman has raised the third term issue and has taken a stand radically opposed to that of the Governor on prohibition, advocating a State referendum on the question before the Legislature acts upon the Federal prohibition amendment. Mr. Lewis has also urged the restoration of the convention as the medium for nominating candidates for State offices.

On the Democratic side the only Statewide contest is that for the nomination for Governor between Alfred E. Smith and William Church Osborn. There has been practically no betting on the outcome of the primary election, an indication of lack of interest rather than uncertainty as to the outcome of the major State-wide contests.

REJOICE AT FORD'S DEFEAT.

Republican Chairmen Elect Mangum of Michigan President.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The Association of Republican State Chairmen today elcted John D. Mangum of Michigan as its first President. The members of the association, which was launched at the meeting of the National Committee in St. Louis last February, were called together at the Congress Hotel by National Chairman Will H. Hays to complete their organization and harmonize their efforts in the Congressional election.

The election of Mangum was partly in recognition of the treatment given to the Henry Ford movement last week by the Republicans of Michigan. Raymond Benjamin of California was chosen Vice President, and Galen L. Tait of Maryland Secretary-Treasurer. An Executive Committee of seven is to be appointed later by President Mangum.

Regarding the Senatorial prospects in Illinois confidence was expressed by some of the members that Illinois patriotism would defeat William Hale Thompson on Sept. 11.

Chairman Hays declined to discuss the Illinois situation. "My job," he said, "is to see that the Republican Party, not only in Congress, but in the organization, is 101 per cent. in support of the war. The records show that for the Republicans in Congress, and the same spirit must characterize the organization of the party."

Congressman Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, who will manage the Republican Congressional campaign throughout the country, also emphasized that "it is the business of the Republican Party to win the war."

TODAY IS PRIMARY DAY.

This is primary day. The polling places, the same as on last Election Day, will be open from 1 to 9 P. M. The nominees to be voted for in the coming election for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and other State offices, as well as for Congress, will depend upon the votes cast today.

FERRIS DEFENDS PARTY WAR RECORD

Marshals Achievements Under Airplane Program to Show Money Was Not All Wasted.

NONPARTISAN ASSIGNMENTS

Cites Taft, Hughes, Schwab, and Other Republicans Called by President Wilson to War Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—In the House today, Representative Scott Ferris, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, defended the Administration's war record, including the airplane situation. He denied that the war had been run by Democrats alone and named a number of Republicans who had been selected by the President for important duty. Combatting the assertion that "the airplane money has all been wasted," he said;

"When we entered the war on April 6, 1917, we had in the air service, 1,185 officers and men. Today we have 156,000. When we entered the war we had two miniature aviation training fields. Today we have twenty-eight fields, all in use. When we entered the war we had less than 200 second-class airplanes. Today we have more than 5,000 airplanes in the United States, American-built, and more than 2,000 planes 'over there,' rendering a pretty good account of themselves.

"We have in the United States today 71,000 trained aviators, ready to do their full duty, ready, if need be, to do as ex-President Roosevelt's son did—give his life, make his last offering in defenses of his country. We have 2,000 trained aviators in France today giving a fairly good account of themselves. We have 4,000 brave boys waiting assignments to ground schools. We have cadets flying 3,000 hours a day, training to be the eyes and ears of the army 'over there.' We have cadets flying a total of 195,000 miles a day.

"I do not know how much money has been wasted; but I do say that these achievements need make no American ashamed, either of his President, his country, or his flag."

Referring to the Rodenberg speech, in which the President was charged with partisanship, Mr. Ferris said:

"Let us see just how partisan the President has been in his appointments. The only prominent commission sent abroad was headed by Elihu Root, one of the most prominent Republicans in the country."

Mr. Ferris cited the appointment of W. H. Taft as Chairman of the War Labor Board, C. E. Hughes to investigate the aircraft situation, Charles M. Schwab, Charles Piez, William Phillips, Assistant Secretary of State; L. W. Woolsey, Solicitor of the State Department; L. W. Rowe, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; R. C. Leffingwell, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Frank A. Vanderlip, Assistant Secretaries of War Crowell, Keppel, and Stettinius, A. B. Bielaski, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation in the Department of Justice, and William R. Willcox, now connected with the Railway Wage Commission, all Republicans. Mr. Ferris also named Dr. Garfield, Fuel Administrator.

"I must protest against the gentleman's attack on Dr. Garfield. He is not a Republican, and never has been. He has been a strong supporter of President Wilson both times," said Representative Longworth of Ohio.

NAMED AS AIDS TO CROWELL

T. N. Perkins and M. H. Dorr Will Assist Munitions Director.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. — Assistant Secretary of War Crowell, who is also Director of Munitions, has selected Thomas Nelson Perkins and M. H. Dorr to act as Assistant Directors of Munitions.

Mr. Perkins was appointed counsel to the War Industries Board in October, 1917. In that capacity he accompanied Colonel House on his trip to England and France last Autumn. On his return, after serving about six weeks as a member of the Priorities Committee of the War Industries Board, he became assistant to Mr. Stettinius when the latter was appointed Surveyor General of Supplies.

Mr. Dorr was connected with the War Trade Board from August to December, 1917. Since that time he has served in the War Department as an assistant to Mr. Crowell. He was formerly Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York.

False Rumor of "Ripper" Murder.

Thirty detectives from Police Headquarters were sent to the home of Stephen Naluset, at 277 Avenue B, yesterday to investigate the death of Elizabeth Naluset, 6 years old, after the rumor that she was the victim in a "Jack the Ripper" murder had caused a crowd to gather. The tenement where the Nalusets live is near East Sixteenth Street, within a block of the tenement where Charles Murray, 4 years old, was murdered in May, 1915, and not far from where Lenora Cohn was killed in March of that year. Physicians said that the child's death had been caused by internal hemorrhage, induced by a heavy fall while she was playing with other children. She had had infantile paralysis, and was anemic. The crowd threatened violence to two men who saw the child fall and attempted to assist her.

NEW YORKER KILLED IN AUTO

H. F. Tarback Dies When Machine Turns Turtle—Two Women Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Harris F. Tarback, a dealer in silks at 1,133 Broadway, New York City, and who lived at 828 Dawson Street, the Bronx, was instantly killed this afternoon near New Windsor when the automobile in which he and two women were riding home from Tannersville, Ulster County, turned turtle.

The women are Edna and Marie Kheel of 66 Fort Washington Avenue, New York. They are in St. Luke's Hospital, the latter with a fractured skull, the former, who was engaged to Tarback, badly bruised.

Edna was driving the car, when it collided with another machine. The woman lost control of the machine, and it turned over, pinning the occupants beneath it. The other car did not stop, and the injured ones were cared for a few minutes later by John Doster of 175 Skillman Street, Brooklyn, who came along in an automobile.

Tarback's neck was broken, his ribs crushed in, and his skull fractured. He was 28 years of age.

Italians Sink Boat on Piave.

ROME, Sept. 2.—The War Office communication issued today follows: "The artillery carried out concentrations in the mountain area today and on the Piave upset a boat with enemy troops who were attempting a surprise attack. At Stelvio and on the Asiago plateau enemy parties were repulsed with heavy losses."

WOMAN DIES IN AUTO CRASH.

Five Persons Also Injured in Collision with Trolley Car.

Mrs. Edith Shepherd of 636 East Fourth Street, Brooklyn, was killed and three members of her family were injured yesterday in a collision between an automobile in which they were riding and a trolley car of the Long Island Traction Company between Hawtre Creek Road and Liberty Avenue, South Ozone Park, L. I. Two passengers who were standing on the running board of the trolley car also were injured and were taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Jamaica.

Milton Shepherd, 16 years old, who was driving the automobile, lost control of the automobile on the crossing and it swerved and ran up the track directly into the approaching trolley car. The automobile was demolished and Mrs. Shepherd was killed instantly. Milton and two other children were slightly injured. Policeman John Blake, of 76 Lahey Street, South Ozone Park, was thrown from the running board and injured.

Mrs. Harriman Goes to Toronto.

New York will be represented at "American Day" at the Canadian National Exposition in Toronto today by Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Chairman of the Food Committee of Women on National Defense. She left this city yesterday afternoon to deliver an address at the exposition on "War Work of the American Women." Mrs. Harriman was invited to speak because of her wide experience in war work and her activity in connection with food conservation.

TALKS ON BONDING

No. 23—"Services Admirable"

The Counselor for an Administrator, for whom this Company acted as surety, wrote as follows upon the Judicial Settlement of the Administrator's account:

"I desire to express to your Company my gratification in the manner in which you acted during the life of the Bond. Promptness, efficiency, consideration and willingness to assist sound the key-note of your methods, which proved so beneficial during the period of administration as well as at the time of the closing up of the Estate. The fee was reasonable, your services admirable."

Unquestionable ability to pay just claims, proven willingness to pay them promptly, methods such as this letter reveals—can you ask more of a Surety Company?

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN says about
Theroz MESS KIT
The Pocket Kitchen

"A Kitchen That Packs Up in the Soldier's or Camper's Kit—On the hike, in the lifeboat, at the camp, or in the front-line trenches, it is now possible to prepare a hot meal and piping hot coffee or tea in seven minutes. One merely sets up a little stove and fills the aluminum pots and pans, and then touches a match to two fuel cubes which instantly give a hot, steady flame. Until the time of use the little kitchen equipment has been nested into a small package which readily finds room in the soldier's or camper's or motorist's kit.

Ready for service, the triple-deck mess kit is compact, convenient, and efficient. Everything is right at hand—two boilers of generous capacity topped by a frying pan or cover. Two cubes of fuel will at one time warm to eating temperature one standard can of pork and beans, spaghetti or kindred food product; heat to high temperature one standard can of soup, vegetables or kindred food product; and boil 16 ounces of coffee, beginning with cold water at 52 degrees, all in seven minutes.

At present the mess kit has been approved by Army authorities, and the U. S. Government has ordered large numbers for the lifeboats of the Army transports."

ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE
The Antiseptic Powder. Shake it into your Shoes, Sprinkle it in your Foot-Bath.

It makes Standing on the feet easy, Walking a delight. For all men drilling for Military Service the frequent use of Allen's Foot=Ease increases their efficiency and insures needed physical comfort.

The Plattsburg Camp Manual Advises Men in Training to Shake a little Foot-Ease in their shoes each morning.

Do this and walk all day in comfort. It takes the Friction from the Shoe and freshens the feet. At night, sprinkle it in the foot-bath, and soak and rub the feet. For over 25 years Allen's Foot-Ease has been the STANDARD remedy for hot, swollen, smarting, tender, tired, perspiring, aching feet, corns, bunions, blisters and callouses. Used by the American, British and French troops in Europe. One war relief committee reports that of all the things sent out in their Comfort Kits, Allen's Foot-Ease received the most praise from the soldiers and sailors. Why not order a dozen or more 30c boxes to-day from your Druggist or Department Store to mail to your friends in training camps and in the army and navy? Sold everywhere. Sample FREE by mail.
